$25M Retro Pay Looms

By MIKE HUGHES
Times Staff

The implementation of a job evaluation program could cost B.C. hospitals as much as $31 million in retroactive pay and wage increases during the first year, the chairman of the evaluation committee said today.

Victoria consultant Hugh Wilkinson said in an interview the program could cost $20 to $25 million in retroactive pay and $6 million in wage increases.

However, he cautioned that it is still up to the hospitals, through their bargaining agency the Health Labor Relations Association, and the 21,500-member Hospital Employees Union to work out exactly how the retroactivity clause is to be interpreted so those figures could change.

Because of the vague nature of the retroactive clause in the hospital employees' contracts and because of the potential amounts involved, the issue is wide open for a great deal of dispute, Wilkinson said.

The potential costs of the program are contained in the committee's report to the union and the two hospitals that were evaluated as part of a pilot project — Victoria General and Shaughnessy in Vancouver.

The job evaluators classified the duties for every position in the hospitals on the basis of 10 factors, including education requirements, amount of personal contact and job hazard.

The study fingered a number of jobs as being paid over what their evaluation shows they warrant and others are underpaid.

The committee's report says those in the overpaid jobs should continue to get the negotiated wage increases until 1982 and then after that time only receive half of the negotiated increase until they are at their proper level.

Those who are underpaid will get immediate retroactive pay, some going back as far as Jan. 1, 1974.

CANADA HAS RATION PLAN

OTTAWA (CP) — Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie said today the federal government has an emergency plan to ration gasoline and fuel oil if world supplies are further restricted.

Gillespie told the Commons that Canada is bound by a 1974 agreement to reduce imports into Eastern Canada as part of a international system to share available supplies.

"We have a contingency plan in the event of that possibility," Gillespie said in response to a question on whether Canada might have to ration oil because of supply-disrupting political turmoil in Iran.

Decriminalization Of Marijuana Vowed Swift MP Passage

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Liberal, Conservative and New Democratic party spokesmen Wednesday expressed willingness to grant speedy Commons passage to legislation virtually eliminating penalties for possession of marijuana for personal use.

The leaders of both major opposition parties gave their undertakings in interviews after Justice Minister Marc Lalonde told the Commons he is willing to consult the opposition on whether speedy passage could be guaranteed to a bill to decriminalize possession of marijuana.

Locally police officers expressed opposition to such a move although the head of drug investigations for the RCMP in the province agreed there should be some control of marijuana use other than through the criminal code.

"There are far too many young people obtaining criminal records because of their drug experimentation," Insp. Dave Staples said.

Still Staples called marijuana "a very dangerous substance . . . in many ways more insidious than heroin. It's a drug far too many people are completely naive about."

Saanich police chief Bob Peterson saw problems for officers in differentiating whether drugs seized are only for personal use.

"If the law has already determined that marijuana is not a really useful thing to have then it should be eliminated," he said.

David Wilson, president of the Victoria Bar Association was cautious in either supporting or opposing the move saying he could not voice an opinion until he's had a chance to study the legislation.

While he noted the Canadian Bar Association has recommended decriminalization, he indicated he has not yet reached that conclusion himself.

"However there are so many people using marijuana that when the law is broken so flagrantly perhaps it's stupid to have it."

He doubted anyone appreciates the long-term ramifications because of the lack of medical evidence.

Lalonde re-stated the Liberal government's long-standing contention that possession of marijuana should remain an offence though not one that would lead to criminal conviction and a criminal record.

A Toronto-based citizens' group has also asked members of Parliament to delay the changing of marijuana laws until decriminalization laws in the United States are studied.

Alcohol and Drug Concerns, Inc., said in a brief sent to MPs that scientific evidence has emerged since 1973 indicating that marijuana is harmful, yet public opinion is largely uninformed about this.

"Legislative change ought not to contribute to a further escalation of marijuana use," the brief said.

Donald Smyth said the group has 30,000 members across Canada.

Davis Appeal To Ottawa

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jack Davis, former federal and British Columbia cabinet minister found guilty last fall of defrauding the provincial government of $1,074, is appealing his conviction to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Davis was convicted in county court of converting eight first-class airline tickets paid for by the province into economy fares and pocketing the difference. After his conviction, he lost an appeal in the B.C. Court of Appeal.

In an application to the Supreme Court, the country's highest court, Davis claims that the two lower courts made mistakes in their interpretations of provincial laws. His appeal will be held March 5.

MLA Boycotting Food Committee

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

An NDP MLA today said she will boycott the $3 million legislative committee's agriculture study because of ineptitude, overruns and lack of accountability.

Barbara Wallace, the member for Cowichan, said she will not attend any more meetings of the committee.

The original 11-month study commissioned in April, 1977, is now almost two years old and there is no end in sight, Wallace told a press conference today.

Two other NDP members of the committee, Chris D'Arcy (Rossland-Trail) and Dave Stupich (Nanaimo) said they will not attend any further meetings of the committee that involve either travel or spending of public funds.

Wallace called for the final report and full accountability of the committee's and its research staff's expenses.

She said she is not only concerned but angry over the operation of the agriculture committee and her inability as one of its members to get answers to questions involving what she says may be very serious wrongs.

The nine-member committee is composed of six Socreds and three NDPers. The Socreds include past and present agriculture ministers James Hewitt and Cyril Shelford and the committee is under the chairmanship of Len Bawtree (SC—Shuswap).

The $3 million already paid out in fees and charges has not been properly accounted for, Wallace charged.

"On top of that, the MLA said, "there has not been one single positive effect on the retail cost of food in this province as a result of the committee's work."

The NDP MLA said she is making her objections public only after exhausting every effort within the committee to get answers to the issues she has raised.

Wallace said she feels the source of the problem is the ineptitude of chairman Bawtree and Hewitt and Shelford.

"This ineptitude and neglect has led to some unusual management practices by the consultants," she added.

The study consists of four phases. Phases I and II were to have been completed by the end of August, 1977, according to the instructions when the select standing committee was commissioned.

Upward Wages Swing Raises Inflation Fears

OTTAWA (CP) — Wage increases showed a new upward trend towards the end of 1978, raising the possibility of a new wage-price bubble, the federal inflation monitoring agency warned today.

The Centre for the Study of Inflation and Productivity said that while wage increases of teachers and construction workers were generally moderate, higher increases to workers in supermarkets were "a very serious development."

The centre pointed to 10.9-per-cent increases to 10,300 Ontario employees of Dominion Stores and a Steinberg's settlement with 6,500 Montreal employees for increases ranging from 10 to 14.4 per cent as being considerably above average.

It said 11 major settlements covering 41,000 supermarket employees showed increases averaged 10.4 per cent in the highest-paid categories and 11.1 per cent at the lower end.

"Such high wage settlements do not automatically imply corresponding food price increases, but the danger is there," the centre said.

"The key is whether or not the wage advances are backed up by satisfactory productivity improvements in retail food operations."

The centre's comments on wage settlements came only a few days after it released a report showing companies raised prices last year to increase after-tax profits 21 per cent in the first nine months to $9.3 billion.

The report said the retailing industry had increased after-tax profits 45 per cent and noted that department store profits were up 87 per cent. Food store profits were up 42 per cent.

Prime Minister Trudeau, who has called for workers to restrain wage demands, said Wednesday he is glad business profits are up. But he said some of the profits should be reinvested to create more jobs and not all turned over to shareholders.

BCRIC Shares Profit Dealers

Nobody's sure what kind of money-making potential those free shares in the B.C. Resources Investment Corp. hold but it appears that banks, credit unions and other financial institutions which handle share applications will make a buck.

Don Alexander, a spokesman for the B.C. Systems Corp., which is organizing the distribution and processing of the share applications, said a number of figures "are on the table".

Asked whether in fact the institutions may get $5 for every application they handle, Alexander confirmed this figure is being discussed.

As well as the fees paid to the institutions, other costs in distributing the shares will include the printing and distribution of 500,000 information booklets, a detailed and a simplified prospectus, a letter to all B.C. residents and the printing of the share certificates themselves along with media ads by both BCRIC and the provincial government.

Meanwhile, opposition spokesman say they're not surprised to learn a proposed application form for shares in the B.C. Resources Investment Corp. had a photograph of Premier Bill Bennett.

The form has since been rejected by the BCRIC policy committee and an alternative form without the

De-Bugging Devices Worry RCMP

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Lawyers are buying them. So are bankers, architects and other businessmen. One unidentified purchaser was from the provincial legislature.

What they're buying is a super-sweeper, a new breed of electronic detection device which can tell instantly whether a person or his premises is being bugged.

So effective are the tiny bug detectors that the RCMP is concerned about the consequences the devices will have on the force's authorized bugging activities in crime-fighting.

Superintendent Scotty Gardiner of RCMP headquarters in Victoria said in an interview that, while there is no indication the devices have hampered investigations to date, their proliferation could pose a potential threat.

The new detector, the Debug Mark II, was developed by Nova Electronics of Vancouver, and heralded as a major breakthrough in the detection of electronic listening devices.

Nova president Roger Bermier said in an interview the device, invented by Wilfred Chipman, a 32-year-old electronics whiz, is unique in that it is the only hand-held detector with the capability of detecting bugs that operate at extremely low energy levels.

Until Chipman's invention came along, hand-held detectors were limited to picking up bugs with power outputs of 100 milliwatts or greater, Bermier said.

But most bugs now operate in the range of one milliwatt. The Debug Mark II is effective in detecting outputs as low as one quarter of a milliwatt.

Bermier said his device cost $395, weighs 10 ounces, is the size of two packages of cigarettes, and is so simple a child can handle it.

Bermier said he's sold hundreds of the devices in B.C. and has opened a branch office in California where he hopes to capture a growing market in the United States.

His customers have included architects, stock brokers, bankers, lawyers, and persons in the food, brewery and automobile industries.

He said he sold one recently to someone from the legislative buildings in Victoria. The purchaser did not give his name.

Although possession of bugging devices is a Criminal Code offence, punishable on conviction by a minimum five years imprisonment, that seemingly hasn't deterred their use.

GOV'T TO TRY SMOKING BAN

Health Minister Bob McClelland and John Fryer of the B.C. Government Employees Union have agreed to apply a no-smoking rule at one government building as a pilot project.

Fryer said Wednesday that the experiment will be tried in one government building — probably in Victoria — with a joint government-union committee deciding how the project will be set up.

"The thing I would be very opposed to is some sort of government fiat that 'thou shalt not smoke' because that isn't going to work," Fryer said.

"But if you approach it on an educational level and give the employees themselves imput into such a program, there is every hope of developing something that will be successful."

Fryer said if the experiment works in one building then it would be expanded to include other government offices.

Crash Cash

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police have seized $50,000 following a collision between a small imported car and a police cruiser.

Police said the money in $50 and $100 bills was recovered from the vehicle and purse of a 26-year-old woman.

The woman, whose name was not released, has refused to tell police where the money came from.

The impact caused thousands of dollars to spill onto the street.

The woman was issued a traffic ticket for making an illegal U-turn.

No U.K. Vote Buying

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister James Callaghan has told more than one million striking workers he will not print money to pay wage hike demands even if it costs him votes in this year's general election.

Callaghan said he was determined to hold down public sector pay hikes to under 10 per cent this year even if it cost him votes in the election he must call when Labor's five-year mandate runs out. The unions are demanding up to 25 per cent raises.

"We have reached the limit we can offer," Callaghan said in a speech Wednesday at Sheffield. "We are not going to yield to clamor and demand for resources the country does not have.

"I am determined not to get cheap popularity by dishing out banknotes and printing money we haven't got and hoping the rest of the world will bail us out."

Callaghan, facing the nation's worst industrial strife in five years, was to make a nationwide television appearance today to appeal for moderation in pay demands.

Hundreds of thousands of public service workers are still locked in dispute with the employers.

Most hospitals limited admissions to emergency cases only Wednesday. Ambulance services were hit by slowdowns, more than 1,500 schools were closed and 500,000 children locked out.

Uncollected garbage piled high in scores of cities, and there was talk of of a nationwide strike by water and sewage workers.

The latest blow came from nearly 19,000 militant workers at one of the nation's biggest automotive plants. The workers at state-owned British Leyland's Longbridge factory in Birmingham walked out after shop-floor leaders told them to wield "the only language these renegers know, the language of force."

The rest of British Leyland's 33 plants employing 100,000 workers were voting this week on a call by shop stewards to strike.

British Leyland makes a wide range of automobiles, trucks and buses, including Jaguar and Rover cars, and the whole range of Austin and Mini models.

Schreyer To Visit

Governor-General Edward Schreyer will make his first official visit to B.C. next month to open the Institute of Ocean Sciences at Patricia Bay.

A low-key ceremony is planned for 10 a.m. March 28, shortly after the governor-general's arrival.

Federal Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc will also be present for the occasion, which comes 21 months after the $20.4 million institute replaced hydrographic and oceanographic services formerly based in Victoria.

French-Snub Chaos

OTTAWA (CP) — The first meeting of a parliamentary committee studying the referendum bill broke up in chaos today when John Reid, federal-provincial relations minister, did not bring a French text of his opening address.

Opposition MPs, both French- and English-speaking, quickly pounced on the minister for "rejecting a long-established tradition" dating back to the government's own Official Languages Act of 1969.

Flora MacDonald, the Conservative's constitutional critic, spoke in French to tell the minister she considered his action "an insult to those whose maternal language is French."

Don Munro, Conservative member for Esquimalt-Saanich, also spoke in French, claiming the rookie minister showed "nerve and audacity" by neglecting to have his speech translated.

Leonel Beaudoin, a Social Credit MP from Quebec, said the minister was evidently "not thinking of Quebec."

Miss MacDonald proposed the meeting adjourn and her motion was passed with the aid of Simma Holt, a Vancouver Liberal.

Million March for Khomeini Plan

TEHRAN (AP) — An estimated one million people marched through Tehran today in support of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, but Iran's prime minister remained defiant and accused Khomeini of depending on the "mob" rather than democracy.

New political violence was reported in the Caspian Sea town of Gorgan, where the state radio said four anti-government demonstrators were killed and 21 injured. The broadcast said security forces opened fire when protesters set fire to shops, banks and other buildings.

Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar, speaking at a news conference, condemned Khomeini for "putting people in the streets and giving them slogans they don't even understand."

He challenged the Moslem religious leader to form a legitimate political party to seek control of Iran.

Khomeini had called for a massive turnout in the streets today to keep up the pressure on the prime minister to give way to Mehdi Bazargan, a longtime political foe of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi named by the ayatollah on Monday to head a new provisional government.

A stream of Iranians two miles long flowed through central Tehran, waving pictures of Khomeini and Bazargan, chanting "Bazargan, Bazargan, you are our prime minister," and "Bakhtiar, Bakhtiar, you take orders from the U.S.A."

Organizers of the demonstration mustered thousands of volunteer marshals to control the crowds.

The organizers said that 1,000 air force and army men joined the march, many with their families, to show their loyalty to Khomeini and their defiance of their commanders' pledge that the 430,000 men of the armed forces would defend Bakhtiar's government.

A Committee-designed Horse

Was the first ministers' conference on the constitution a success or a failure? Depending on the account you read or heard, the prime minister and the provincial premiers agreed on one, two or three of the 14 items on their agenda of constitutional stumbling blocks — and none of them was very substantial.

They pledged allegiance to the monarchy and agreed that jurisdiction over family and divorce law should be exclusively provincial. Beyond that, this conference's apparent accomplishments were marginal.

A straightforward count of points agreed to at the conference is not the only, or even the best, way to evaluate its success. The principals met and talked and agreed to meet again and talk some more. Premiers and prime minister altered their positions in the process, sometimes pulling at cross purposes, but they made some slow forward movement. After watching 15 years of intermittent attempts at amending Canada's constitution, Canadians by now have recognized it is going to be a long process.

It is made more difficult because the process requires unanimity. One of the ground rules, which appears to date from the Victoria conference almost eight years ago, is that a province may veto proposed constitutional amendments substantially affecting it. Then, Quebec torpedoed the Victoria Charter because it contained sections on language and social policy. Even the law-ridden United States managed to devise an amending formula requiring the approval of only three-quarters of the states.

The premiers are timid and conservative men, essentially a committee of horse traders who display little sense of vision of what Canada could be, who appear to have no national dream and appearunwilling to put the common good ahead of regional or sectarian interests. Trudeau, for all his flaws and shortcomings in other areas, certainly enunciates his national perspective eloquently and forcefully.

For example, it was discouraging to listen to prairie Premiers Lyon and Blakeney oppose the entrenchment in the constitution of a charter of basic democratic rights. They reasoned that in the U.S. the Bill of Rights has led to a terrible mess, with the courts usurping the legislative function and assuming more power than elected officials.

Blakeney maintained that a Canadian with a grievance could simply go out and organize a political party to change things rather than hire a lawyer and challenge the status quo in court.

These facile arguments ignore the very purpose of a charter of rights — to protect society's minorities. Canadian history has shown clearly what happens when groups of people lack that shield against the majority's sometimes mistaken decisions.

From a group of such short-sighted men is likely to come a constitution like the committee-designed steed of the aphorism about camels — awkward, ugly and of little use to anyone except camel drivers.

What This Province Needs . . .

Last week B.C. Finance Minister Evan Wolfe announced, with all appropriate publicity, a special one-time grant to municipalities. The purpose of the grant was to help them cover increased welfare costs for 1979-80 without increasing property taxes. Total sum of the grant — $7.5 million.

On the same day Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed announced, with equal publicity, a special one-time grant to municipalities. The purpose of the grant was to help them retire some of their existing capital debt for such projects as roads, bridges and sewers. Total sum of the grant — a whopping $1 billion.

Lougheed noted as well that this money was not to come out of the Alberta Heritage Fund (in which sock the province stuffs away some of its petrodollars each year) but rather from ordinary government surpluses, now totalling $2.4 billion for the current fiscal year.

What this province is needs is a dozen or more major oil fields.

Bill Pushes Senate Reform

OTTAWA — British Columbia Premier William Bennett is living proof tht it is important to be earnest.

Through pluck and perseverance, as well as earnestly arguing for his proposa, the youngish B.C. premier is finally getting his fellow premiers, and maybe the prime minister, to look at his rather fearsome scheme for Senate reform.

What Bennett wants to do is replace the existing Senate, not with an upgraded house of the provinces or house of the federation, as others have proposed, but with a new kind of national forum that will have the regions, "input at the centre," as he terms it.

A B.C. position paper states: "The government of British Columbia believes that the Senate could have an important role to play in the fiture of our country."

From the Cabinet

Provided that reform is major and not merely minor tinkering (and Bennett's proposal is most assuredly not that), a reformed Senate could contribute to the solution of many of the problems afflicting Canadian federalism today, particularly those problems flowing from the feeling of alienation held by many Canadians in what Peter Newman has called 'outer Canada'."

The B.C. premier claims it is important to institutionalize provincial and regional participation in the lawmaking process, with regional representation in the new Senate.

Bennett wants the leading senator from each province appointed from among provincial cabinet ministers and others appointed from the citizens at large.

Bennett wants his Senate to have a veto over Commons legislation in some areas — an absolute veto, he says.

The veto would extend over appointments to the supreme court, appointments to federal agencies and commissions, amendments to the constitution in the area of federal jurisdiction plus other areas, federal laws to be administered by the provinces, the use of the federal declaratory power (where the federal government can take over a province's resource if it is in the national interest, broadly speaking), approval of the federal spending power in provincial jurisdictional areas.

"British Columbia believes," a government statement says earnestly, "that if its recommendations concerning this first list of powers of a reformed Senate are accepted the results will be a few vetoes, much intergovernmental consultation, better laws and ultimately, greater satisfaction with both the structure and operation of government by politicians and citizens alike."

Another set of veto powers would serve to warn Parliament that the Senate saw serious defects in legislation that required correction beforea measure was approved.

Senate members would be appointed and removed by provincial governments, with no restrictions on the governments in terms of who is appointed.

One question that springs immediately to mind is: How large a bureaucracy would be required for the care and feeding of this hydra-headed legislative monster that becomes in effect, the arbiter of the country's constitution?

Bennett talked at length about his proposal at the constitutional conference Tuesday. He said that many citizens in his province feel they do not receive a proper hearing at "the centre."

"The feeling is that B.C. always comes after central Canada," Bennett observed.

He said the Senate should reflect "national" rather than federal or provincial concerns. That led Ontario Premier William Davis to express concern about "another level of government," which the Bennett proposal appears to be.

The Bennett Senate would be a forum to decide what was "compelling national interest" in the case of federal interference in resource production or management, a provincial jurisdiction, the premier said.

Think Differently

And he went on to argue for a constitution of principles rather than one cluttered with administrative detail and legislative jargon.

Bennett won some limited support for his proposal from the prime minister, Davis and New Brunswick Premier Richard Hatfield who, after a threeday visit to British Columbia recently, was convinced that people in B.C. really thought about things differently than the people of his province.

Davis said guardedly that he tended to support the Bennett proposal "in principle" but not "in the details," which is what the proposal really consists of.

Prime Minister Trudeau called it a "clear proposal" for a new second chamber and said that it should go to the continuing committee of ministers who are continuing to study constitutional reform.

And that's as much as Bill Bennett got at this latest constitutional meeting.

What Did Premiers Settle?

OTTAWA — As constitutional conferences go, this one flew. In just two days, the 11 first ministers settled the shape of two elections, one federal and one provincial, and of one referendum.

About the constitution itself, the 11 leaders agreed to nothing, although on a range of quite important subjects they in fact disagree a good deal less than they appear to.

First things first — politics. Herewith, with translations attached, are the declarations made at the conference out of which will be fashined the campaign themes for the federal and Alberta elections and for Quebec's referendum:

☐ Prime Minister Trudeau: "The question before the federal government is where do we go from here. The cabinet and I now will decide what our posture should be."

An Election Banner

Translation: Trudeau, within the next couple of weeks, will bring in a bill to add to the constitution a charter of human rights, covering conventional political and legal rights and freedoms (supported by all provinces but Quebec and Manitoba), as well as language education rights (supported by Ontario, New Brunswick, Saskatchewan and P.E.I.). Under the banner of "Who Will Speak for Canada?" Trudeau then will ask voters to speak out in favour of human rights and protection of minority languagrs.

☐ Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed: "There has been, I must make clear, very, very little progress with respect to natural resources."

Translation: Lougheed shortly will make clear to Albertans that he needs a mandate to protect the province's natural resources from the grasp of easterners.

☐ Quebec Premier Rene Levesque: "Progress was minimal. It is obvious that despite everything that has happened there is no political will for fundamental change."

Translation: The only way to create in English-Canada that will to implement fundamental constitutional change, Levesque will tell Quebecers, will be to vote "oui" to sovereignty-association.

Of these political equations, Lougheed's is the easiest to unravel. He will call his election within a week or so. Albertans then wiil crown him champion of their oil and gas. That formality completed, Lougheed will turn right round, exactly as did Saskatchewan's Allan Blakeney after his election last fall, and accept a compromise close to Ottawa's offer of qualified provineial control over interprovincial trade in natural resources.

Trudeau's circumstances are more complicated. One unexpected byproduct of the conference is that it helped to defuse the sense of a crisis of national unity, and hence defused Trudeau's best issue.

The premiers, it is clear, no longer believe that constitutional rejigging will convince Quebecers to vote "non" in their referendum. Only four responded when Trudeau appealed "with all the conviction at my command" for support to entrench minority language rights in the constitution. Blakeney best described the group's laid-back mood when he described their goal as: "To put together a package that satisfies as many as possible of the actors in this play." A political deal, that is, rather than a constitutional new Jerusalem.

As well, Trudeau himself defused one of his own best issues — of Joe Clark as a pawn of powerful premiers. "We have probably given away the shop," said Trudeau, and then added hastily, "I take that back," after he had read off a list of federal concessions, from cable television and family law and interprovincial trade, to provincial appointments to the Senate and limiattions of the federal spending power.

Yet Trudeau did get in return what he wanted — an election issue. "If we allow Canada to evolve into nine English-speaking provinces and one where only French is spoken, then we will indeed have created two Canadas," said Trudeau as he appealed for support for pan-Canadian language rights. The country needed, he said, "a constitution that protects the generations of the future."

This week, Trudeau will take to cabinet a proposal to revive his constitutional legislation of last summer (Bill C-60), but shorn of almost everything expect minor changes to the supreme court, on which most provinces are agreed, and a charter of human rights, including language rights. Trudeau then will ask voters whether they believe in two Canadas.

How Long?

As for the constitution itself, the first ministers did manage to slim down their list of 14 debating items. By one. All of them, Levesque for the moment included, said they loved the Queen. On each of the other 13 items, one province or more, disagreed, even though, as often as not they disagreed on points of detail rather than on matters of high principle.

The constitutional conference now will disappear from our television screens until next fall, and perhaps, if Levesque calls his referendum then, it won't bump All in the Family and Happy Days again until next year. In the meantime, officials will go back over the list of 13 to check whether everyone said what they really meant to say, and to then add to the list fresh discussion items, plucked from the Pepin-Robarts task force report (provincial appointment of lieutenant-governors, for example) and from Ottawa's proposals for shifts in economic jurisdiction from the provinces to the federal government.

How long would all of this take, I asked a senior federal cabinet minister. "About five years," he replied. Or about long enough to settle the shape of the next-but-one federal election in 1984.

Sunday Opening

Your editorial Open and Shut Case (Jan. 29) indicated that there are two approaches to the opening of stores on Sunday.

The first is to leave the regulation to store owners and the public. Perhaps this is a disputable suggestion. I've been concerned about the rising cost of groceries. On Jan. 11, I wrote to J. Fidler at the Victoria office of Safeway. I found that the staff working on Sundays receive double time. I also found that only limited stocking is done on Sunday. Studies in shoplifting have indicated that people stocking shelves serve as a deterrent to shoplifting. The plainclothes detective is on duty only one Sunday in four. Shoplifting losses are a factor in pricing, so the public should be aware that is it possible that Sunday openings of many grocery stories are adding to the cost of our groceries.

Perhaps this carries over into the added cost of items in other outlets open on Sunday.

Your second approach seemed to be that since the Lord's Day Act is an "archaic, unworkable, and ineffective statute" that we should ignore it. You state that the law needs reviewing and rewriting to reflect modern needs. There are "archaic, unworkable, and ineffective statues" on the books dealing with many subjects, drugs and family law to mention only two. Do we establish a pattern of ignoring? What effect does this have on respect for government?

Three years ago when we left the United States midwest, professionals working as social workers and in the counselling field for youth were concerned about the effects of Sunday openings on family life. Does Sunday openings affect the time parents have for sharing with children?

I can not accept your evaluation that Sunday openings are an open and shut case. — Harriet C. Goble, 1275 Roslyn Road.

Hideous Distortion

Your editorial of Jan. 19 (Foreign Investment) has just come to my attention. As it criticized me, I wish to point out some factual errors it contained.

You equated the record of 74 existing B.C. enterprises coming under foreign control with Socred government blessing during the past three years with what you claimed were 17 "takeovers" in 1974 and 16 the following year. The fact is that the 33 "takeovers" during the NDP years were actually only the number of cases reviewed by the federal Foreign Investment Review Agency during 1974 and 1975. That's much different from "approved" cases. In fact, I am informed that FIRA records in Ottawa show that of the B.C. reviewable cases only three were approved in 1974 and 11 the following year. The rest, a majority, were rejected, withdrawn or deferred. At least two were approved by the FIRA despite the objections of the NDP provincial government.

For your editorial to suggest that the 74 existing B.C. enterprises taken over by foreign interests so far during the present Socred regime is "simply continuing a policy" of the NDP government when FIRA approved 14 takeovers is a gross distortion. And it is a hideous distortion when one compares NDP actions to save takeovers and shutdowns of such firms as ColCel (now known as CanCel), Plateau Mills, Kootenay Forest Products, the Princess Marguerite and Panco Poultry to the present government's calculated and callous decisions to sell out companies under its direct control like Panco and Gray Line bus tours to U.S. control against the best interests of the public and the provincial business community.

Getting your statistics mixed up is unfortunate but understandable. But less understandable is your severe memory lapse of highly publicized events then and now. Finally, while the NDP is concerned about the accelerating rate of foreign takeovers of existing enterprises (nine, 26 and 39 in the past three consecutive years) it is not opposed to foreign investment in new enterprises which will create jobs and improve our industrial base. — Gary V. Lauk, MLA, Vancouver Centre.

Prayer not enough, say 'radical' priests

A Step Back By the Pope

NEW YORK TIMES
An Editorial

No event of Pope John Paul II's brief reign so far aroused more anticipation than the speech he gave last month to the Latin American bishops. He addressed himself to the basic and divisive question of the proper role of the church and its priests in working to end social and political injustice.

The speculation about his position ended with the speech. He offered compassion for the poor and dispossessed, but he rejected political involvement, let alone action, by the church. The church's mission, he said, "is religious and not social political." He spoke out flatly against the concept of "liberation theology," which holds that scripture justifies political action. He called for preaching, for evangelism, for the education of "leaders of the peoples" towards "a more just and equitable distribution of goods" — but along the church's traditional paths.

It was a disappointing speech. A group of priests has announced its disagreement with this message. Prayer alone, they say, is not enough: The clergy must do more than create a spiritual climate for social reform. The pope's stand directly contradicts that taken at the Latin-American bishops' conference in Medellin 10 years ago, which gave impetus to a decade of activism by the Catholic clergy. It is not that the pope has neglected to speak for the poor: In a sermon earlier in his trip, he called for the establishment of a society in which "No longer will there be systems that permit the exploitation of man by man or by the state." But at Puebla he made it clear that priestly activity is the wrong road to this goal.

Some advocates of "liberation theology" have indeed embraced violence, joining guerrilla movements. But more have expressed their convictions peacefully. In Honduras, priests helped to found the National Peasant Union, a force for land reform; in Ecuador, priests organized Indian cooperatives; in Brazil, Chile and El Salvador they have spoken out forcefully against violations of civil rights by the ruling regimes.

Now the pope seems to be saying they must confine themselves to the pulpit and the altar. In many Latin American countries, the church, as the only relatively independent institution to withstand the spread of repression, must maintain a delicate balance to survive. But some in the church are asking how priests can minister to the spiritual needs of their deprived and neglected people without somehow working to alleviate the conditions that oppress them. It's a good question.

Opening Pandora's Box?

THE ECONOMIST

A gene that may help cause suicide, alcoholism and chronic depression has been "discovered" in California. This is alarming for any 50-year-old who thinks he is making a free choice whether to become an alcoholic, and may have to be told that it depends as to two-thirds on what happened between his father and mother 50 years and nine months ago.

Even if the latest discovery does not stand the test of time, genes undoubtedly affect behavior, and mind-bending drugs will do so in future. The brain is an instrument in which electro-chemical messages are sent along nerves that are wired according to a prescribed pattern. The growth of this wiring can be influenced by environment. But it is clear that the masterplan is inherited, and is a refinement of earlier prototypes lower down the evolutionary ladder.

Most of what we know about the brain (which is only a tiny fraction of what there is to be known) is based on easily repeatable, incontrovertible experiments — very unlike the social studies on which it is still regarded as scientific to base penal policies, educational policies, social policies. There are studies of genetic mutations in fruit-flies, showing that genes affect the cortex of their brains; and studies showing that Siamese cats see badly because the wiring diagram of their brains is wrong. In man there are genetically-caused disturbances to metabolism that affect the brain. When people get drunk, chemicals affect their moods. Chemicals very similar to opium are manufactured by the human brain, and affect how we experience pain. These opiates exist even in the brains of primitive hagfish.

Since the early 1950s biology has made huge strides after unravelling the relatively simple chemistry of genes in simple organisms. Now the tools have been developed for accelerated study of more complex subjects, like human genes and human brains. Francis Crick, the co-discoverer of DNA, says: "It will be surprising if a really deep understanding of how our brains work does not eventually destroy many of our present illusions about ourselves."

Truth often hurts. People are reluctant to accept that their moods are affected by genes and medicines. Since human behavior often leaves much to be desired, it would be wicked nonsense to try to impose censorship on attempts to understand it better, but the next generation will have to be very chary of a brave new world of mind-altering chemicals.

At present, most societies ban marijuana, tolerate alcohol (which some say is more dangerous) and prescribe various drugs that act on the psyche. Drugs of the future, based on the brain's own chemistry, should have fewer side-effects and yet be more effective than drugs prescribed today. But attempts to engineer emotional states will raise frightful problems between individual freedom and social objectives. Man's ultimate goal surely cannot be to sit mindlessly and eternally happy under the influence of some wonder drug which just manages to avoid alcohol's damaging effects on health and ability to drive a motor car.

Another controversy will be about genetic diseases. Some of these can already be identified in the womb, at a stage when an afflicted fetus can be aborted. It may one day be possible to replace defective genes in people already born. But how far should man's gene pool be depleted? A "harmful" gene can be a blessing in disguise. The gene for sickle-cell anemia kills few people, but confers resistance to malaria on many. If verified, the supposed gene for suicide could be another example. It occurs in one-third of normal people, as well as in two-thirds of suicides, and may well be there for a good reason. Mankind would be the loser if parents had aborted Marilyn Monroe, Van Gogh, Hemingway and Virginia Woolf, who all committed suicide.

Socreds Revive 'Two Solitudes'

By DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA — You haven't seen or read much about it, but a tremor of apprehension ran through veteran MPs last week. In the "referendum" debate the small Social Credit caucus suddenly emerged with speaker after speaker. Their line was hard against the Trudeau bill which empowers the federal government to carry on referendums.

Generally the Social Credit MPs are unobtrusive; they speak almost always in French; their twin bents are monetary reform and rural Quebec issues, especially agricultural ones. As one Quebecer in the press gallery says, "While we think them rather jokes they are the truest mirrors in the House of what their people at home think."

What we got were vivid recollections of the conscription issues and the fateful King referendum in the Second World War. We got bitter railing about unfortunate French-Canadian youths dragooned to war as cannon-fodder for Anglo-Canada.

I asked Heward Grafftey what it meant. He is the unique Tory MP with a riding in the heart of Creditiste country.

He replied that this seemingly anchronistic resurrection of conscription is the "two solitudes" again. It reveals how deeply held the grievances are; how much hate there is in Quebec. And it is a piece of cloth that fits in the coat of Quebec being tailored by Levesque and the PQ. Many of them hate us.

Remember also, said Grafftey, that there is more class bite in Quebec than English Canada, and that such class enmity is symbolized by Rene Levesque, the little guy from the Gaspe and Pierre Trudeau, the Outremont millionaire. These Social Credit MPs, says Grafftey, are working or lower-class spokesmen. Their talk last week is more of an alert on how far things have gone between us than the booing of Ed Schreyer.

Coin-in-the-Slot Information

By NIGEL HAWKES
London Observer

From this week, if the fancy takes you, you can walk into the foyer of the Piccadilly Hotel in London, put a coin into a slot machine, and get access to 97,000 pages of information, displayed on a TV screen.

It ranges widely, from stock market prices through horoscopes to consumer reports and even jokes. How much information you see depends on how much you are prepared to spend: a typical page costs a few pence, though some, like the classified ads, are free.

The service is Viewdata, one of the few genuinely new ideas in communication to have emerged for many years. It links the telephone, invented 100 years ago, with the television set, invented 50 years ago, and the computer to produce an information service of wide applicability.

Public Place

Viewdata was invented by an engineer at the British Post Office, Sam Fedida, and it is really designed for use in the home. The machine in the Piccadilly Hotel takes the idea a stage further by putting the service into a public place and allowing it to be operated by a coin in the slot.

It has been built by a company specializing in slot machines: Cherry Leisure U.K. Ltd., whose Swedish parent company is one of the largest world operators of fruit, vending and video machines (TV games).

The Piccadilly Hotel machine is an experiment. Nobody really knows whether the public are going to want to spend their money in this way, though the novelty value of the first few public machines will be considerable.

So for the moment Cherry Leisure are renting the machine for $120 a month. The money the customers put into the machine will be divided between the Post Office — to pay for the computer and the telephone line charges — the people who provide the information in the first place, and the hotel.

Whether the economics of the system are going to make sense it is too early to say. Indeed it is at the moment impossible to be sure whether the regular Post Office Viewdata service, known as Prestel, will make anybody any money.

But if interest is anything to go by, Viewdata looks well set. President Carter recently arranged a demonstration in the White House, the technology has been sold abroad, and the 150 "Information - providers" who supply the information for the service have so far provided 188,000 pages.

Technical Bugs

Among the most active of the information providers, says the Post Office, are Fintel, Datastream and the Stock Exchange for business information, the Consumers' Association, various jobs and careers advisers, the Meteorological Office, travel guides and tourist organizations, British Airways and many others.

There have been technical hitches which have delayed the start of a test service, but this is now under way in London, Norwich and Birmingham. To launch a public service this year, the Post Office is spending $10 million to set up Prestel centres in London, Birmingham, Manchester and Edinburgh, with a further $36 million earmarked for six more centres.

The service is new, untried, and something of a dark horse and it is going to take users a long time to become familiar with it. Coin-operated machines like the one opened this week may not, in the long run, represent a very important segment of the Viewdata market. But in familiarizing the public with the idea of Viewdata they could be very important indeed.

Modernized China begins for the tourist at Peking's Richard M. Nixon Airport, a vast concrete-and-glass airopolis on the Mongolian border some 120 miles from the capital.

Here are all the amenities that make the O'Hare and Dallas-Fort Worth airports such cherished homes away from home for the busy traveller — infinite distances, book shops chock-full of Gothic Manchurian novels, computerized lost-luggage service, plastic seats individually equipped with small television sets and Muzak. Or, as it is called in China, Moazak.

We felt comfortable and at home right away, for the car-rental agency did not have the small economy model we had ordered and tried to gull us into renting an oversize gas guzzler at nearly twice the cost.

Having heard that traffic along the Henry Kissinger Thruway into Peking was a nightmare at the best of times, we decided instead to take the train. Despite the four-hour ride, we had a jolly time munching on spiced ham sandwiches and coffee from the vending-machine car and enjoyed a concert of Guy Lombardo golden oldies piped over the train's Maozak system.

Peking itself was a disappointment, despite an excellent roadshow production of Hello, Dolly! and a Sandra Dee festival at Peking's Cinema I, II, III and IV. The hotels were packed because of a convention of real-estate speculators who spent their days flogging oceanfront lots on the China Sea and their nights tossing water-filled paper bags from the 44th floor of the Peking Hilton.

"Peking is not China," everyone had told us. "If you want to see the real China, you must get out into the country." And so we decided to see the Great Wall.

When we got there, the Great Wall had just been torn down for a parking lot, but the trip was not a total loss because a group of demonstrating preservationists, mistaking us for agents of Yankee Parking Management Inc., denounced us as "running dogs of imperialism."

An old China hand told us we were very lucky to stumble upon this antique abuse because in modernized China the old billingsgate is harder to come by than a Ming Dynasty vase at a Howard Johnson rest stop on the Chou En-lai Turnpike.

Like so much in China, this proved to be overstatement, for we drove the Chou En-lai Turnpike down to Shanghai and found the Howard Johnsons packed with souvenir Ming vases — all plastic, of course.

We were saving our souvenir money, however, to buy stuffed dragons, and this proved a mistake. All the souvenir shops offered a wide assortment of stuffed alligators and Seminole Indian heads carved out of coconuts, but no stuffed dragons. We later learned that China exports its entire stuffed-dragon output to Florida in trade for shark fins.

This naturally set our mouths watering for some of China's famous shark-fin soup, but we had a shock in store. The Chinese, having modernized themselves, no longer have time to prepare famous soup. Nowadays they prefer fast food, and all their Florida imports are used to produce the highly popular Colonel Sanders Kentucky Fried Shark Fins.

We had hoped to stay in Shanghai and see the famous beautiful women in their famous slit skirts, but Shanghai was gone when we got there, having moved to the suburbs outside the Capitalist Roader Beltway.

Thus we had to content ourselves with a room at the Capitalist Roader Beltway Holiday Inn, Number Six. This is a favorite gathering place for middle-class suburbanites. The night we were there Howard Jarvis addressed a large audience in double knits and Volkswagens on the property tax, which he said had done China more dirt than the whole Gang of Four put together.

Fortunately, our room had two double beds, bathroom appliances that had been sanitized for our protection and a television set, on which we saw an old Anna May Wong movie.

Miss Wong wore a slit skirt, but her performance was interrupted so often by commercials for incredibly cheap records — "Szechwan Duck's Greatest Hits" at only $3.95, for example — that we gave up and drove around the Beltway until we saw some golden arches and went in and had the Big Mao with special sauce.

Afterward, we decided to go see the famous route of the Long March, but it was closed to the public because Dino de Laurentiis was using it to make a movie.

A FUNNY WAY TO RUN A GOV'T

By SHELBY SCATES

(A column in the Seattle Post-Intelligencer datelined Victoria. Scates covers the state legislature in Olympia for the P-I.)

On the surface, Canadians seem to be normal folks, just like us, with a regular democratic government, just like ours.

There are minor differences in style. Their nation is held together by ice hockey, instead of pro football. When talking they put an "eh" at the end of a sentence, instead of starting them with "Hey."

But they have their share of hippies and are subject to Big Mac attacks, Pizza Huts and rock and roll. They love a parade down Main Street, same as we.

It's only when you start scratching around their government that the real difference emerges. I'm not sure it's wholesome.

I don't mean the fact they have a strict party system that binds each member of the legislature to the program of his party, be it liberal, conservative or socialist. That's certainly strange. But not sinister. If people don't like what the majority party is doing, they vote them out of office, just like we do.

That British Columbia recently had a publicly-declared socialist party running the province is a bit odd. That government did go out and buy up several industries and turn the profits back into the British Columbia general fund.

Of course, the feds in Washington, D.C., have used tax funds to bail out the Lockheed Co. and they've granted tax breaks to Exxon, Mobil and all the other big oil companies on their overseas investments. But we don't call it socialism. It's free enterprise.

By and large, we Americans and Canadians are pretty much alike until it comes to running our legislative bodies. They try to have representative government without lobbyists.

A B.C. legislator strolling into the grand saloon of the Empress Hotel wouldn't cause a teacup to rattle. His counterpart in Olympia risks getting trampled by friendly representatives of the special interests if he puts a foot inside the Tom Room of the Tyee Motel.

They want to be helpful.

The best count available in Victoria lists six lobbyists in the corridors of the Parliament Building when the legislature assembles. Six! That wouldn't be enough in the U.S. to control a state legislative subcommittee working on memorials to motherhood.

It's a ratio of about 10 to 1, 10 members of Parliament to every lobbyist in Victoria. In Olympia and Salem, it's the other way around, closer to 10 lobbyists for every legislator.

And why not? They are there to give the legislators advice and guidance, eats and drinks. What's a legislator to do without a lobbyist to explain a complicated tax bill or to help fund his re-election campaign?

I mean we all can't go to Olympia, Salem or Washington, D.C. The next best thing is having a man from Weyerhaeuser, Lockheed, Northern Tier Pipeline and our favorite local utility on the scene to watch out for us.

You've got to hand it to the people in British Columbia. They've got guts turning over bill-writing to elected representatives, unsupervised by lobbyists, even if they do pay them $21,000 a year.

It's not quite wholesome. It's not free enterprise.

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — A surge by energy and mining issues sent the Toronto stock market sharply higher in active mid-afternoon trading.

Advances outnumbered declines 244 to 138 with 225 issues unchanged.

The Toronto Stock Exchange said it will list Silvana Mines Inc. in the mining category Feb. 12, with five million common shares offered without par value.

It said Silvana is owned 53.5-per-cent by Kam-Kotia Mines Ltd. and 27.38-per-cent by Carnegie Mining Corp. Ltd. Kam-Kotia also owns 68.6 per cent of Carnegie.

Among industrials, Asbestos Corp. gained 2¾ to $50, Dome Petroleum 2½ to $99, Falconbridge Nickel A 1⅝ to $36⅞, Husky Oil 1½ to $46 and Canada Malting A 1⅜ to $35½.

Inglis Ltd. fell ¾ to $11¾, Ford Motor Co. of Canada ⅛ to $68, MTS International two cents to 40 cents, Algoma Steel Corp. ⅛ to $28¾ and Bank of Nova Scotia ⅛ to $24¼.

McIntyre Mines Ltd. rose 1½ to $29, Gibraltar Mines ⅝ to $8⅞ and Teck Corp. B ½ to $12¾. Dome Mines dropped 1 to $100 and Afton Mines Ltd. 1 to $18.

Amalgamated Bonanza Petroleum was up 2¼ to $25, Candel Oil 1½ to $37½ and Asamera Oil ⅝ to $18½. Merland Explorations was down ⅛ to $9⅛ and Conuco Ltd. 32½ cents to $4.80.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices staged a small rally today in buying attributed to internal market forces.

Analysts, in fact, said a rise in the producer price index at anything less than a two-digit annual rate for January would be surprising.

Domestic oil and gas stocks showed strength, evidently on the theory that those companies would stand to benefit from reduced supplies of foreign oil. Apache Corp. was up 1⅝ to $21⅜; Reserve Oil and Gas rose ⅝ to $12¼, and Inexco Oil was up ¾ to $16⅛.

London

LONDON (Reuter) — Concern over increased bank lending rates pushed prices lower near the close of trading on the London stock market. The Financial Times index fell 7.9 to 447.3. Financial and mining shares eased and oils were mixed. Canadian stocks were lower.

Franco Anglesio
General Manager
Hotel Macdonald

"When it comes to comfortable accommodations and good service, business travellers prefer 'The Mac'."

"In the middle of the hustle and bustle that is Edmonton today there stands a towering tribute to the traditions, style and comfort of times gone by—the Hotel Macdonald.

Manager Franco Anglesio says, "I'd like to think of my hotel as a welcome refuge from the hectic days that business travellers invariably encounter. My staff ensures that the warm, courteous service you deserve is always extended to you. And our comfortable rooms, our roof-top pool and our saunas all work to help take the kinks out of your busy day.

As for dining, Inglenook is fine fare indeed, and the Peppercorn is perfect for a quick but cheerful snack. Then there's the Can Can Lounge or the Izba for evening fun, and the Quiet Bar for a friendly chat and cocktail.

Last, but not least, 'The Mac' has first-rate meeting and convention facilities, direct airport limousine service, and special corporate rates are available.

There's a lot of reasons why business people keep coming back to 'The Mac'. But it all adds up to one key thing: we're one fine hotel!"

Royal Trustco

Royal Trustco Ltd. reports profits for the year ended Dec. 31, 1978, of $28.8 million, or $1.81 a share, up from $17.9 million, or $1.12, a share a year earlier.

All figures are after extraordinary items.

This is the first time Royal Trustco has reported year-end results as the parent of the Royal Trust group of companies.

Total income was $702.2 million, compared with $595.5 million in 1977.

Kenneth A. White, the company's president and chief executive officer, said in a statement the renewed vigor of the company's financial performance during 1978 was a return to its long-term growth pattern.

White said good performance was due mainly to a significant effort by management and staff and an improving economic climate.

Earnings per share reflect the additional shares outstanding as a result of the December, 1978, corporate reorganization etablishing Royal Trustco as the parent company of the Royal Trust group.

There are now four shares of Royal Trustco for every three previously outstanding of Royal Trust Co.

The share exchange offer, which ended Tuesday, has been accepted by 98.7 per cent of the shareholdings.

Fourth-quarter profits were $7 million, up 14 per cent from $6.1 million a year earlier.

Pine Point

Pine Point Mines Ltd. announced Monday net earnings for 1978 were $16.3 million or $3.60 a share, compared with $9.4 million or $2.08 a share in 1977.

Sales were $88.5 million, compared with $74.8 million last year.

R. P. Douglas, company president and chief executive officer, said in a news release that demand for lead concentrate was strong throughout the year with both prices and sales higher than in 1977.

Cut Market Control: Study

The provincial government should reduce the amount of control its agriculture ministry has over the B.C. Marketing Board, says a study of the board released Wednesday.

The report, prepared for the legislature's agriculture committee, noted that the BCMB was established as the intermediary between the ministry and the other commodity marketing boards, but the ministry and the other boards have been ignoring it.

The agriculture committee is investigating all aspects of the food industry.

"The BCMB could and should play a direct and important role in the policy recommendations and could assist commodity boards in solving problems," the report states.

"If individual boards or the ministry do not have a high level of confidence in the BCMB's ability to solve problems satisfactorily, it appears that a reappraisal of the board's representation, power and authority or staffing may be needed."

The study says it is essential to recognize that problems will arise occasionally which are beyond the board's jurisdiction.

The study found that operational costs of the BCMB are currently part of the ministry's budget instead of being paid by a direct grant as was the case when it was set up.

"This financial arrangement is inconvenient and restrictive to the BCMB if every proposed expense must be cleared through the ministry," it says.

"It is also clear that the objectivity of the BCMB is compromised when its budget is controlled by the ministry. The establishment of a separate budget would indicate clearly the independent nature of the board."

The report recommends that the board's name be changed to B.C. Agricultural Marketing Council to avoid confusion with the commodity marketing boards, and that the board's supervisory role over the other boards be expanded.

It says representatives on the board should include people from all sectors of the food system and specifically producer, processor, distributor and consumer representatives.

The report calls for legislation to be amended to create an elected milk board under the general supervision of the marketing council.

At the moment the milk board has authority over its own operations, and its members oppose a suggestion they come under the jurisdiction of the council, sayaing such a move would be wasteful, frustrating and totally unnecessary.

Fishing Incentives Planned

VANCOUVER (CP) — The federal government plans to give B.C. fishermen financial incentives to make up for the loss of their fishing rights in Alaskan waters, Wally Johnson, western regional fisheries director-general, said Wednesday.

Johnson told the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union convention the fisheries department plans to increase financial incentives to encourage boats with the necessary licences to diversify their operations and take more species of fish.

Black Outrage Over Discos

VANCOUVER (CP) — The failure of city council to revoke business licences of some downtown discotheques allegedly practising racial discrimination has outraged the city's black community.

Paul Winn said that this city's approach is indicative of a "closet bigotry" in Canada.

Winn was commenting on a recommendation by the city's community services committee that the Vancouver licensing board be empowered to force the clubs to change their door policies, but that the clubs not be prosecuted or have their licences lifted.

"The committee is in effect saying to the discotheques involved 'we forgive you for your past transgressions, but we are going to watch you and if you step out of line, we may slap your wrists'," said Winn.

Vancouver Sued Over Dismissal

VANCOUVER (CP) — Shelagh Day, Vancouver's former equal opportunities officer, filed a British Columbia Supreme Court action Wednesday claiming the city wrongfully dismissed her. On Tuesday, council voted to disband the $58,000-a-year office and said the city's personnel officer should take up the office's duties. Ms. Day claims the one-year program was not a pilot project and that she was hired as permanent equal opportunities officer.

Fire Victim Search Continues

HOPE (UPC) — Police say the identities of three victims of a weekend fire that destroyed the Rio Vista Motel wont be known until after this week while searchers continue to comb through the rubble for more bodies. A fire department official said Wednesday he expected the search to be concluded by the end of the week, although the investigation into the possible cause of the fire, that did $600,000 worth of damage to the 28-room motel, may go on much longer.

Decision Reserved in Sun Appeal

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Court of Appeal reserved its decision Tuesday on an appeal by The Sun against a $2,000 libel award made to Simma Holt, Liberal MP for Vancouver-Kingway.

The B.C. Supreme Court made the award last year after an editorial in the evening newspaper criticized Mrs. Holt for alleged actions in California while she was a member of a parliamentary committee touring United States prisons.

In a counter appeal, Mrs. Holt now is seeking an increase in the earlier libel award, claiming that as an MP her reputation was damaged by the editorial.

18-Year Term on Rape Charge

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — A New Westminster man described by a judge as a menace to society has been sentenced to 18 years in jail for raping a 21-year-old Quebec woman. County court Judge A. Stewart McMorran said in sentencing Garry Taylor Handlen that for a man of 32 his record of sexual offences is appalling. Handlen has previously been convicted of rape, indecent assault and assault with intent to commit rape.

Traffickers Given Fines, Jail

PENTICTON (CP) - Two women were given jail terms and one fined after the pair pleaded guilty to charges of conspiracy to traffic in marijuana. Dana Edith Renix, 27, of Vernon, was sentenced to one day in jail and fined $1,500 while Rosemary Bennett, 31, of Calgary was sentenced to 30 days in jail.

Mysterious Rash Strikes Hospital

SURREY (CP) — A rash-type disease has struck Surrey Memorial Hospital and several staff members are on paid sick leave to help stem the spread of the infection.

Ken Harman, assistant hospital administrator, said Wednesday three patients and seven to nine staff members have been affected. The patients have been placed in isolation.

He said the hospital has not identified the infection which appears as a rash, mostly on the arms.

Create a summer job-we'll share the cost.

EMPLOYERS — Here's a chance to add the summer staff you'll need to get those extra jobs done. You provide a worthwhile work experience for a young man or woman this summer and the Province of British Columbia will share the cost of wages with you.

You'll be working with the Ministry of Labour to create summer jobs that provide opportunities for B.C. students and unemployed youth to learn work skills. It's a simple system that requires a minimum of paperwork yet lets you help yourself and the economy in a positive way. British Columbia businesses of all kinds and sizes can benefit. Once your application is approved, you're free to hire any eligible young person or take advantage of the Ministry of Labour's computerized referral service to locate an employee with the talent and interest you require. But act today. The program is available for a limited time only. Should your situation change in the meantime, you are under no obligation. Here's how it works:

BUSINESSES AND FARMS — If your business or farm has been in operation for at least a year, the Ministry of Labour will help you pay the wages of up to five young people this summer. We will pay between $1.30 and $2.50 an hour as our share of the cost.

SOCIETIES — You are invited to apply for funding for any worthwhile project that provides an opportunity for young people to learn valuable job skills this summer. Tourism Information Centres that meet the standards established by the Ministry of Tourism and Small Business Development are also invited to apply for funds under this program.

HOW TO APPLY — Applications for funding are available from any Provincial Government Agent, Ministry of Labour Office or one of the B.C. Youth Employment Offices listed below.

Verdict Reserved

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Supreme Court reserved decision Wednesday in the case of North Vancouver lawyer Donald Jabour who is challenging the Law Society of B.C.'s right to ban advertising by lawyers.

During the 20-day trial, Jabour argued the society's rule violates federal combines legislation governing free competition.

Jabour's suit follows a decision by a law society committee that Jabour be suspended for six months.

Before the society's governing body could take action, Jabour obtained an injunction barring any action until his suit is settled.

Mounties Deny CUPE Link

VANCOUVER (UPC) — An RCMP labor relations officer says there is no basis to allegations officials of the Canadian Union of Public Employees held secret intelligence meetings with Mounties and members of both teams should not be discouraged from working together.

"Our team works closely with labor unions, including CUPE, and our policy is to lessen labor tension, not encourage it," Sgt. Paul Starek of Burnaby RCMP said Wednesday.

"We are trying to end the 1930s distrust of the police and in Burnaby, our liaison program works very well. There is no reason why CUPE members should stay away from the police," he said.

In a Jan. 18 memo to his 250,000 members, CUPE national president Grace Hartman discouraged contact between the union and the RCMP because "it is not in the interests of CUPE or its membership to assist them in the gathering of information concerning internal matters within the labor movement."

Hartman said the Mounties' presence at a union Christmas party was one reason for the memo.

Starek dismissed Hartman's implications that members of his team had attended the party to collect information about the union's affairs as "complete nonsense."

Use of Foreign Ships Under Fire

VANCOUVER (UPC) — Canadian seamen, backed by the labor movement, launched a campaign Wednesday against the use of flag-of-convenience ships by Canadian shipping companies, a practice the unions say costs the country billions of dollars and thousands of jobs.

The Pacific Coast Maritime Council and the Canadian Labor Congress said they would distribute 15,000 leaflets in Vancouver and other port cities opposing the use of foreign ships and labor for Canadian shipping, Maritime Council spokesman David Crane said.

"We'll be taking more direct action soon, maybe by the first of the month. This is a beginning," said Crane, secretary-treasurer of local 400 of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers Union.

The council, representing seafarers' unions and other maritime labor organizations, singled out the shipping division of Canadian Pacific Ltd., which Crane said operates 32 ships registered outside Canada to avoid Canadian taxes and stiff registration requirements.

"You listen to their commercials and they're all Canada blah-blah-blah. They should pay taxes in Canada.

"The exports that go out of here, especially grain, should have Canadian seamen. Those are Canadian ships, but they have foreign flags at the end," Crane said.

CP spokesman Robert Ferguson said his company operates some of its ships through a wholly-owned subsidiary registered in Bermuda.

"It's engaged in a shipping business dominated by foreign carriers, and to stay competitive we have to be able to operate under the same conditions as other companies," he said.

Ferguson denied the unions' charge that CP receives massive government subsidies. CP "gets very little subsidy and those that it does get are for specific, uneconomic service in the public interest, like rail branch lines," he said.

Crane said several other major shipping companies with corporate headquarters in eastern Canada register their ships outside Canada.

Mayor Murdered

SAN SEBASTIAN (AP) — Jose Antonio Vivo Undabearrena, mayor of the nearby Basque town of Yurre-Olaberria, was assassinated Tuesday by two masked gunmen, police said. The gunmen are believed to be members of the Basque separatist organization ETA.

CRD Not Interested In Her Lot

The Capital Regional District's parks committee isn't interested in buying two acres in the Highlands from Mrs. Margaret Crawford, 88, of 1354 Beach.

She has been paying taxes on the land for 49 years and is asking $6,000 for it to finance a visit to Australia to visit relatives.

Access to the two-acre lot has been cut off by parks established by the regional district.

When the property was first offered two years ago the district felt the $6,000 price too high.

On Wednesday a CRD spokesman said the regional district does not really want the land and park funds are limited.

Pay Gas Tax Or Lose Say Island Told

The Salt Spring Island regional director will lose most of his say on transit issues if islanders win their fight to opt out of paying the new three-cent-a gallon gas tax, board chairman Murray Glazier said today.

The surcharge, which will be imposed April 1 on gas and diesel, will be used to subsidize public transit services in the capital region.

The islanders oppose the tax because they say they don't benefit enough from public transit in the region.

Glazier said he will attend Friday's meeting on Salt Spring to explain the board's position.

"We're willing to hear their point of view and do what we can," he said.

Glazier stressed that if Salt Spring opts out they will also lose their punch in lobbying for better ferry and bus connections.

Salt Spring director Mike Clememt attended Wednesday's regional transit services committee meeting to explain the position of the islanders.

He said they already pay an extra five cents a gallon for gas because of freight costs and have threatened to buy their gas in Crofton and other places after April 1.

Clement said little publicity had been given to the need for energy conservation. He said the regional district's plans to provide efficient bus connections from Swartz Bay to downtown Victoria would allow islanders to leave their cars at home.

But Glazier said the inflexibility of the Urban Transit Authority Act demands that the UTA's board, not the regional board, set boundaries of transit systems.

The UTA board had included the entire regional district in the system at the unanimous recommendation (including Clement) of the regional board.

Larry Miller, UTA's assistant general manager, said the act does permit the regional district to exclude certain areas from the payment bylaw.

Former board chairman Jim Campbell, who represents the outer Gulf Islands, said he had no intention of getting his area opted out of the payment requirement "because I want you guys to listen to me."

McMicking Cost Study

The Capital Regional District's south coast sewerage committee will take two days to decide whether to pay $35,000 or $117,729 for a study of currents off McMicking Point.

It met Wednesday and discussed an $11,000 study by Willis, Cunliffe, Tait and Co. Ltd. proposing a study program on the feasibility of putting a sewage outfall into Enterprise Channel off McMicking Point.

The committee also decided to table until Friday discussion on a request from Dr. Derek Ellis of the University of Victoria for a 12-month $25,000 monitoring contract — a 25 per cent increase over last year's contract.

Consulting engineer Ray Le Noury said strong currents, turbulance and uneven terrain may make it impossible to construct an outfall pipe that can stand up to the current.

He proposed the $35,000 study to get geological and construction information and said the best place for an outfall is probably just south of Kitty Island. If it is possible to build there, he added, the pipe could be put in without further studies.

"If it is going to work anywhere in Enterprise Channel it will work there," he told the committee.

Even if the outfall doesn't work and sewage has to be diverted, it will still be necessary to have an overflow pipe in that area, he said.

Heroin Program Budget Chopped by a Third

The budget for British Columbia's controversial heroin treatment program has been chopped by more than a third for the next fiscal year, an official with the Drug and Alcohol Commission said today.

Commissioner John Russell said the budget will be between $8 million and $9 million, down from the $14-million budget for 1979 announced by Health Minister Bob McClelland when he outlined the program last year.

Russell said the program, now in its start-up stage with its largest treatment facility to be operating by April 1, is going ahead as planned, despite opposition from groups who questioned the methods by which addicts can be committed for treatment.

The B.C. Civil Liberties Association has filed an action in B.C. Supreme Court to stop the program.

Russell said that after reviewing admission procedures set out in the Heroin Treatment Act passed by the B.C. legislature last May, the commission estimated the number of cases to be dealt with in the first year at between 600 and 1,000, down from the original estimate of 2,500.

The commissioner said the program is currently working under a $4.8-million budget which is to cover start-up costs and various expenses incurred between Sept. 1 and March 31 when the current fiscal year ends.

The third stage of the program, which will allow for referrals by police, is to begin July 1.

Russell said 363 people are being hired for the program.

The 150-bed confinement and treatment centre at Brannen Lake near Nanaimo will have a staff of 156 and will be in operation by April 1.

It will have an operating budget of $3.1 million, or about $57 a day for each patient which commission chairman Bert Hoskin said is nearly half the $100-a-day cost of keeping a person in a maximum-security prison.

Treatment centres are to be opened in Kelowna, Prince George, Victoria, Campbell River, Surrey, Chilliwack and New Westminster. There will also be four clinics in Vancouver.

NDP to Boycott

Phase I research is done, but bills charged against Phase I work are still coming in, Wallace said.

Phase II was the research into marketing boards. The latest report studying those boards was distributed Wednesday. (See Page 8).

The final phase — the general overview of the food price situation as it is influenced by factors which the committee considers important — was to have been before the legislature by March 31, 1978.

"The delay in the final report is the result of innumerable delays on the part of the consultants and subconsultants in seemingly endless research projects," Wallace told reporters.

She said the researcher studying the B.C. Milk Board charged the committee $175 per day.

Yet his report was in part lifted word for word from a standard text published by the Fraser Institute in 1976.

She also pointed to the lengthy study researchers did into kickbacks by food suppliers to retailers and wholesalers.

The researchers found nothing wrong with that practice, she said. But a short while later a similar RCMP investigation resulted in the resignation of the vice-president of a major food supply company.

"Perhaps the RCMP should be asked to study the cost of food in B.C. I am sure it would not cost $3 million in public funds."

Wallace said she is also concerned with the funds paid the committee's two main consultants — E. M. R. Applied Management and Robin Smith Consultants.

During the course of their work for the committee the two companies merged. Together they were paid more than $500,000 up to the end of October and further fees are still being charged.

The two companies also handled more than $350,000 for work turned over to other consultants while in some cases charging a commission of 15 per cent.

Wallace said the delays in work have been matched by overruns in fees.

For example, Boeing Computer Services of Seattle submitted an estimate of $2,000 for work on one aspect of the study.

The final figure was in excess of $33,000, Wallace said.

premier's photograph will be used.

However the revised form will still carry the premier's personal message which originally accompanied his photograph.

That message says: "As a shareholder in the B.C. Resources Investment Corporation, you'll have a real stake in resource development throughout our province. I urge you, your family and friends to take advantage of this unique offer . . . and to participate directly in the future growth of British Columbia."

"I can't say I'm surprised because I'm not," said NDP leader Dave Barrett.

"The application form is obviously being used for propaganda purposes at public expense."

The former premier said the Socred government has never displayed any ethics.

Tory leader Vic Stephens who made the draft form available to the press was critical of the arrogance of the government for trying to include the premier's photograph and political message on an application form to be used in conjunction with a Crown corporation.

Other government critics pointed out that Bennett maintains Crown corporations are independent from government, especially when debts are being discussed.

Starting today five million application forms will be run off by three printing companies for distribution in mid-March through banks, credit unions and trust companies or by mail.

Every British Columbian is eligible to apply for five free shares in the corporation which has numerous resource holdings in the province. It is estimated the shares will be worth $10 each when they are distributed in August.

De-Bugging Rigs

Bermier said a sizeable black market exists here with most of the bugs coming from the United States where there is no law prohibiting manufacture or sale.

He said of 200 persons who bought his device in the past year, 37 reported finding bugs. He was able to personally verify nine of the reports.

One of the bugs was found in the office of a Vancouver architect who had been narrowly losing tenders to another architect whose office was in the same building a few floors below his own.

A bank manager in Vancouver discovered one in a transistor clock radio on his desk. It had been planted by a person whose company was attempting to secure a large loan through the bank.

Last month a securities underwriter found a battery-operated bug hidden in a plant in his room at Vancouver's Hyatt Regency Hotel.

Bermier said there have been several cases where unions and companies have detected bugs, particularly during periods of labor negotiations.

It's almost impossible to prove who plants a bug and because of that, no one, to Bermier's knowledge, has ever been charged.

We Don't Drink British Way. . .

VANCOUVER (CP) — The neighborhood pub concept has not worked in British Columbia, Consumer Affairs Minister Jim Nielsen said Wednesday.

Nielsen said the original idea was to bring the British-style pub into B.C. but that has failed because people here do not have the same attitude towards drinking.

He said local governments are developing a negative attitude towards neighborhood pubs and are turning down more and more applications.

The minister said the provincial government also is studying the different classifications of liquor licences with a view to cutting down the number of categories.

Easier Pot Laws Promised Support

Senator Keith Davey is listed as chairman of the group's advisory council but Smyth said this does not mean the senator agrees with the organization about the marijuana issue.

Meanwhile, Dr. Harold Kalant, a doctor with Ontario's Addiction Research Foundation, said that if the federal government is going to decriminalize marijuana, it should do so for a trial five-year period.

Pressed by Conservative youth critic Paul Dick to explain why the government has failed to act on the matter, the justice minister said if opposition parties promise to co-operate "we will be very happy to consult and see how fast we can proceed."

Conservative leader Joe Clark and Ed Broadbent, leader of the New Democrats, said they would support legislation decriminalizing marijuana.

"If Lalonde is serious on the matter he should move quickly," Clark said, adding that his party would deal with the bill relatively quickly after some debate.

He said the Conservatives would prefer to spend more time on the bill but with an election call looming, "our backs are to the wall."

Friday, Lalonde told Dick (Lanark-Renfrew-Carleton) he did not have high hopes that Parliament would move quickly on the matter and that he did not want to falsely raise expectations.

Wednesday, the minister turned aside a suggestion from Dick that two cabinet orders be passed to place marijuana under the Food and Drug Act instead of the Narcotics Control Act.

That solution was not so simple because it could result in removing the possession of marijuana from offences completely.

The government has long promised to remove cannabis — the generic term for marijuana and hashish — offences from the Narcotics Control Act, which provides a maximum seven-year prison term for simple possession.

Lalonde has said that if the government brings in a bill, it will be similar to one that was passed a few years ago in the Senate. That bill, which died on the order paper before the Commons had a chance to study it, would have abolished jail sentences for persons charged with simple possession of hashish and marijuana.

Prime Minister Trudeau said last year he would introduce a bill if the opposition members agreed to fast passage.

Blaze Damage $500M

VIENNA (UPI) — A fire destroyed Vienna's largest department store in the centre of the Austrian capital causing an estimated $500 million damage.

The Austrian capital's 250 firefighters and army men aimed 30 hoses at the giant Gerngross store to keep the giant complex, which is the size of four football fields, from collapsing.

No deaths were reported but at least four firemen were injured in battling the blaze, which broke out at 10:45 p.m. (1:45 p.m. PST).

Firefighters had reported the fire under control at 6 a.m. (9p.m. Wednesday) but a sudden wind fanned it back to life.

B.C.'s Youth Employment Program

Geared to Provide 1,600 Jobs This Summer

Crank Up the Job Machine

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Activity in the provincial government office at 808 Douglas Street is peaking as the staff prepare for the 1979 Youth Employment Program, better known as YEP.

The program is expected to provide about 1,600 jobs for students and unemployed youths this summer.

While most of the YEP jobs will last only from May 1 to Aug. 31, regional administrator Stephen Myers says the government will introduce a new extension program this year.

The extended project will subsidize jobs for qualified youths up to a period of eight months.

Myers says this is in response from employers who have said the four-month period is not sufficient to train the workers for full-time employment.

Like field co-ordinators Patrick Wolfe and Marion Buller they, too, look for other employment during the months the YEP is dormant.

Myers says the main thrust of the program is to provide new jobs that offer training toward permanent employment.

He cites the case of the youth who dropped out of school at Grade 10 and was unemployed for two or three years because he lacked experience.

Under the YEP program last summer he found work with a local automobile body shop and is now a full-time employee.

Myers says another businessman, who services most of the church organs in the area, says the youths he has employed during the last two years under the program have given him the time to create an original woodwind organ. The businessman is now pursuing the possibility of marketing his creation as an alternative to more costly electrical organs.

A computer system, which Myers said is a combination of the best factors of similar systems in the U.S. and Britain and unique in Canada, is used for a youth referral system in the office.

Its efficient data bank can match would-be employers with the type of workers they are seeking.

Wolfe has been in contact with such groups as the Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce, the Victoria Downtown Association and the Victoria Volunteer Bureau to alert potential employers about the program.

When it was first started in 1974 the program was designed for students only. It now helps unemployed youths between 15 and 24 years of age, as well as students who are over 15.

The government will spend $21.5 million on the program this year, hoping to provide 13,500 jobs throughout the province.

Myers expects about $3.2 million to be siphoned into the Capital Regional District.

Under the program the government subsidizes wages paid to youths and students employed by businesses or on farms on a 50-50 basis up to $2.50 per hour.

Non-profit organizations employing youths and students are subsidized up to $3.20 per hour while there is yet another rate for municipalities and school boards.

Wolfe, who is one of 28 field co-ordinators in the program, says there is a minimum of paperwork.

"The employer can hire whoever he likes as long as the youth is eligible under our regulations," he adds.

Non-profit organizations have until March 2 to submit applications and Wolfe can be reached at 387-1431. Business and farm applications must be filed by March 12.

Myers says 12 to 13 per cent of the YEP jobs provided in the province last year were found in this area.

BCGEU Threatens Law Suit On Hiring, Promotion Policy

The B.C. Government Employees' Union has threatened legal action unless the government acts immediately to establish a commission of inquiry into government hiring and promotion policies.

The union would seek to overturn rulings made by the Public Service Commission (PSC) appeal board during an 18-month period in which it operated shorthanded.

The threat was delivered by BCGEU general secretary John Fryer on the heels of a B.C. Supreme Court ruling that a recent judgment of the PSC appeal board was invalid.

Mr. Justice J.C. Bouck ruled the PSC was acting outside the law when it ruled on a case when only two rather than the statutory three commissioners had heard the appeal.

The PSC is legally constituted as a three-member commission, but operated with only two commissioners for 18 months.

Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis appointed his deputy, Gerald Cross, to fill the vacancy in the commission six weeks ago.

Fryer called the court ruling a victory for the union and said the judgment has serious and far-reaching implications.

"We feel that it is imperative that a commission of inquiry into the merit principle be established immediately. The only other alternative facing the union is to take further legal action to overturn all illegal rulings made by the commission over the past 18 months," said Fryer.

The court ruling resulted from a union action brought on behalf of E.M. Sealy, a pilot who was refused an appointment as chief pilot for the provincial government air services branch even though he possessed the qualifications advertised for the position.

The union contended the provisions of the collective agreement had not been followed and that the employer should be compelled to observe the terms of the contract when making appointments within the bargaining unit."

"The judge's decision underlines the fact that the merit principle is not working properly in B.C.'s provincial government service. What we need in the public service is a system and procedures for promotions, appointments and appeals that is not only above suspicion but like Caesar's wife, must be seen to be above suspicion as well."

NDP MLA Eileen Dailly said Wednesday former provincial secretary Grace McCarthy had allowed the PSC to operate unfairly and illegally when she neglected to appoint a third member to the appeal board for 18 months.

"Because of the bungling and ineptitude of the government in handling the public service appeal board, hundreds and maybe thousands of public servants in this province could have suffered a grave injustice," said the MLA for Burnaby North.

15 Nominated For Study On Education

Fifteen nominations have been received for the post of commissioner of a Greater Victoria School District educational needs study.

School board planning committee chairman Win Mott said Wednesday most of the names were submitted by trustees and several were self-nominations from district staff. Nominations have now closed.

The board will hold a special meeting next week to select the commissioner.

The planning committee compiled a short list of seven people it considers the most eligible, but all 15 names will be submitted to the board.

Some of the nominations were submitted to trustees by members of the community.

The commissioner will chair an educational commission set up by the board to study the district's education system and make recommendations on future use of facilities.

"It will be a wide open look at the educational activities of the district," Mott said.

He said the commissioner will be the only salaried member of the commission, which will have a budget of $12,000 to cover clerical and research expenses.

The commissioner's $15,000 salary will also cover the costs of hiring consultants.

The commission, which will consist of representatives from parent groups, district staff and the community, has eight months to complete the study.

ARMED YOUTH ARRESTED

A report of a prowler in the 600-block Yates early today led to the arrest of two youths, one armed with a .22-calibre handgun.

They face charges of possession of an unregistered restricted weapon, possession of housebreaking tools and attempted breaking and entering.

Police arriving at the scene at 1:15 a.m. discovered attempts had been made to force the rear doors of two premises.

As they were checking the area officers spotted two youths coming out of an alley and arrested them.

No Extra Hour For Marguerite

Hours the Princess Marguerite stays in Victoria will be unchanged this summer, Larry Martell, a member of the citizens advisory board to the Marguerite, said today.

A request from Victoria business groups that the time be extended by one hour will be considered for the following summer.

The Marguerite arrives in Victoria at 12:30 p.m. and leaves at 4:30 p.m. every day during the peak tourist season.

Business groups say tourist spending would be higher if visitors had the extra hour to shop.

Martell said B.C. Steamship Co., which operates the vessel, will have to consider all the factors involved.

For example, he said, an hour longer in Victoria means that visitors would get back to Seattle an hour later and this might discourage some tourists from making the trip.

"There are some good arguments on both sides and we will have to take a careful look at the issue."

Questions of fares and scheduling remain the prerogative of the B.C. Steamship Co. but the advisory board may make suggestions on scheduling.

Q. Can you tell me what company operated the fastest trans-Atlantic steamer service between Britain and Canada in the last half of the 19th century? J.H.B.

A. The honor goes to the old Dominion Line. It operated a passenger service between the U.K. and Montreal. One of its fastest steamers was the Labrador. The line eventually became the White Star-Dominion Line. During the depression years, it was absorbed by Cunard.

Mitchell-Brewin Showdown March 25

The Esquimalt-Port Renfrew NDP has set March 25 for the showdown between Frank Mitchell and John Brewin to see who will carry the party colors in the next provincial election.

Guest speaker at the nominating convention will be Stu Leggatt, the NDP MP from New Westminister who is leaving federal politics to run provincially in the new Coquitlam-Moody riding.

The Esquimalt riding was held by Mitchell in 1952 and both Brewin and Mitchell feel they can defeat Kahl. Both have been working hard to line up support.

Nominations are still open. The meeting will be held in the Esquimalt Recreation Centre at 2 p.m.

"The interest being shown by the membership to this point has been extremely high and we are sure that we will have a record turnout at the nominating meeting," constituency president Marlene Eddy said.

Meanwhile, the three NDP members who lost their ridings with the new boundary changes approved by the legislature last season have all found new battlefields.

Bill King, whose Revelstoke-Slocan riding disappeared, has been nominated in Shuswap-Revelstoke. King's hometown of Revelstoke remains in the new riding.

The Socred MLA from the current riding of Shuswap, Len Bawtree, will likely face King in the election.

Rosemary Brown and Norm Levi were cut adrift when Vancouver Burrard was swallowed up by surrounding ridings.

Brown has won the nomination in Burnaby-Edmonds. She will likely face incumbent Socred Ray Loewen.

Levi is seeking the nomination in Coquitlam-Maillardville — one of the new ridings.

The NDP has nominated candidates in about half the ridings and plan a series of nominating conventions over the next two months for the rest.

The Socreds have selected candidates in only two ridings so far, but both parties have contingent plans to push nominating conventions ahead if the premier calls an election early this spring.

Robbie Parris

A Hummingbird Among the Crows

By JIM CRERAR
Times Staff

WALLY Yeamans has been involved in basketball around Victoria for nearly 55 years and has probably forgotten more players than most other fans have seen.

But there's one player being honored Saturday night at UVic's McKinnon Gym that Yeamans — or anyone else who has watched him — isn't likely to forget.

He's Robbie Parris, UVic Vikings' 5'8'' guard who becomes the first basketball player in UVic's history to have an official night in his honor.

The occasion will be the final home game in the Canada West conference schedule for the Vikings — and Parris — with Alberta Golden Bears providing the opposition in an 8:30 p.m. encounter. The Bears and Vikings also meet Friday night at 8:30 at McKinnon.

''He has to be the most exciting player I've ever seen,'' said Yeamans of the Parris, 23, who is finishing up a glittering five-year career with the Vikings.

''He's amazing. There are few men who can do the things he does and do them as well.''

The record bears Yeamans out. Despite his size (158 pounds), Parris was a first-team Canada West all-star last season and was voted by his team-mates as the most inspirational player. He was also voted Vikings' most valuable player twice, in 1974-75 and 1976-77. He's been a second-team Canada West all-star three times.

In terms of fan appeal, Parris has it all. A man of ordinary dimensions in a big man's game, he excels through a combination of speed and talent that would make him a prime candidate for pro basketball if he were a foot taller.

He has turned many an otherwise dull game into something special.

''I've never seen a player in any sport who can stimulate his team — or the crowd — to the extent Robbie can,'' says UVic athletic director Mike Elcock.

''I often come to games with friends who have no particular interest in basketball and they become captivated just watching him.''

No question about that. He has all the razzle-dazzle of the Harlem Globetrotters. There are times he will pull off a play before anyone in the house realizes what has happened. As far as his opponents are concerned, he practises pure sorcery.

But he's no showboat.

''He's very unselfish on the floor,'' says Gary Taylor, who coached Parris his first two seasons with the Vikings. ''If a player is in a better position than he is, Robbie inevitably gets the ball to him. His moves and his quickness create openings for other players.''

Ken Shields has coached Parris his last three years.

''He's never been complacent,'' Shields said. ''In the off-season he's worked on parts of his game that have needed improvement. As a coach, you really appreciate people who work like that toward perfection.

''People like Robbie have something in them — whether it's a fierce competitiveness I don't know — but I've never seen him play a game where he didn't put a tremendous effort into it.''

Parris' improvement has probably been most evident the last two seasons. Shields notes that he has developed as an outside shooter and improved his over-all defensive concepts. ''He gambles less for a steal than he used to,'' Shields said. ''He's matured.''

Most of all, Parris has learned how to handle himself positionally against taller opponents. For example, he rarely is drawn in close to his own backboard where a taller man could shoot over him.

Shields has perhaps the best description of all for his prized guard.

''He's like a hummingbird playing against crows.''

BONUS POINTS — Presentation ceremonies for Parris are slated for half time Saturday with the university, the alumni association, his team-mates and several businesses offering gifts . . . Parris' No. 20 will be retired when the season ends . . . One of the onlookers Saturday will be Parris' coach at Oak Bay senior high, Don Horwood, who is helping coach Alberta during his year of study there . . . Parris graduates with a B.A. in economics but has no plans beyond the spring, although he expects he'll play senior ''A'' basketball for DataTech next season . . . Vikings can all but clinch first place with a pair of wins over second-place Alberta and a sweep is uppermost in the minds of UVic Vikettes as well . . . The second-place Vikettes meet third-place Alberta Pandas in Friday-Saturday women's games starting at 6:45 p.m. and two wins would sew up a playoff berth for coach Kathy Shields' UVic girls against first-place Calgary Dinnies.

Parris: To be honored on Saturday

Series Hits Vein of Gold

NEW YORK (CP) — A mixture of moods prevailed among restive officials and players awaiting tonight's opener of the first Challenge Cup series between Team NHL and the Soviet Union.

Some Soviet officials claimed the outcome is unimportant. They saw the three-game series as simply another step towards the goal of retaining their hockey titles in the world championships in April and the 1980 Winter Olympics.

President John Ziegler was confident that his National Hockey League had struck a vein of gold. He estimated that the series will generate more than $3 million in income when you add up all the advertising dollars plus the gate receipts.

He said expenses for this latest international hockey package with the Soviets will be more than $1 million.

Strict security precautions were in order for the opening game at Madison Square Garden to prevent anti-Soviet displays by dissidents.

The respective coaches of the Soviet national squad and the NHL all-stars kept their starting lineups to themselves until after today's practice sessions.

Soviet coach Viktor Tikhonov told a news conference on Wednesday the biggest secret he was willing to give away was the fact that Vladislav Tretiak will be in goal.

''Maybe Mr. Bowman will be jobless,'' Tikhonov said good-naturedly.

Coach Scotty Bowman of the all-stars said he preferred to name his starting goalie before the game.

As tonight's (5 p.m. PST) game approached, nerves were becoming frayed.

At one point, even general manager Bill Torrey of the all-stars was willing to agree with the Soviets on the unimportance of the series.

''They always say that. They look to the world tournament and the Olympics. According to them, these things are just an exercise.

''That's all they are for us, too. The only people who put any importance on these tournaments are the press. But I don't want to lose any games.''

This is not the case for most of the 25 players on the all-star roster who do see something at stake — mainly their pride.

''I think this is a very important series,'' said Guy Lafleur of Montreal Canadiens. ''I think the Russians have developed their best team and it's a challenge. Nobody wants to get beat by them because we want to prove that we are the best team.''

The three games were sellouts in the 17,500-seat Garden except for cheaper seats—singles and those with poor sight lines in the upper stands.

With the house scaled at about $350,000, the series will draw a gross gate of about $1 million, making it the most lucrative in NHL history.

Each member of Team NHL is getting $3,000 for the series plus expenses. The bill at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel where the all-stars are staying with their wives is going to be considerable.

Many players complained about the high prices. But the Garden set a $25 top ticket price for 10,000 seats, a record for hockey in New York. All were sold.

The Soviet players each will earn between $200 and $300 for the series.

There have been all kinds of wild rumors about the Soviets, including one of a reported Soviet hockey defector which turned out to be a hoax.

The media had easy access to the Soviet practice sessions in the Garden. This would have been impossible if there was any defection.

One non-starter is all-star defenceman Denis Potvin of New York Islanders, still bothered by a shoulder separation suffered in a game against New York Rangers more than three weeks ago.

Potvin, the league's top-scoring defenceman with 60 points, said doctors advised him that he shouldn't start.

Squeaker Boosts Jets

By Canadian Press

Winnipeg Jets ''struggled'' into first place in the World Hockey Association with a close 3-2 decision over Birmingham Bulls on Wednesday night.

''We had to struggle even at the end,'' said Morris Lukowich, who led the Jets with two goals.

''It's surprising. I thought we had control of the whole game. It was a fairly slow game but I've just glad we won it.''

Lukowich's two goals gives him 41 on the season — a career high for the 22-year-old left winger in just his third professional season. The Saskatoon, Sask., native had 40 goals last season with the now-defunct Houston Aeros.

In the only other game scheduled, Edmonton Oilers beat the slumping Cincinnati Stingers, 8-5.

''We've been so terrible in our own end of the rink in our last two games,'' lammented Stingers' coach Floyd Smith. Cincinnati had lost 8-1 in Winnipeg last Sunday.

BOB BOLITHO
. . . third year with 'Caps

New Pact For Bolitho

VANCOUVER (CP) — Defender Bob Bolitho, who last year set a North American Soccer League record by recording four assists in one game, signed a one-year contract Wednesday with Vancouver Whitecaps.

Bolitho, 26, a five-foot-nine, 170-pound native of Victoria, also is a member of the Canadian national soccer team.

It will be his third season with the Whitecaps.

U.S. Backs Out

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The United States Gymnastics Federation will not sponsor a team in the July Pan-American Games in Puerto Rico because of demands that gymnasts learn new compulsory routines, a federation spokesman said Wednesday.

WENZEL WINNER

MARIBOR, Yugoslavia (Reuter) — Lichtenstein's Hanni Wenzel, the cupholder, won the women's World Cup ski slalom today well ahead of Christa Kinshofer of West Germany and Maria Rosa Quario of Italy.

Wenzel clocked 92.71 seconds on aggregate timing for the two runs on the 55-gate course, dropping 170 metres. Kinshofer finished in 93.52 and Rosa Quario in 93.82 seconds.

'Acid Test' For Castoffs

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

It may be time to inscribe the name of Doug Sauter as one of hockey's astute shoppers.

Scrambling here and there for his ''bargains,'' Sauter and his suddenly-inspired array of discards have turned things around for Calgary Wranglers.

Winners of only two of their first 16 games this season, Wranglers, coming into Memorial Arena for tonight's meeting with Victoria Cougars, now rank as one of the Western Hockey League's hottest teams.

The Wranglers have a 10-1-1, won-lost-tied record for their last 12 games and have pulled into a position that threatens Lehtbridge Broncos' hold on second place in the Central Division.

The stretch includes a pair of home-ice victories over Victoria and Portland Winter Hawks.

''We're going well,'' Sauter, the architect of Calgary's resurgence, said Wednesday. ''The acid test will be to see if we can come up with some points from this swing of the Western Division. But the way they're playing, and the way the feel, I think we're going to have some surprises.''

A former assistant to Ernie McLean at New Westminster, Sauter took over as Calgary's coach this season.

While he inherited ''some talent,'' Sauter wasn't overly thrilled with some of the attitudes that existed in Calgary. He made changes. He was able to persuade McLean, his former boss, to part with centre Ralph Krueger, winger Rocky Greenwood and defenceman Jim Crossan. Sheldon Currie was pried out of Portland and winger Sid Giroux was purchased from Victoria.

In addition, a bad break for Dave Morrison turned out to be a good one for Calgary. Drafted by Atlanta Flames last summer, Morrison was injured while playing for Muskegon Mohawks of the International League. When Morrison was ready to resume playing in Decmeber, Sauter was able to acquire the forward as Calgary's allowable ''overage'' player.

All have contributed immensely to Calgary's resurgence, said Sauter.

Wranglers open their West Coast swing without Crossan (separated shoulder) and winger Blake Sullivan (broken ankle). Crossan's absence will especially be felt, said Sauter, but he feels Wranglers will improve on their first Coast swing when their only point came from a 5-5 tie with Portland.

In all, Sauter has come up with eight players that weren't with the team on its first West Coast visit.

Both Wranglers and Cougars held their positions Wednesday. Ten points ahead of Calgary, Lethbridge had its scheduled game with the Billings Bighorns postponed because of a Montana blizzard. The Cougars, four points behind second-place New Westminster, got help from Portland.

Perry Turnbull's third goal, coming with less than four minutes to play, enabled the Hawks to defeat the Bruins 5-4 in Portland.

CURLING

Two B.C. Berths Open From Island Mixed Final

By BILL WALKER, Times Staff

The curling playoff pace slows a little, but not much, this weekend as several major events are still to be determined.

Foremost is the Island Mixed at Campbell River, starting Friday, with four rinks from the South and four from the North battling it out for two spots in the B.C. Mixed at the Racquet Club, Feb. 16-18.

From the South:

Dave Smith, Lorna Dopson, Dar& win Dopson, Bonita Smith (JdF).

Pat McGuire, Carmel Marshall, Pat Marshall, Joy Ervine (E).

Ray Jones, Shannon Paugh, Gordon Zealand, Bonnie Kindlan (PH).

Pat Ryan, Helen McLoughlin, Joe Feaney, Jackie Langdon (CR).

Fred Duncan, Ann Gagnon, Wayne Reid, Sandy Cuthbert (PA).

There are two purple hearts in the field. Jones of Port Hardy was with Frank Beutle's Penticton rink in 1975 while Duncan was with Glen Harper of Duncan in 1960.

Carlisle, off his performance in the PCCA men's final, looms as a threat and obviously would like another crack at Glen Pierce and Bernie Sparkes who already have qualified for the provincial. Playing with Sparkes are his wife Lindsay at third, Al Cook and Dawn Knowles. With Pierce are Debbie Orr, Brian Longmuir and Marilyn Neubauer.

Four rinks from the B.C. Curling Association will make up the field.

The B.C. junior men's event is on at Vancouver Club, Saturday and Sunday, but the competing rinks have not been announced by PCCA officials.

Otherwise, four provincial men's championships have been determined.

Rick Folk of Saskatoon has retained his Saskatchewan title with a 6-4 victory Bob Miller of Shelbrook. With Folk are Bob Thompson, Tom Wilson and Jim Wilson.

Jeff Thomas and his St. John's rink of Toby McDonald, Peter Hollett and Ken Thomas have won the Newfoundland berth in the Brier;

Jim Ursel of Montreal has captured the Quebec championship for the fifth time in six years;

Ursel's rink includes lead Malcolm Turner, second Warren Wallace and third Don Aitken. Belyea's rink includes vice-skip Charlie Sullivan, second Don Pennell and lead Brian McLeod.

Belyea had made it to the provincial tournament 15 times but this year's victory was his first.

In Melfort, Saskatchewan, Barb Despins of Saskatoon has won the the Saskatchewan women's championship and in Lunenburg, N.S., Penny LaRocque's rink from the Canadian Armed Forces in Halifax has retained the Nova Scotia championship.

In junior men's play, the Mert Thompsett rink of Winnipeg has captured the Manitoba championship. Other members of the rink are third Lyle Derry, second and Joel Gagne and lead Mike Friessen. The Thompsett rink will represent Manitoba in the national junior here in March.

Locally, the Steve Skillings rink has won the Super League championship. Barry Havey finished second, Bob Hawkes third and Brad Clarke fourth.

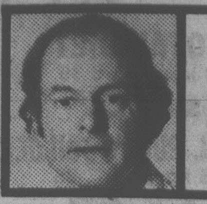
Berth on National Side Lost on Camping Trip



max low

Kiwi Bruce Howe, who once was selected to play for Canada but because of a quirk of fate never made it onto the field, is the new national rugby team coach.

Dr. Howe, who heads the physical education department at the University of Victoria, played scrum-half for Oak Bay Wanderers when he first came to Canada from New Zealand in 1970.

He did it so well, in fact, that within two years he had become captain of the Vancouver Island Crimson Tide Reps and capped a fine playing career by leading the B.C. side against the All Blacks later that same season (in 1973).

Soon after that, as his name wasn't on the national squad list, Bruce set off for a camping trip to the United States only to be chosen as scrum-half for Canada in the test match against Wales.

"They couldn't find me and when I got home there was a message on my doorstep to call the chairman of the national selectors as the team was 'leaving immediately' for Toronto," Bruce explains. "By then, though, they'd already left!"

That was the end of the playing road for Bruce Howe, who then returned to New Zealand for two years to head the phys-ed department at the teachers' training college in his home town of Palmerston North. While there he was co-coach of the strong Manawatu provincial side which (just after he returned to Canada) won the prestigious Ranfurly Shield.

On getting back to Victoria in 1975, Bruce was offered the job of Tide coach when the man originally chosen was unable to do it. He sort of fell into that one but guided the Island side through three of the most successful seasons in its history.

During that time the Tide scored wins over Japan and the Rest of Canada (in the Island Rugby Union's Centennial match here) and stunned the rugby world with that incredible 27-17 upset over Welsh powerhouse Cardiff. Along the way the Tide carried off the McKechnie Cup as the top union side in the province in two out of those three years.

His reward for that coaching performance was to be asked to take over the B.C. team, which he did in January of last year.

Though his reign wasn't long (Bruce has just had to resign as B.C. coach to take over the national job from Donn Spence of UBC) his team retained the provincial championship very convincingly, surprised Queensland (top state side in Australia) 13-6 and made a pretty impressive tour of Samoa and Fiji.

Now 37, Bruce Howe has his sights set on sharpening up the national team and getting it more opportunities to play other countries and thus improve its unofficial world ranking, which he considers to be about 10th.

"But I think often we set our sights a little too high and try to play the top rugby nations when we should be getting more experience against those say around seventh, eighth and ninth," he explains.

Bruce's biggest concern team-wise is getting a couple of international-class flankers, which he says Canada has never really had.

BRUCE HOWE
...national coach

"Ken Wilke, who came the closest to it, has retired and Gary Grant of UVic is the next best but he's very young," the coach says.

The only other worries Bruce faces in his new post are establishing better contact with players across this vast country and making sure they are well prepared physically before they walk into the national camp.

"I want them to be ready so that all I have to worry about is tactical and psychological preparation," he explains. "Often that hasn't been the case in other years and we've had some people going to camp who should never have been there.

"That won't happen any more," he warns.

Barlow in Quarters

MONTREAL (CP) — Wendy Barlow of Victoria registered an easy 6-0, 6-1 victory over Angela Walker of Sarnia, Ont., in an all-Canadian match Wednesday night to advance to the quarter-final round of the $25,000 women's professional futures tennis tournament.

The triumph by Barlow marks only the second time a Canadian has advanced to the quarter-final round on the women's futures circuit, the training ground for up-and-coming professionals. Marjorie Blackwood of Ottawa made it to the quarter finals of the futures' tournament in Toronto last week.

Barlow, who got past Walker in only 45 minutes, will face a more impressive opponent when she meets third-seeded Renata Tomanova on Friday. Tomanova, a veteran, disposed of Isabelle Villiger of Switzerland 7-5, 6-2 in another second-round match on Wednesday.

Friday's other quarter final will pit Kim Sands of Miami against top-seeded Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia. Mandlikova easily defeated Bunny Bruning of San Diego 6-0, 6-1, while Sands got past Mary Struthers of La Jolla, Calif., 6-1, 4-6, 7-6.

The four players who reach the semi-final stage of each futures' event earn the right to play on the senior circuit for two weeks, with players such as Chris Evert, Tracy Austin an Martina Navratilova.

Evert Wins First Match

SEATTLE (AP) — Top-seeded Chris Evert defeated Peanut Louie 6-1, 6-0 Wednesday night in a second-round singles match of a $125,000 women's professional tennis tournament.

In first-round singles play earlier in the day, Wendy Turnbull of Australia defeated Sharon Walsh 2-6, 6-4, 7-6 and Renee Richards defeated Leslie Hunt 6-3, 6-4.

Julie Harrington defeated Betsy Nagelson 6-2, 6-3, No. 6-seed Virginia Ruzici of Rumania beat Maria Fernanddex 6-4, 6-4 and No. 2-seed Ann Kiyomura downed unseeded Ruta Gerulaitis 6-4, 6-[illegible]

No.4 Kerry Reid of Australia defeated Barbara Potter 6-1, 6-4, No. 7 Marita Redondo defeated Francoise Durr 3-6, 6-3, 6-2 and Sherry Acker beat Sandy Stapp 6-1, 6-1.

MEADOWLANDS BUILDING ARENA

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — The New Jersey sports and exposition authority has awarded a $54.7-million contract for a 20,000-seat indoor arena, scheduled to be completed in 30 months.

The authority announced the Terminal Construction Corp. was low among four bidders with a price of $54,750,000 to build the Meadowlands Arena adjacent to the 76,000-seat Giants Stadium and the Meadowlands Race Track.

McLaren Sparks Saanich Triumph

CHEMAINUS — Murray McLaren fired two goals Wednesday to help Saanich Braves expand their Patterson Division lead with a 6-3 victory over Fuller Lake Flyers in South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey league play at Fuller Lake Arena.

Dan McKay, Ed Beauchemin, Bill Adkin and Scott Connor added single tallies for Braves, who held period leads of 1-0 and 3-1.

Don Bodger (2) and Ken Bell replied for the runner-up Flyers, who slipped to 10 points behind Braves.

Athletics Topple Leading Leafs

Victoria Athletics grabbed a big early lead and then held on to upset first-place Esquimalt Maple Leafs 9-6 in a South Island Big Six Hockey League game Wednesday at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Gord Neilson, Ron Trafford and John Entzminger each scored twice to spark the A's, who held period leads of 5-0 and 6-3. Singles were added by Bruce Cowick, Brian Preston and Graham Brown.

'Weekend Cowboys' To Ride at Stampede

CALGARY (CP) — The Calgary Stampede, for 67 years the last word in rodeo excellence, will feature "weekend cowboys" next July as the result of an agreement announced Tuesday night.

But officials of the Stampede board and the North American Finals Rodeo Commission told a news conference that the quality of rodeo at "the greatest outdoor show on earth" would not suffer, despite the absence of big-name cowboys.

Marshall Copithorne, the Stampede's rodeo director, said the Stampede has signed a three-year agreement with 24 rodeo associations in the United States and Canada represented by the commission, based in Billings, Mont., to bring team rodeo competition to Calgary.

The agreement with the commission came after negotiations with the Canadian Rodeo Cowboys Association collapsed. The association had supplied cowboys to the Stampede for the last 33 years.

The Stampede and the cowboys' association had been negotiating a new contract since last September, but the two sides were unable to reach agreement on two key issues—one was money and the other concerned a Stampede proposal to limit the number of cowboys by 1981.

The Stampede had offered a 10-per-cent increase in prize money each year for 1979, 1980 and 1981, but the cowboys' association wanted 17, 22 and 29 per cent of the gate receipts for the three years respectively. Last year's prize money was equivalent to 14.6 per cent of the gate receipts but the Stampede did not want to change the existing formula.

Stampede officials said the rodeo commission, which represents 14,000 "weekend cowboys," will receive prize money of $13,050 at next month's Rodeo Royal and $111,000 for the rodeo events at the Stampede in July.

The prize money is the same amount offered to the cowboys' association, Copithorne said.

The association refused to accept a Stampede proposal to limit the number of cowboys to 40 in each of the five events—steer wrestling, calf roping, bareback, saddle bronc and bull riding—for a total of 200 by 1981. The field now is open.

Bryan Lonski, executive secretary of the rodeo commission, said a sixth event will be introduced to the Stampede—girls' barrel racing.

"We don't see the quality of competition suffering," Lonski said. "Our cowboys have come up through the ranks, some are national collegiate champions but they've made some choices in their lives and they don't want to participate in the rodeos all over the continent because of the travel and the times they have to spend away from their home commitments."

DODGERS FINEST SAYS MESSERSMITH

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pitcher Andy Messersmith, who played out his option with Los Angeles Dodgers in 1976 and won a court case that led to the free-agent revolution in baseball, signed again with Los Angeles Wednesday, agreeing to a two-year contract.

Dodger vice president Al Campanis announced the signing and the 32-year-old Messersmith commented, "It's nice to be employed again. The Dodgers have the finest organization in baseball."

Terms of the contract were not announced.

Messrsmith said, "I believed in what I did in playing out my option. I helped players' rights. I did wish I had signed again with the Dodgers."

Messersmith was signed by Atlanta after playing out his option. He played with the Braves for two seasons, posting 11-11 and 5-4 records.

He suffered an arm injury in July of 1977 and spent his last three months with the Braves on the disabled list. After undergoing surgery on his right elbow, he was sold to New York Yankees on Dec. 8, 1977.

During spring training prior to the 1978 season, he suffered a shoulder separation and was used sparingly thereafter, going 0-3 in six regular-season appearances. The Yanks released him last November.

Messersmith was 20-13 in 1971 with the Angels, was 20-6 with the Dodgers in 1974 and 19-14 in 1975 before becoming a free agent.

Gymnastics Club Planned at UVic

A new gymnastics club to be formed at the University of Victoria this spring is aiming for a membership of 100.

Philip Delesalle, Canada's top-ranked male gymnast, is expected to play a key role in the formation of the community-oriented club.

Delesalle has enrolled as a part-time student at UVic and plans to study physical education full-time in the fall.

Also helping in the organization is Dave Bibby, who won every individual event in last year's Canada West University Athletic Association tournament to give UVic the championship.

UVic gymnastics coach Peter Kopac will be in charge and the club will use the McKinnon Gym. Although membership fees have not been set, it is hoped revenue will permit hiring of additional coaches.

Organizational details remain to be worked out, but the club plans to divide membership into four age groups — 8-10, 11-14, 15-18 and over 18.

The Trotters are Back With Show Biz and Skills

The Harlem Globetrotters have been called many names — such as the Houdinis of the Hardwood - and for good reason.

They combine some incredible sporting skills with comedy and their show biz is marvelled at almost as much as their basketball ability.

And it (the comedy routine) all started when the Trotters wearied from the heavy schedule when they first went on tour.

In those early years — they now have been in business for 52 seasons — the Trotters travelled everywhere, played the best team in town, performed night after night, and usually with only five players.

It was too much. So one night, just to gives his mates a breather, one of the Trotters started dribbling the ball through and around the opposition.

The fans stood and cheered at the exhibition. That started it. The Trotters put more comedy in their act — spinning the ball on one finger, playing baseball, drop-kicking the ball and sometimes scoring, using a lop-sided ball, making the home team look silly, and all the time showing their fine basketball talent.

The act was improved each year, the fans loved it and the Trotters last year played 400 games before three million people, a record, of course.

Next week they are back in town and will put on their new variety show, and basketball, at Memorial Arena, Thursday, Feb. 15. Marques Haynes, the dribbling wizard, is the playing coach and other members of the team are stars in their own right.

One of the featured performers will be Jean Claude, generally recognized as one of the world's best in the art of foot juggling. His father is the famous Rudy Bolly, one of Europe's outstanding circus performers.

The show starts at 7:30 p.m., all seats are reserved, tickets are $4, $4.50 and $5, and this is the only Island performance.

SMU Scores Fourth Win

St. Michael's University School chalked up its fourth straight victory in the Greater Victoria High School Rugby League on Wednesday, tripping host Parkland Panthers, 25-12.

In other matches, Victoria Titans topped host Spectrum 19-10 and Oak Bay Barbarians dropped visiting Claremont Spartans, 24-6.

Ross McLean set the pace for St. Michael's, which led 13-6 at the half, by kicking a penalty goal and three conversions. Randy Schafer, Tom Todesco, Neil Patterson and Don Dennerty each scored a try for SMU while Eric Jesperson scored two tries and Stefan Rheam booted both conversions for Panthers.

Curtis Westland, Greg Rushton and Andy Lister scored single tries for defending-champion Titans and Mark Wyatt kicked a drop goal and two conversions. Marty Irvine scored both tries for Spectrum and Jos Iruretegoyena booted a conversion.

Lysne, Meredith Top Fivepin List In Times Bowler-of-Week Awards

Vera Lysne and Dave Meredith, who both compete in the Monday Classic League at Town and Country Lanes, earned fivepin awards during the 16th week of the 16th annual Times Bowler-of-the-Week contest.

Vera collected women's laurels with a 293-295-204 — 792 series and Dave captured men's honors with a 320-234-348 — 902 series.

Marq Waldron captured men's fivepin laurels during the 14th week of competition with a 373-300-177 — 850 series rolled in the Monday Mixed League at Duncan Lanes. The award was originally given to Fred Hickey, a previous winner whose name was inadvertently entered again.

Trilec Edges A's

Trilec Installations came up with a well-balanced attack and a late rally Wednesday night to defeat Victoria Athletics 74-71 in a Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League game at Central Junior High School.

Darrel Johnston was the top gun for Trilec, which led 45-36 at the half, with 15 points while Bill Barber added 14, Art Plewes chipped in 13, Don Erickson came up with 12 and Bruce English canned 10.

Ken Olynek fired 26 points in a losing cause for Athletics, who charged back early in the second half to take a 59-55 lead at one point before Trilec came up with their winning comeback.

Bacchus Just Shy of Mark

KANPUR, India (CP) — Fouad Bacchus, a 24-year-old opening batsman from Guayana, had an outstanding innings of 250 as the West Indies battled to a draw with India today in the sixth and final Test Match.

The teams scored more than 1,000 without completing the first innings, the visiting cricketers putting on 452 for eight wickets in reply to India's 644 for seven declared.

The result gave India the six-match series 1-0. Five matches were drawn.

Bacchus, a Toronto resident, staked his claim to a permanent place in the lineup with a resolute innings that fell only seven runs short of Rohan Kanhai's all-time top score for a West Indian batsman.

CHRISTCHURCH, N.Z. (CP) — Effective spin bowling by Pakistan's Mushtaq Mohammad and Wasim Bari gave the visiting cricketers a victory over New Zealand in their opening Test Match Wednesday.

Lions Get Quarterback

VANCOUVER (CP) — Carlos Brown, a former National Football League quarterback has signed with the British Columbia Lions.

Brown, a 6-foot-2, 208-pound graduate of University of Pacific at Stockdale, Calif, was a 12th-round draft choice with the Packers in 1975.

He started three games for the Packers in 1976, sat out the 1977 season was cut last season from Los Angeles Rams.

MURRAY GOLDMAN

Good Evening Mrs. Johnson . . . M.G.

If you are planning to spend more than $799 on a component stereo system, make sure it sounds better than this one!

Optimum performance for the price.

That's a lot of money.
We know that $799 is a lot of money. And if you're going to spend that kind of money on a component stereo system, we want you to get the most for it.

One of the most important things a good dealer can do is help you find the system that represents the greatest value as a total system. And that means making sure the components are perfectly matched so that each operates at its optimum while complementing the other components.

The Components.
The components are recognized as some of the best brand names in the whole audio field. System $799 starts with the new Advent 1 loudspeaker. Never before have we been able to offer a complete system of this quality in this price range. Because until now, we didn't have the Advent 1. The Advent 1 is a smaller, less expensive version of the larger Advent, the most popular and most imitated speaker in North America.

The Advent 1 literally out performs speakers selling for many times the price. We matched the Advent 1s with the new Pioneer SX-680 stereo receiver and the new Pioneer PL-514 automatic return turntable. The Pioneer SX-680 has an excellent tuner section and pulls in as many FM stations—clearly and fuzz free—as the most expensive tuner we sell. It is powerful* and versatile enough to play no less than 6 program sources at any listening level you desire.

The Pioneer PL-514 with the incredible GRADO FTE+1 cartridge is accurate, reliable and easy on your records. It will make your records last and last. This is probably the best sounding $799 system ever assembled. If you spend more without hearing this combination first, you deserve everything you don't get.

We stand behind it.
Sound Hounds guarantees no service hassles. The Advent speakers are under full warranty for 5 years, the Pioneer receiver for 2 years and the Pioneer turntable for 1 year.

* 30 × 2 watts RMS 20-20,000 HZ at less than .1% T.H.D.

Russ Have Had Edge Since Epic '72 Series

NEW YORK (CP) — Since Paul Henderson scored his incredible trio of winning goals to give Team Canada a series victory over the Soviet national team in 1972, National Hockey League teams have not fared well against Soviet opponents.

When the NHL all-stars skate out against the Soviet nationals for the opening game of the Challenge Cup tonight, it will be the sixth such competition involving NHL players and Soviet teams, not counting the 1977 and 1978 world championships. The world competitions involved NHL players whose teams had missed the playoffs, but the teams were not of all-star calibre.

In the last five series between NHL select squads or regular teams and Soviet teams, the Soviets have won 13 games, lost 10 and tied three.

The first Canada-U.S.S.R. hockey series was, of course, the Team Canada venture played in September, 1972. A group of highly-talented but overconfident NHL stars managed only one win in the four games played in Canada, losing the opener 7-3 in Montreal.

They made a remarkable comeback in Moscow, culminating in Henderson's heroics and his memorable victory leap in the dying seconds of the final game. The last desperate push gave the NHL a record of four wins, three losses and a tie.

The next meeting between NHL players and the Soviets was in 1975-76, when Soviet Army and Soviet Wings played eight games with the Army and Montreal Canadiens tying 3-3 in a great New Year's Eve display of hockey skill. The NHL won two games, one against each visiting club.

The following winter, Soviet Spartak came to North America for a five-game exhibition tour. The Soviets came up winners again, defeating three weaker teams, Colorado Rockies, St. Louis Blues, and Atlanta Flames, while losing to Montreal and Vancouver Canucks.

Last month, Soviet Wings were back for a four-game series and beat Minnesota North Stars and Boston Bruins while losing to Detroit Red Wings and tying Philadelphia Flyers.

The only other encounter between a Soviet squad and major NHL opposition was in the Canada Cup in 1976. In that series, the Canadians knocked off the Soviets 3-1 before going on to beat the Czechs and win the cup.

The Challenge Cup is being billed as Team NHL and is not a Canadian all-star squad.

Italian Takes Slalom Race

OSLO (Reuter) — Leonardo David scored Italy's first victory in two years in men's World Cup slalom skiing Wednesday when he withstood a second-run challenge by Ingemar Stenmark of Sweden by seven-100ths of a second.

KEEGAN HELPS ENGLAND WIN

LONDON (Reuter) — England beat Northern Ireland 4-0 in their European soccer championship Group One match at Wembley on Wednesday.

Meanwhile, Scotland was frustrated by the arctic weather which has hit much of Britain. Its scheduled Group Two match against Belgium in Glasgow was called off because of the frozen pitch.

At Wembley in the early stages both defences looked jittery but itt was England who achieved the vital breakthrough in the 25th minute.

Jennings was beaten again a minute after halftime when Everton striker Bob Latchford finished off a thrilling move which split the Irish.

Three minutes later England had the game sewn up. Midfielder Trevor Brooking floated over a corner and big centre half Dave Watson of Manchester City was left clear to head firmly into the back of the net.

Israel Snaps Sports Links

TEL AVIV (Reuter) — The Israel Olympic Committee is breaking off all sports links with South Africa as a prelude to the 1980 Moscow Olympics.

The action, taken to avoid jeopardizing Israel's entry for the Moscow Olympics, will end the frequent sports competitions between Israel and South Africa which have existed for many years.

TOSHIBA

While other stereo stores talk about specifications, Young's does something about it! Now, Toshiba SA420 receivers have certified performance. Each unit is inspected and tested before you buy, so finding your set "dead on arrival" is a thing of the past. And you get a detailed report, on your set, before you buy.

For instance, Toshiba's 25 watt receiver typically measures out at 33-35 watts. And Toshiba guarantees distortion below 0.4% (but again, typical figures are 0.95% and as low as 0.06%)!

Step up to Toshiba — we'll give you top dollar for your old set, and you'll get Young's 7 year written guarantee. But, hurry — the best ones go first. 249.95

TROPICS NEXT for Tegucigalpa, but she left it too late to miss an eastern winter. The former Imperial Oil ship was given a complete overhaul before going to new owners in South America, but freeze-up arrived before she could sail. Waiting for breakup, she's beached in Ramsey's Bay in the Old Welland Canal.

Lab Tests a Waste: MD

MONTREAL (CP) — Billions of dollars are being wasted annually on diagnostic tests that aren't reliable in identifying medical problems in patients, says Dr. Donald Young of the renowned Mayo Clinic in the United States.

Young, 45, criticized "fishing trips looking for something wrong when there's no justification for doing tests in advance.

"This results in a low yield in terms of useful information," he told a news conference Wednesday during the annual convention of the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada.

Old-time doctors who relied on talking to their patients about their problems probably did a better job of discovering an illness than the new breed who do a lot of testing without being personally familiar with the patient, he said.

Young estimated that 75 per cent of diagnoses can be made when a physician interviews his patient, another 15 to 20 per cent results from a physical examination and only five to 10 per cent can be culled from lab tests, x-rays, ECG tests on the heart, etc.

Screening patients for various diseases with random testing, he said, offers inconclusive results which only cause people anxiety.

For example, a test which is used to check for cancer of the prostate — testing the acid phosphate level in the blood — can prove negative when the cancer is confined to the prostate and hasn't spread through the body. But the test can also show negative for other reasons, even when there's no cancer present.

"The false values could give you so many problems . . . It's just not worth it."

Young said tests regularly given to most adult patients should be pared down to a urinalysis to check for glucose and protein in the urine and a blood test to check for the levels of hemoglobin, glucose, cholesterol and serum.

Doctors and patients unnecessarily seek more sophisticated tests because, in part, they are unduly influenced by what they read.

"If a test is discussed in the New England Journal of Medicine one week, all the doctors in the hospital will want it the next," he said with a smile.

As for the patients, it's the test suggested in the latest Readers' Digest.

Quebec Credit Warning

OTTAWA (CP) — Claiming he was not trying to frighten Quebecers, Justice Minister Marc Lalonde released a report Wednesday implying an independent Quebec would have difficulty trying to borrow abroad.

But the report, prepared by Doublas Fullerton, a former financial adviser to Quebec Liberal governments, provides no statistical evidence to show Quebec would experience problems borrowing.

Fullerton told reporters Quebec currently faces no problems borrowing because international financiers do not envisage Quebec separating and feel confident the federal government would assist the province should it encounter difficulties in repaying loans.

But the impact of separation on Quebec's creditworthiness would be traumatic, he said.

Lalonde released the report as part of a series entitled Understanding Canada. Each report is designed to show Quebec separation would be economically damaging to the province.

The so-called war of figures between Ottawa and Quebec City has evoked counter-reports from the Parti Quebecois showing the province is an economic loser by remaining in Confederation.

The Task Force on Canadian Unity condemned politicians who issue such reports.

A companion study on the flow of cash in and out of Quebec was included with the Fullerton study.

For example, there was a net inflow of capital by Quebec's chartered banks of $600 million during the second quarter of 1978.

First Major Snow Buries Edmonton

EDMONTON (CP) — After months of comparatively light snowfalls, Edmonton suffered its first real storm of the winter Wednesday, bringing chaos to the city.

Police were swamped by so many accident reports they couldn't investigate them all. Buses were running behind schedule and the hill roads leading to the city's north and south sides from the Saskatchewan River core were slippery. Traffic had to be diverted around some of them.

Some flights at the Edmonton's municipal airport were delayed and, in outlying districts, officials of country school boards considered closing schools for the day.

Weather forecasters said more snow is expected.

More than 45 minor accidents were reported, but police believe many more were settled between drivers. None of the accidents caused serious injury, although a woman was sent to hospital with cuts and bruises after a car collided with a transit bus.

Snow accumulation in the city amounted to four centimetres in about 24 hours.

Bill Laidlaw, of Environment Canada's Edmonton office, said temperatures may moderate by the weekend, rising to around minus 15 Celsius. Blizzard warnings were issued for southwestern Alberta, with the Coronation area expecting 5 to 10 centimetres of snow and winds up to 50 kilometres per hour.

In Fort McMurray, meanwhile, seven families returned to their homes after being evacuated Tuesday following flooding in a north-end housing development.

Water from a nearby town reservoir stood about one metre deep in a parkade, damaging about 100 cars.

Job Program Starts to Work

OTTAWA (CP) — Employment Minister Bud Cullen boasts about a job-creation program producing 500 jobs weekly but the figure really only applies to last week — so far.

Until the week of Jan. 26 to Feb. 2, when 519 jobs were created through the employment tax credit program, the weekly total was lower. In many weeks, it was about half that number.

However, officials say the program has in recent weeks gained momentum, slowly creeping up to the 519 peak last week. Cullen cited the program and the figure in the Commons this week when defending the government's job-producing record against opposition critics of high unemployment.

In an interview Wednesday, Cullen said an advertising and seminar campaign by his department within the business community has doubled the success of the program which critics recommended scrapping three months ago.

"That's bearing some fruit . . . . It's picking up," he said.

Under the program, established last March, the government deducts from corporate income taxes up to $2 an hour for each new employee a company hires for jobs that otherwise would not have existed.

The $100-million program, with a target of 50,000 one-year jobs in two years, has so far resulted in 13,076 jobs.

When only 8,000 jobs had been created by October, opposition critics roasted Cullen for failure and his officials were soon busy simplifying the rules to make it more popular.

"It's taken quite a while to convince employers that the tax credit is equivalent to cash," one official said.

"The pace picked up once the employers overcame the novelty of it."

Every day, Murray Barnes goes to jail.

Not the kind of occupation most of us would choose to spend 8 hours a day at. For any amount of money.

So what is it about the job that has made Murray stay with it for over 12 years?

It certainly isn't the long hours spent on the tiers.

Or the lonely night shifts in the protective custody wing.

Or living with the constant tension that an explosive situation could erupt at any time.

For Murray Barnes the satisfaction comes from knowing he's doing a difficult job. And doing it well.

It also comes in knowing he's providing a necessary service to the people of B.C.

Murray Barnes is only one of the more than 43,000 members of the B.C. Government Employees' Union working for you all over the Province.

At all kinds of jobs.

Under all kinds of working conditions.

All people whose skill, experience and dedication have made our provincial public employees among the most efficient anywhere in North America today.

And that's something to be proud of.

So the next time you're going to the office, think about Murray Barnes going to jail. For you.

TEACHER CHARGED AS FAGIN

EDMONTON (CP) — A high school student told a court Wednesday that one of his teachers asked him to shoplift items from city stores.

The student said he had been receiving one-third the retail value of the goods and, when he stopped shoplifting, was threatened with failing grades.

Patrick Begoray, 27, former science teacher at Eastglen Composite high school in Edmonton, went on trial Wednesday on five charges of counselling an offence, theft, and possession of stolen property.

The student said he had stolen a number of items for Begoray, including cross-country ski boots and ski jackets.

He said Begoray had organized a shoplifting ring equipped with lists specifying what to steal and, in the case of clothing, what sizes to steal.

The student, then in Grade 11, said the ring operated in 1975 and 1976. Police were called in after he told other teachers what was going on, he said.

Dief Sees Soviet Threat

OTTAWA (CP) — John Diefenbaker appealed Wednesday for a special two-day Commons debate to deal with what he termed "the massive Soviet military expansion posing a frightening threat to the West."

The former Conservative prime minister referred to the "increasingly alarming situation" faced by freedom-loving nations in Europe, Africa and Asia because of Soviet domination.

The 83-year-old Diefenbaker said in his opinion Canadians and the western world generally have been lulled into a false sense of security.

His unsuccessful motion sought a debate before Parliament is dissolved for the coming election to discuss "the terrifying international situation and the need for action to be recommended and taken by Canada to meet the situation . . . before it is too late."

20 Tons Of Turkey Stolen

TORONTO (CP) — What do you do with $35,000 worth of frozen turkeys so soon after Christmas?

Thieves who broke into a Swift Canadian Co. Ltd. plant Tuesday are faced with that problem.

Stan Medland, Swift personnel director, said Wednesday that thieves stole 40,000 pounds of frozen turkey packed in more than 1,000 cases.

Medland, who described the theft as a "remarkably well-planned and executed caper," said thieves broke into a Swift storage garage in Mississauga, Ont., just west of Toronto, where they stole a truck.

They hooked onto an empty Swift trailer and drove to the Toronto plant where they exchanged the empty trailer for a loaded one.

Medland said the thieves were not challenged by the guard on their way into the plant because they were driving a Swift truck.

The truck and trailer stolen from the company are worth more than $70,000, he said.

FORTUNE FOR FAULT

TORONTO (CP) — A package of four Canadian stamps with upside-down centres sold for $92,500 at an auction Wednesday attended by dealers acting for anonymous Canadian collectors.

Only 160 of the five-cent stamps, called Seaway Inverted because the centre portion was upside down, were released by the printers in 1959 before the mistake was noticed.

One used inverted stamp sold for $17,000.

FRANCE'S PREMIER IN OTTAWA

OTTAWA (CP) — French Premier Raymond Barre arrived here this morning with the touchy issue of French relations with Quebec and Ottawa expected to highlight talks with Prime Minister Trudeau.

Barre will be in Ottawa until Saturday when he leaves for Montreal. He goes to Quebec City Monday for discussions with Premier Rene Levesque and other provincial leaders before leaving the country Tuesday.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS of continuous service in the Royal Jubilee Hospital Auxiliary was recognized this week for Mrs. Shirley Milligan, right, when she received her 25-year pin. Here, she examins the original 25-year pin worn by Mrs. Barbara Steel, a charter member of the auxiliary.

Whelan Slims, Raps Waste

EDMONTON (CP) — Federal Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan picked at his carrots, passed on the strawberry shortcake and ripped into the rest of the country for wasting food.

The minister, who has embarked on an effort to melt away 32 of his 242 pounds, told a local Liberal luncheon Wednesday that most Canadians waste about as much food as he is currently allowed to eat.

He said they should start worrying more about the food they waste and the energy expended to produce the waste than they do about food prices.

A Toronto study has estimated Canadians waste between 250 and 300 pounds of food each a year, he said.

Canadians seem to feel waste is in their heritage, the minister said from behind his Don't Feed Me button. And they complain about the cost of food when they can eat for as little as $1 a day by consuming more cheese, soybeans and vegetables.

Boeing, Blais Keep Mum On Twice-Paid Consultant

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Jean-Jacques Blais and the Boeing Co. of Seattle refused Wednesday to name a consultant who received payments for Boeing aircraft sales in Canada.

Blais said in the Commons he has already declared there was no impropriety in any payment so there is no reason for identifying the Boeing consultant.

He was replying to Allan McKinnon, Conservative defence critic, who has been questioning Blais for three straight days on double payments by Boeing to foreign consultants — one payment direct to the consultant and another into a foreign bank account.

The solicitor-general has said an RCMP investigation has found no grounds for laying charges against anyone. The RCMP investigation followed a U.S. inquiry into Boeing payments for aircraft deals in several countries including Canada.

The U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) is seeking full disclosure from Boeing on $52 million in payments to foreign consultants in the early 1970s. Boeing sold planes to Air Canada and several other Canadian airlines and the defence department in that period.

A Boeing spokesman in Seattle, Wash., said in a telephone interview Wednesday he could not reveal the name of the consultant. Boeing has secured a court order which requires the SEC not to give out the names of the consultants in this case, he said.

Seat Belts Promoted

OTTAWA (CP) — The transport department is beginning a six-week advertising program today aimed at getting people to use car seat belts.

There will be radio and television advertisements and outdoor signs used in the campaign.

"Half the occupants of motor vehicles killed in road accidents last year would have lived if they had been wearing seat belts," says the department.

BANK'S HOURS FOIL ROBBERS

BRESLAU, Ont. (CP) — What A Difference A Minute Makes may become the theme song for two would-be thieves police have dubbed the Late Bank Robbers.

Since there were no customers in the bank at 2:59 p.m., manager Shirley Killion closed her Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce branch.

Exactly one minute later, at the official closing time, two masked men armed with a shotgun or rifle approached the door but could not get in.

"They rattled the door and walked away," the manager said. They did not try to force their way into the branch in this community about five kilometres east of Kitchener.

‘Forgetful’ Bilinguals Backed

OTTAWA (CP) — The Public Service Alliance of Canada will provide legal assistance as required to bilingual members planning to boycott one of their languages at work, PSAC president Andy Stewart said Wednesday.

Stewart told a news conference the union fully supports members who plan to “forget” one of their languages as a protest against government withdrawal of bilingualism bonuses.

He said the PSAC, representing 180,000 federal employees, will also make an official complaint to the Human Rights Commission on grounds that the government is abrogating an agreement to pay bilingual employees an annual $800 bonus.

About 46,000 members currently receive the bonuses. The agreement was to have remained in effect until Dec. 31, 1983, but the government decided last August to abolish them as of March 31, Stewart said.

The PSAC will “not accept the employer’s decision to repudiate a contract,” he added. “If we tolerate this today, what will be next?”

PSAC vice-president Paul Gascon said bilingual civil servants, particularly those in the Montreal region, indicated last September that they were considering a language boycott.

STEWART
. . . broken agreement

At the time, however, the alliance thought it better not to support them because it did not believe the government would actually withdraw the bonuses, Gascon said.

Stewart said he did not know whether all members who receive the bonuses would “forget” their second language. The boycott would probably depend on local initiative.

Some bilingual members in the Montreal region might begin next week, he said, while others might wait until April when the bonuses are due to end.

In Montreal, Jean Bergeron, Quebec director of the PSAC, said about 35,000 bilingual public servants in the city could be involved in the protest campaign.

Since the first language of most of them is French, they would likely refuse to speak English to the public at such offices as the unemployment insurance commission and the immigration and revenue departments.

“We don’t like to do that, but we really don’t have any other choice,” Bergeron said.

Similar protests were staged sporadically a couple of years ago, when the workers were first campaigning to win bilingualism bonuses. Many English Montrealers solved the problem simply by switching to French when dealing with government offices.

ZONING BY-LAWS

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

NOTICE is hereby given that all persons who deem their interest in property affected by the following proposed by-laws will be afforded an opportunity to be heard before the Municipal Council on the matters contained therein at a Public Hearing to be held at the Royal Oak School (Gymnasium), 4564 West Saanich Road, on Wednesday, February 14th, 1979, commencing at 7:30 p.m.:

(a) “ZONING BY-LAW, 1978, AMENDMENT BY-LAW, 1979, NO. 4125”

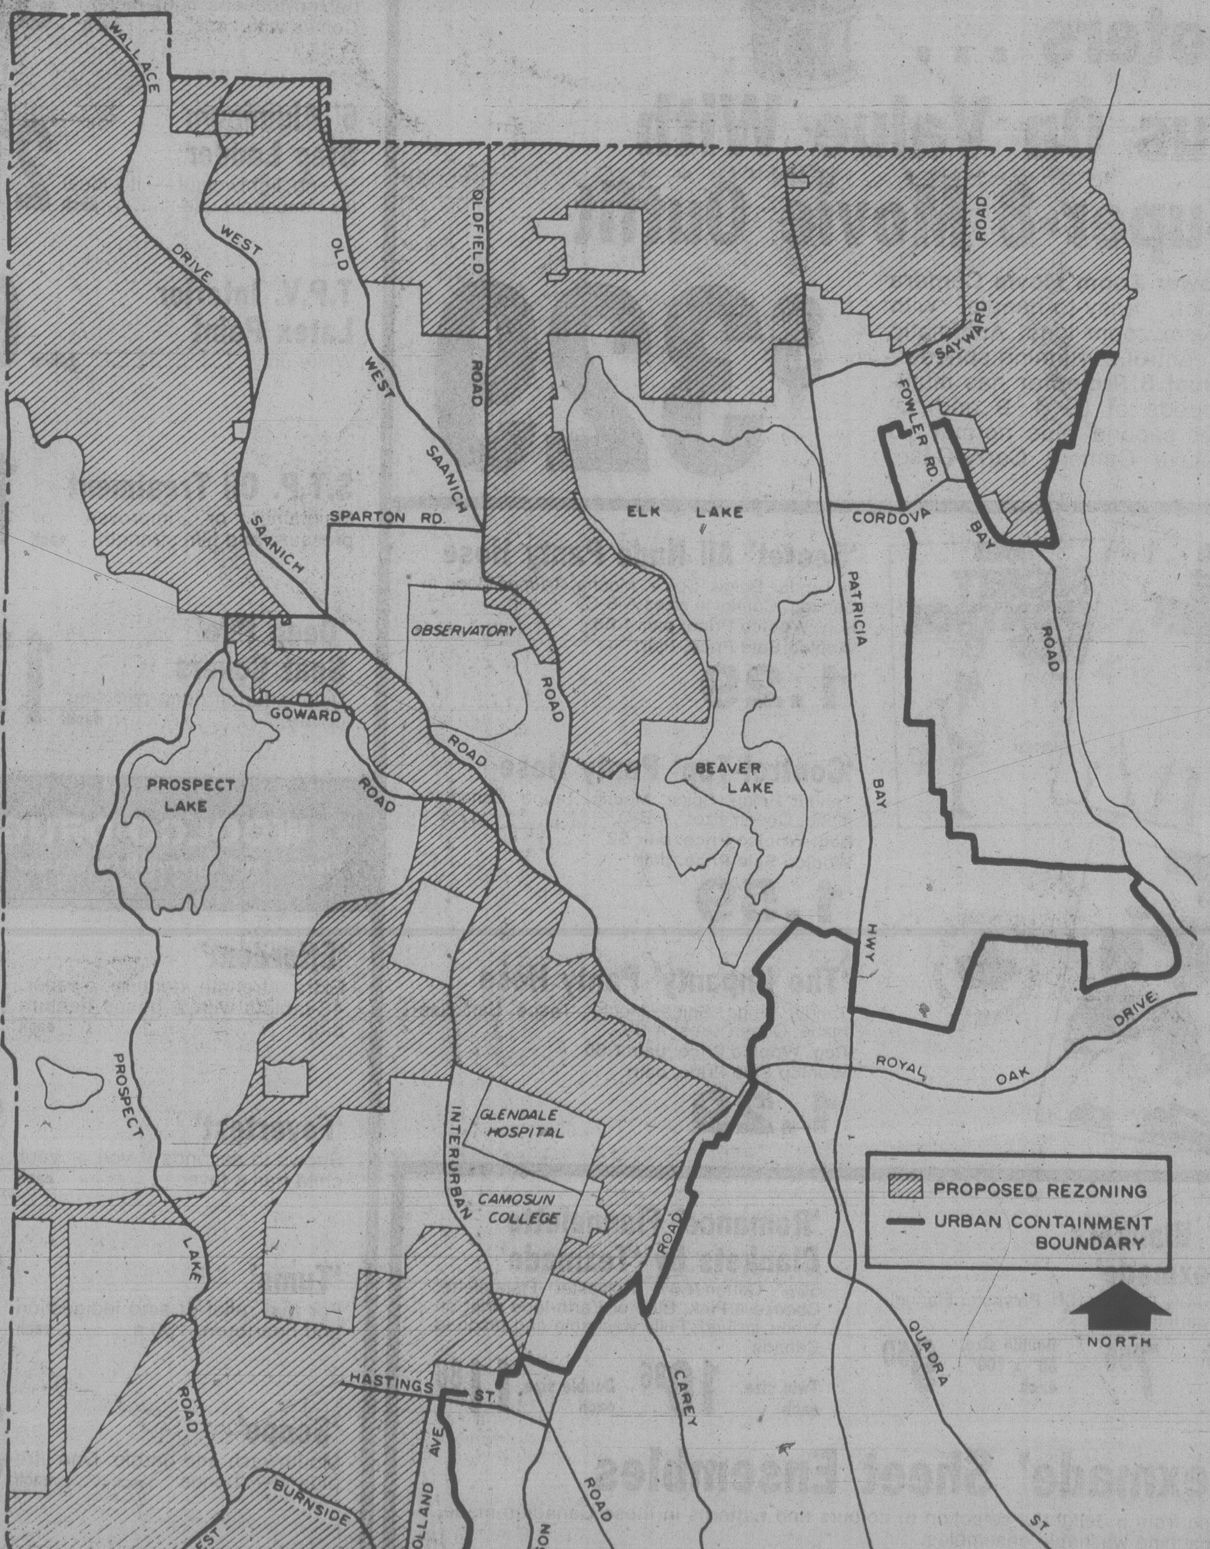
To rezone Lot 2, Section 44, Victoria District, Plan 32196 (4033 Hollydene Place) from Zone District RS-20 (detached housing) to Zone District RS-12 (detached housing). (Adjourned to this date from the Public Hearing of January 29/79).

(b) “ZONING BY-LAW, 1978, AMENDMENT BY-LAW, 1979, NO. 4228”.

To rezone a portion of Lot A, Section 44, Victoria District, Plan 12355 (4031 Hollydene Place) from Zone District RS-20 (detached housing) to Zone District RS-12 (detached housing).

(c) “ZONING BY-LAW, 1978, AMENDMENT BY-LAW, 1979, NO. 4230”.

The intent of the proposed amendment is to raise the subdivision minimums for part of the Rural Area of Saanich lying outside the Urban Containment Boundary from 2 hectares (4.9 acres) to 4 hectares (9.9 acres). This will result in rezoning the subject properties from a Zone district with a two-hectare subdivision minimum to a Zone District with a four-hectare subdivision minimum The properties subject to rezoning are either in the Agricultural Land Reserve area or in the Conservation Areas. This will result in rezoning property presently designated as Zone District A-1 (rural) to Zone District A-4 (rural); property presently designated as Zone District A-2 (rural) to Zone District A-5 (rural); property presently designated as Zone District CS-4 (recreation commercial), to Zone District CS-4A (recreation commercial); and property presently designated as Zone District P-1 (civic institutional) to Zone District A-4 (rural). These areas are shown hatched on the map accompanying this notice.



A copy of the proposed By-laws may be inspected at the Municipal Hall, 770 Vernon Avenue, between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., Monday to Friday, except Statutory Holidays.

Rights Body Rapped On Frog Stance

The B.C. Human Rights Commission was slapped by one of its former members at Wednesday night's Victoria Labor Council meeting for failing to live up to its mandate.

Larry Ryan, council secretary and one of the first commissioners, made the remark in regard to the commission's decision not to comment on Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm's now-famous song in which he used the word "frog" in reference to French-Canadians.

Council delegates passed a motion to have the trade union body express its disappointment to the commission for the decision.

The motion was put by Sohan Sabb, a member of the International Woodworkers of America, who said the commission was not living up to its obligations and responsibilities.

Ryan said Vander Zalm's remark was a test case in light of the current situation in Quebec.

The delegates also agreed to sign and circulate among their members the so-called People To People petition being circulated across Canada which invites the people of Quebec to remain Canadians.

However, some were opposed to the petition including one member of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, who said he was "getting tired of feeling apologetic."

He said he was not prepared to get down on his knees to the people of Quebec and added perhaps it is time they signed a petition of their own stating that they wished to remain in Confederation "and then we would know that these people are not playing both ends of the stick."

The petition was explained by Keith Cowan, one of the national organizers, who said the signed statement is needed to break down an "iron curtain of propaganda" which seems to be emphasizing the rift between French and English speaking Canadians.

He mentioned Vander Zalm, whom he jokingly referred to as "one of your favorite choirboys," and his song which Cowan said is being sung throughout Quebec as an example of how other Canadians feel about those in that province.

He said the petition doesn't deal with any of the fundamental questions, such as Quebec's right to self-determinatiom, but is merely an expression from English Canadians who want "Quebecois members of our family to remain Canadian."

Handicap Home Supported

Victoria Labor Council, despite some objections, voted Wednesday night to back the Capital Region Association for the Mentally Handicapped's fight to establish a group home for eight young adults at 937 Redfern.

Some neighborhood residents strongly oppose the move because they feel a group home of any kind will lower property values.

Council secretary Larry Ryan said it is not so much a question of property values as a matter of human values.

"We can't relegate handicapped people to the ghettos," he said.

He was supported by other speakers but John Hutchinson of The Newspaper Guild said although he personally supports the idea of such group homes, he questions what business the council has in dealing with such matters.

"What right have we in the trade union movement to tell these people what they should or should not do?" he asked.

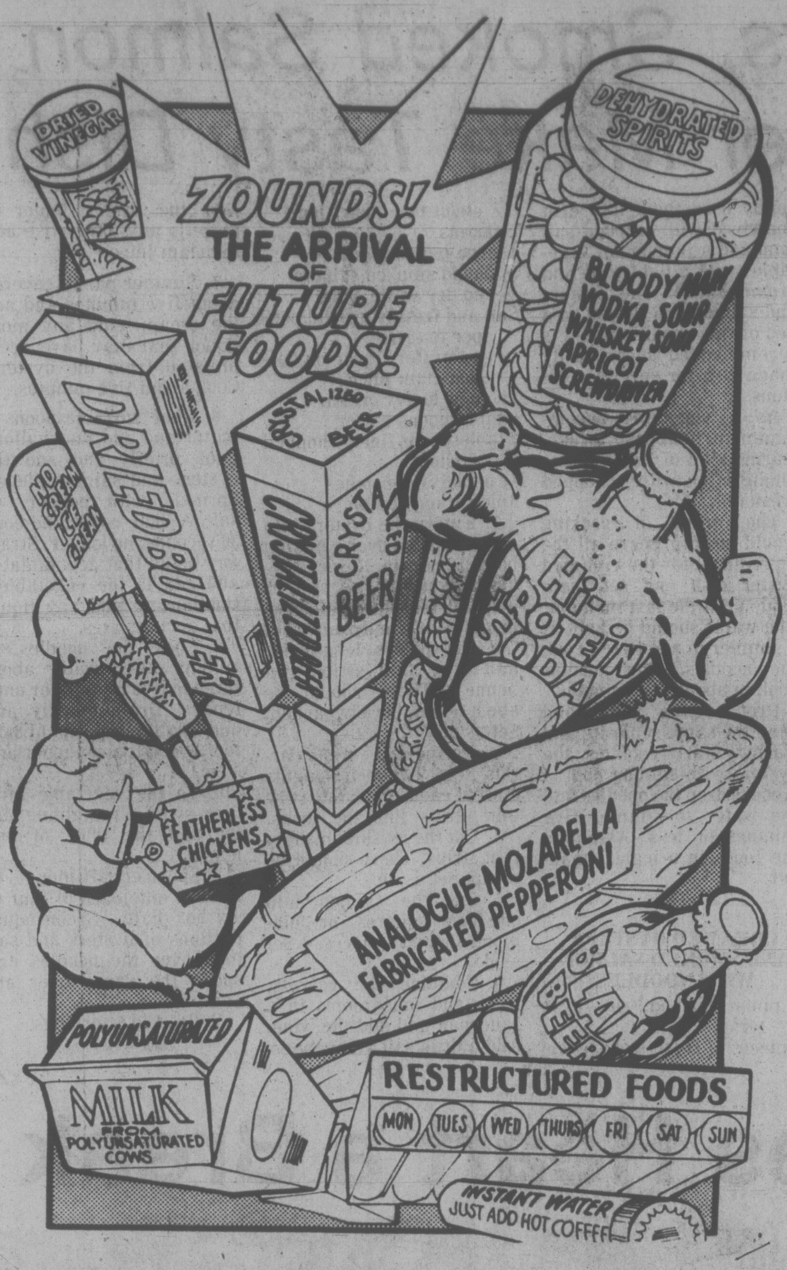
What! Phoney Pepperoni and Kooky Caviar?



F O O D & nutrition

By PATRICIA WELLS

Is this the food of the future? Pizza with fabricated pepperoni and analog mozzarrella, polyunsaturated prime ribs of beef with high-C mashed potatoes; imitation caviar and sauteed soft-shell lobster?

By the year 2000, what meat will the meat and potatoes man be eating? Will tomatoes still be red and asparagus green? Will shrimp still come from the sea and oranges grow on trees?

Food scientists, nutritionists and food activists can't answer these questions with certainty, of course, but they do see definite trends emerging.

Consumers can look forward to leaner, more-muscular chicken, giant 30-pound turkeys, low-fat beef and more vine-ripened tomatoes and zucchini grown indoors.

In supermarkets, expect a drastic decrease in frozen foods and a proliferation of dried products, including powdered martinis, a crystalized, high-protein sweetener made from wheat bran, and even dehydrated soy sauce, butter, and vinegar. We will see more "nutrified" snack foods, including high-protein cola drinks.

Two trends were mentioned prominently and frequently. The first is aquaculture, a rapidly expanding science involving the growth of marine life in controlled environments. Aquaculture, a practice already common in Israel and Asia, could lead in this country to an abundant supply of fresh lobster, shrimp, salmon and trout, as well as cultured versions of marine foods yet to be bred.

The second trend is an increasing growth of the vegetarian movement, with an over-all decreased dependence upon animal protein.

And no matter what the changes, the future food supply will be the result of concerns over the cost of energy, the apparent health dangers of a high-fat diet, and the need to exploit sources of vegetable and fish protein.

Most of those looking at the future of food agree that fabricated foods and whole foods will continue to exist side by side, with advocates of each movement becoming more vociferous in defence of their position.

Yet there is virtual agreement on one subject: A diet of little red pills to fulfil all our needs is not within view of the crystal ball. Nor is a regimen of such revolutionary (some would say revolting) foods as grasshoppers, crickets, termites and worms. They will never again gain consumer acceptance, according to the experts.

"But we're going to see more fabricated foods, and more fabricated foods indentical to nature," insisted Richard D. McCormick, a leading food technologist and consultant to industry. Like the imitation caviar that is supposed to look and taste like the real thing, "many fabricated foods are already in the grasp of technology, but not in the grasp of marketing."

In other words, as soon as consumers learn to live with and like scrambled egg substitutes, dehydrated champagne and all varieties of meats formed from textured vegetable proteins, these foods will proliferate.

Many foods, such as pizza, will look much the same as they do today, but the ingredients will change drastically. Instead of a spicy all-beef pepperoni and whole milk mozzarella topping, the pizza of the future might include a mozzarella fabricated essentially from vegetable fat.

McCormick forecast vast changes in the supermarket, predicting almost a total demise of frozen foods, because of the high energy costs required to ship and store these foods in the market as well as in the home. He also suggested that new food preservation techniques, mostly various methods of drying, would take over, so "we can stop spending millions of dollars each year to ship water around the country."

Make Vegetables Fun

Most kids are fussy eaters at some time, either at a young age or as a teenager.

According to the experts, food crisis in teens is best avoided by developing "good taste" early in life. Since eating vegetables is a common complaint in many households, food consultants at Food Advisory Division, Agriculture Canada, have a few pointers for frustrated parents.

Canada's Food Guide recommends four to five servings of fruits and vegetables every day, including at least two vegetables. It also suggests choosing a variety of vegetables — cooked, raw or their juices — and including yellow or green leafy vegetables.

Children like color in their meals. Brightly colored vegetables such as carrots, sweet potato, broccoli, squash, corn and tomatoes will perk up any meal. A variety in shape and texture is equally important: carrot sticks, coins, cubes, mashed.

It has been shown that children like canned vegetables as well as fresh and frozen. With such a variety of Canadian vegetables on the market, there shouldn't be any problem in serving a different vegetable every day of the week. However, when introducing a new vegetable, it's a good idea to serve it with a favorite food.

Food should be fun. Give a child the pleasure of taking part in preparing the food that will be at the table.

For example, most children seem to enjoy potatoes that are baked or boiled, then mashed. The following recipe could be just the thing to share with Mom and Dad before sitting down at a relaxed meal.

POTATO CHEESE BALLS

125 ml grated cheddar cheese
3 ml salt
0.5 ml pepper
500 ml mashed potatoes
1 egg
15 ml milk
75 ml dry bread crumbs

Grate cheese on piece of waxed paper. Mix cheese, salt, and pepper with potatoes in a bowl. Shape potato mixture in 3 cm balls. Crack egg into bowl and heat gently with a fork. Mix the beaten egg and milk together. Dip the potato balls in the egg and milk mixture, then roll in crumbs. Place balls on greased cookie sheet. Bake at 230 degree C until browned (10 to 15 min.). Makes about 20 balls.

MP SOUNDS NUTRITION WARNING

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadians are eating their way into their graves, says New Democratic MP Lorne Nystrom.

"Nutrition and preventative medicine are the real issues and challenges for today's industrial society," said Nystrom, MP for Yorkton-Melville, Sask., said in the Commons.

"Eating patterns since the Second World War have become absolutely frightening," he said, blaming increased consumption of sugar, fat and salty food.

The consumption of dairy and fresh fruit had dropped about 25 per cent while soft drinks, pastry and potato chips were up more than 80 per cent.

There were more than 1,800 chemicals or additives in manufactured, processed or refined foods. Heart disease was virtually unknown at the turn of the century. Health costs to Canadians amounted to about $7 billion annually.

"About 2.5 billion could be saved from an improved nutritional program."

Nearly 50 per cent of Canadians were overweight and six of the top 10 diseases are related to diet.

Nystrom was speaking during debate on a bill to drop a $500 million federal fund for planning, constructing and equipping medical training centres because of government spending restraints.

60-MINUTE GOURMET

Oysters, Smoked Salmon Together Make Tasty Dish

By PIERRE FRANEY

There is no doubt that tastes in food are sometimes cyclical. During the 1930s, when I was an apprentice and then a young chef at the Restaurant Drouant in Paris, there were numerous dishes that appeared on Paris menus that contained or centred on cooked oysters. And then for a long time cooked oysters were seldom heard of on French menus.

There is a story, although I don't believe a word of it, that when Georges Auguste Escoffier was the reigning chef of Europe and presided over the kitchen of the Ritz, he was asked by a wealthy American lady who lived at the hotel to prepare a turkey with an oyster stuffing for one of her holiday meals. He refused on the grounds that turkey or any other kind of fowl and oysters were incompatible if not "cannibalistic."

Within recent memory, however, I have noticed that more and more cooked oysters are appearing on the menus of some of the most famous restaurants both in this country and abroad.

Actually, cooked oysters (if they are not overcooked) are quite special, and I recently used them in a dish contrived with smoked salmon and a julienne of vegetables with a light wine and cream sauce. The oysters and salmon are served on a bed of fine noodles, and it is recommended as an easily made dish for special occasions.

As a vegetable accompaniment I propose a lukewarm salad of green beans vinaigrette with chopped fresh dill.

The order of cooking would be to prepare all the ingredients for the creamed oyster dish and set them aside until the last moment. The water should be kept at a simmer in a kettle to cook the noodles. The noodles cook in about five minutes.

Prepare the salad and keep the same separate and warm. Start cooking the oysters with salmon and as it cooks drop the noodles into the water to simmer five minutes or less. Assemble the foods in a logical manner.

CREAMED OYSTERS AND SMOKED SALMON WITH NOODLES

2 pints shucked, raw oysters
4 pieces of fresh leeks, each about two inches long
2 carrots
4 large mushrooms
½ pound smoked salmon
½ cup dry white wine
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
½ cup oyster liquor or bottled clam juice
1½ cups heavy cream
6 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons finely chopped shallots
½ pound find noodles
Juice of one lemon

1. Empty the oysters into a sieve placed over a mixing bowl. Let drain. Reserve the oyster liquor.

2. Cut the pieces of leeks in half. Rinse and drain well. Cut the pieces lengthwise into very thin strips (julienne). There should be about a cup, loosely packed. Set aside.

3. Scrape and cut the carrots into two-inch lengths and cut each length into very thin strips like the leeks.

4. Cut the mushrooms into thin strips. There should be a cup. Set aside.

5. Cut the salmon into one-inch squares or diamond-shaped pieces. Set aside.

6. Combine the carrots, leeks and mushrooms in a saucepan and add the wine. Add a little salt and pepper. Add the oyster liquor if there is any; otherwise add the clam juice.

7. Simmer partly covered about five minutes and add the cream. Add any more liquor that may have accumulated from the oysters. Cook about five minutes.

8. Heat two tablespoons of butter and add the shallots. Cook briefly and add the oysters and salmon pieces. Sprinkle with pepper; no salt. At boil, cover and cook 30 seconds, no longer. Strain any liquid that accumulates and add to the vegetables. Continue to add any liquid that accumulates.

9. Cook the noodles in boiling salted water about three to five minutes or until tender. Drain quickly and add two tablespoons of butter. Add salt and pepper and stir.

10. To the vegetable mixture, swirl in remaining butter and the juice of one lemon.

11. Spoon equal amounts of noodles onto each of four to six hot plates. Spoon equal portions of oysters and salmon over the noodles and spoon the sauce over all. Serve hot.

Yield: 4 to 6 servings.

Recipe Gives Heart a Break

For several years February has been designated in Canada as Heart Month and has stressed the importance of low-cholesterol diets. Although the emphasis on serving low-cholesterol foods to help reduce the risk of heart attacks is no longer a new idea, new recipes incorporating these principles are always welcomed.

So brighten your winter menus and give your family a year-round Valentine by serving Chicken D'Or, a low-cholesterol recipe developed in the Reckitt & Colman Canada Test Kitchens in Toronto.

As in all low-cholesterol recipes, it is important to remove skin and excess fat from chicken before cooking because this is where the majority of cholesterol is concentrated. Then brown the chicken pieces in a small amount of liquid vegetable oil.

Enhance the chicken with a golden delectable sauce, using prepared mustard and maple syrup, then garnish with colorful peach slices. A tossed green salad with Zesty Salad Dressing can be prepared in a jiffy while the chicken finishes cooking. Brown sugar and Worchestershire sauce add an appealing flavor to this homemade oil-and-vinegar dressing.

CHICKEN D'OR (Golden Chicken)

¼ cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 frying chicken, cut up
2 tablespoons oil
1 can (14-oz.) sliced peaches
3 tablespoons prepared mustard
2 tablespoons maple blended syrup
2 tablespoons chopped pimiento

Combine flour, salt, and pepper. Remove skin from chicken if desired; shake chicken in seasoned flour until well coated. Brown in oil in large skillet. Drain peaches, saving ¾ cup syrup. Combine the syrup with mustard and maple syrup; pour over chicken. Cover; simmer 40 to 50 minutes, until chicken is tender. Stir in peaches and pimiento; heat 5 minutes longer.

Yield: 4 to 5 servings.

ZESTY SALAD DRESSING

⅔ cup oil
⅓ cup vinegar
1 tablespoon brown sugar
1 tablespoon French's Worcestershire Sauce
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon French's paprika
¼ teaspoon black pepper

Combine ingredients.

What better way to celebrate Heart Month than to try this low-cholesterol recipe for skillet-browned, peach-garnished chicken?

Child Year: Nutrition Vital

Food for Thought

By Dr. Jean Mayer and
Dr. Johanna Dwyer

This is International Year of the Child. We can expect to hear a good deal about ways to improve child health. A notable example is a new report from the nutrition committees of the American Academy of Pediatrics and the Canadian Pediatric Society. The report strongly favors breast feeding.

We have discussed the many problems that can arise when large numbers of mothers in developing countries choose formulas over breast feeding. Even in industrialized countries where we have higher standards of housing, sanitation and health services as well as a large number of excellent formulas that almost equal mother's milk, the report concludes that "newer information suggests that significant advantages still exist for the breast-fed infant."

The chief reason is that although we have developed some very good infant formulas, human milk is still nutritionally superior for human babies. Here are a few specifics in the report:

—Fats: While many adults invite a problem by consuming too much fats, particularly cholesterol, this is not true for babies. Fats are essential for energy and normal growth. The fats in human milk are better absorbed than those in cow's milk.

Also, vegetable oils replace butterfat in some of the newer formulas. This increases fat absorption, but the oils also are higher in polynsaturated fatty acids. While this may be ideal for adults trying to reduce their serum cholesterol levels, it raises two potential problems in infants. Polyunsaturated fats increase the body's requirement for vitamin E, and in premature infants fed a formula without a vitamin E supplement, hemolytic anemia (in which red blood cells break down very rapidly) can result.

In addition, removing the cholesterol may be undesirable. Researchers have speculated that dietary cholesterol may be useful in forming the baby's nerve tissue and bile acids. Others have theorized that cholesterol may help infants develop enzymes that will help normalize cholesterol metabolism and keep the levels in the blood low throughout adult life.

Protein: Surprisingly, there is less protein in human milk than in cows milk. Moreover, its composition is also different. As you know, protein is essential to growth, and the protein in mother's milk is ideally suited to meet the metabolic needs of newborn infants, particularly premature ones.

—Iron: At first glance, the story of iron in human milk may seem contradictory. The iron content of milk — both human and from cows — is low, and iron deficiency is a common problem in youngsters who are fed cows milk for a long period without receiving iron supplements or solid foods high in the mineral. But studies indicate that about 50 per cent of the iron in human milk is absorbed for use in the growing infant, compared to 10 per cent absorption for adults on a typical diet. This may be because human milk is comparatively low in protein and phosphorus and high in vitamin C and milk sugar (lactose) which helps the body absorb iron.

A recent study reported that a full-term baby who is breast fed should get sufficient iron from mother's milk until the birth weight has been tripled.

There is another facet to the iron story. Breast milk contains protective factors that have not been imitated in any formula. These factors are called lactoferrin and transferrin, which prevent the growth of potentially harmful bacteria in the intestinal tract. Older children and adults harbor many types of bacteria in their intestinal tracts, but they also have developed immune defenses against these microorganisms. In the uterus, the developing infant enjoys a sterile atmosphere, and is born without protective mechanisms against many types of bacteria. Iron combines with lactoferrin and transferrin, and thus prevents these protective substances from exercising their anti-bacteria actions. The low concentrations of iron in mother's milk, while providing enough of the mineral for the baby, is not high enough to render lactoferrin and transferrin ineffective.

—Other important advantages: Colostrum, the breast fluid secreted in the first few days after birth, also provides important immune factors that protect the newborn from infection. Breast milk exerts a further protective influence by providing lysozymes, which are enzymes that attack and break down potentially harmful bacteria. And breast milk contains a substance called the bifidus factor, which promotes the growth of friendly bacteria in the infant's intestinal tract — bacteria which will help assume the role of protecting the baby from infection.

These are just a few of the many reasons why breast feeding is superior. (Others will be discussed in a future column, as well as suggestions for promoting an increase in breast feeding — a trend the new report indicates may be underway in Canada and the United States.)

How to Calculate The Calorie Values

QUESTION:
I received a pamphlet with the nutrient value of foods. How do you figure out the calorie value of foods from this?

ANSWER:
Foods are composed of six basic substances — water, carbohydrates, protein, fat, minerals and vitamins. Calories are provided only by the carbohydrate, protein, and fat portions of food. For each gram of carbohydrate or protein, the body produces 4 calories of energy or heat. Fat is a more concerned source of energy. For every gram of fat in your food source, your body produces 9 calories of energy. For example, suppose you want to know the calorie value of peanut butter; 1 tablespoon of peanut butter contains approximately 4 grams of protein (4 x 4 = 16 calories) for 3 grams of carbohydrate (3 x 4= 12 calories), and 7 grams of fat (7 x 9 = 63 calories) for a total of 91 calories. Most nutrient value tables will indicate total food energy as kilocalories or kilojoules. Contact your local health unit or health department or write us for a copy of Nutrient Values of Common Foods.

QUESTION:
I am so tired lately, would it be because I am not getting enough iron in my diet?

ANSWER:
Normal people occasionally experience feelings of fatigue, being worn out and tired. In spite of all the advertisements, there is no more reason to attribute temporary tiredness to a dietary deficiency than to attribute it to any of a variety of life situations. If such feelings persist, you should consult a qualified physician. P.S. According to the National Nutrition Survey, most adult British Columbians get at least 10 mg. of dietary iron daily. Less than one percent of the 1300 women aged 20-39 years who were tested, had hemoglobin levels considered to indicate a high risk of iron deficiency.

QUESTION:
Is it true that coffee, tea and cola drinks can be harmful because of their caffine content?

ANSWER:
Normal, healthy individuals can usually tolerate caffeine without suffering any discomfort. However, because of caffeine's stimulating effect, people with such conditions as peptic ulcer, hypertension, cardiovascular and nervous disorders should restrict their intake. One fluid ounce of coffee contains 18 mg. of caffeine, one fluid ounce of tea contains approximately 12-15 mg. of caffeine, while cola drinks range from 3-5 mg. of caffeine per fluid ounce. Recent research advises pregnant women to avoid caffeine-rich beverages and sleep preparations.

BARE MEANS LESS DUST

NEW YORK (AP) — Many people suffer allergic reactions to dust and chemicals found in home furnishings, draperies and carpeting, says Dr. H. L. Newbold, a specialist in nutritional psychiatry. Newbold recommends that homes be kept as bare of furnishings as possible, preferably with metal substituting for wood and white, washable cotton for other textiles.

Doctors Welcome Inquiries

By L. L. Coleman, MD

I now live thousands of miles away from my family. For years I have known that my father has had severe arteriosclerosis. Recently, I learned that the doctors have suggested an operation on his neck to prevent a stroke. I am confused about this and can't get anyone to clarify it for me. — Miss D. E. W.

Dear Miss W.:

I must confess that I am more confused by your letter than you seem to be by the contemplated surgery on your father. The fact that you live thousands of miles away in no way prevents you from contacting your father's doctor directly and getting the information that will relieve you of your obvious anxiety.

Some patients do not realize that doctors are happy to discuss confusing aspects of medical or surgical problems. In fact, physicians welcome such an inquiry because they get greater support from the family when everyone knows exactly what they are contemplating doing.

Patients who have generalized arteriosclerosis frequently have narrowing of the carotid arteries which bring blood and oxygen to the brain with each pump of the heartbeat. These arteries run to the brain on each side of the neck. When there this blood flow is deficient and when there are early neurological signs, special tests (arteriograms) can, by x-ray, demonstrate the narrowing of these blood vessels.

It is now possible to do an operation known as "endarterectomy" by which the arterosclerotic plaques that block the flow of blood can be "reamed out" to increase the blood flow in the neck. It is even possible, in some instances, to remove the blocked artery and substitute a dacron or teflon "sleeve" in order to facilitate further the blood supply to the brain.

In carefully selected patients, vascular surgeons have been remarkably successful in restoring the blood flow to prevent a possible stroke.

I feel fairly certain that this is what your father's doctors are contemplating doing. It would give you added assurance if you did, indeed, speak to them.

My mother, my aunt and now I, at age 28, have developed a goitre of the thyroid gland. Is this a condition that is passed on from one generation to the next? — Mrs. T. O.

Dear Mrs. O.:

A goitre, or enlargment of the thyroid gland in the midline of the neck, is not infectious or contagious and is not a family characteristic. It is due to a deficiency of iodine in food or water. Consequently, goitres occur frequently in inland areas where there is a reduced amount of iodine in the drinking water.

These growths are not cancerous. Surgery is performed on them, more for cosmetic reasons than for reasons of health. The reason they seem to occur in families is because families, of course, live in the same community. When iodized salt or bread is used in these communities, the frequency of goitres is markedly reduced.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: Over the years you have advised wives not to phone their husbands at work unless it's absolutely necessary. I disagree.

Nothing brightens a father's day like hearing, "Hi, Dada," from his two-year-old son whom he hasn't seen for two days because he's had to work overtime.

As for management complaining because it wastes company time, management would be wise to encourage 10-minute "sunshine" calls. It does wonders for their employees' morale.

However, there should be a few rules: Emphasize that your call is not an emergency so your husband isn't interrupted in the middle of something important; if he doesn't work near a phone, put a quarter in his lunchbox so he can call you.

Also, never tell him what the kids did wrong or anything that might upset him. Keep it light and cheery. He'll love it. My husband does. — BETTE M.

DEAR BETTE: Your husband may love your "sunshine calls," but I'll bet his boss doesn't. In business, time is money. Say your husband makes six dollars an hour and you gabble away with him for 10 minutes a day, that's one dollar out of the boss's pocket. If he has 1,000 employees, each making six dollars an hour, and each taking 10 minutes a day to discuss domestic trivia, it costs the boss $1,000 a day.

If you must chat daily, let hubby call you on his lunch hour. A guy who's on the phone is not on the job — unless he's a bookie.

DEAR ABBY: I am an 11-year-old girl whose parents are divorced. I live with my mother. Mom has her boyfriend living with her and everybody knows they aren't married.

My problem is this. I have a best friend I'll call Debbie. Debbie's parents will let her come to my house and stay all day, but they won't let her sleep overnight. What's the difference? — PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: Debbie's parents probably fear that if they allow her to spend the night in a home where an unmarried couple are sleeping together, Debbie might think they approve of it — which they do not.

DEAR ABBY: I have a gripe I would like to air. Just before Christmas, I receive a Christmas card with my newspaper: "Merry Christmas from Johnny Jones, your newspaper carrier."

Abby, I never see any of these people during the year, but there were times when I would have liked to see them to ask why my newspaper was late again, or why I find so many letters in my box that aren't addressed to me. Or why my garbage cans are never put back where they belong.

I don't mind tipping for extra service, but it bugs me to get a bill for mediocre service that I've already paid too much for. — STEAMED

DEAR STEAMED: Those aren't greetings, they're warnings.

POOH'S BRIDGE FALLING DOWN

HARTFIELD, England (CP) — Pooh Bridge, the wooden bridge made famous by A. A. Milne in his stories about Pooh Bear, is in danger of collapse. Two neighboring councils disagree about the future of the bridge at Cotchford Farm where Milne wrote the books. One says it should be replaced, the other says it should be repaired so tourists can continue to see it.

Decorating Tips For Dreary Flats

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Young people can turn that first drab apartment into a castle of sorts, says interior designer Elaine Bakes.

To brighten up a flat without breaking your bank account, you can add color in the form of prints, paint, throw-pillows and accessories.

And, she says, there is no end to what the imaginative, creative person can do with fabric.

"It's relatively inexpensive. Stick with one solid and one print and go from there.

"You can make a solid bedspread and print drapes and throw-pillows in both (fabrics)," Ms. Bakes says. "Just remember that print all over is just too much, and so is solid."

Choosing paint to match is not as difficult as people might think.

"Don't be afraid of color. Bright colors like blue and green go well together and won't make a room look smaller if you use lighter shades. The key is to tie everything together. It's essential for one color to lend itself to another naturally."

Plywood screens can take the place of drapes or curtains, Ms. Bakes suggests:

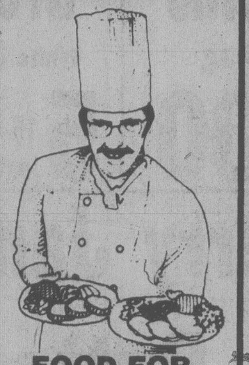
"You can make accordion screens out of plywood and then paint them. It's not very costly and they do have a special look about them."

Persons who are not)andy with tools can macrame curtains or drapes.

"This takes a certain amount of patience," she says. "But there's still another way. Blinds can be covered with fabric to match the bedspread if you wish to forget drapes all together."

The designer suggests that a touch of class can be added with just wallpaper or foil paper, but again, don't go overboard.

If you're low on cash, large over-stuffed pillows can double for chairs.



FOOD FOR THOUGHT . . .
BY DANIEL RIGOLLET

Party idea: with a simple dessert, fancy coffee. Serve plenty of good, hot coffee, surrounded with do-it-yourself additions of whipped cream, orange peel, creme de cacao, rum, brandy or what-you-will.

Before The Judge

A 19-year-old Esquimalt man was fined $500 after pleading guilty in provincial court Wednesday to dangerous driving.

Judge William Ostler said he will recommend that Neil Allan Taylor of HMCS Restigouche not be allowed to drive anywhere in Canada for six months.

Crown counsel Robert Mulligan said the incident occurred at about 11:20 p.m. Dec. 6 in the 100-block Esquimalt Road.

Mulligan said Taylor's vehicle was speeding west near Tyee Road when it apparently went out of control on a curve, leaving [illegible] feet of skid marks before mounting a curb and hitting a trailer unit parked in a service station.

He said Taylor continued back on to the road, narrowly missing a vehicle which contained a number of youngsters returning home from a hockey practice.

When police were called, Mulligan continued, another person came forward and admitted being the driver. However, during a Jan. 30 trial Taylor was identified by witnesses as the driver and was subsequently arrested and charged.

Frederick Robert Haldane, no fixed address, was remanded for election of his trial method and possible bail hearing.

Ronald James Moore, 20, of 1611 Elm, was charged with criminal negligence in the operation of a motor vehicle and obstructing a peace officer in connection with a Jan. 28 high-speed chase in Saanich.

Moore was released on his own undertaking and was remanded until Wednesday for election of his trial method.

Defence lawyer Patrick Sweeney waived a preliminary hearing on behalf of 19-year-old Daryl Fyfe Wilson, of 2526 Belmont, charged with possession of marijuana for the purpose of trafficking and simple possession of marijuana and cocaine.

Wilson was remanded directly to county court next Tuesday.

Fined for drinking-driving offences were: Gary Edward Stachura, 29, of 944 Glenwillow Place, $450; Eugene Joseph Sheplawy, 47, of 581 Ridley, $400; George Cantin, 26, of Tahsis, $400; Thomas John Gailus, 41, of 2772 Sooke, $400; Corey Douglas Nelson, 17, of 623 Eiderwood, $400; and Harry Palm, 66, of 1040 Southgate, $400.

Coke Count Jails Businessman

A 33-year-old Vancouver businessman was sentenced in county court Wednesday to nine months in jail for possession of cocaine for the purpose of trafficking.

Larry Cliff Skogman, proprietor of Viking Window Cleaners, was convicted by Judge E.J.C. Stewart last month. Police checked his car near the Swartz Bay ferry terminal Oct. 29, 1977, and found 154 grams of a substance which the defence claimed amounted to less than 30 grams of pure cocaine.

Court was told Skogman paid $3,500 for the cocaine because he didn't like paying the street price of $100 a gram.

Defence counsel Mike Hutchison said little or no purpose would be served by a jail sentence and suggested community work service plus lengthy probation would be appropriate. But if jail was to be considered, he urged it be served on weekends.

He said Skogman owned and managed his own business which employed four persons and an extended jail term would end his business. He also said cocaine does not have the same sinister overtones as heroin.

Crown counsel Gordon MacDonald said the case demanded a substantial jail term and if there was probation and a fine, it would amount to a licence for other nightlife swingers like Skogman.

He said there must be a punishment to show that severe consequences flow from this sort of behavior and noted the Court of Appeal has ruled that, in the absence of special circumstances, there must be a jail sentence.

Judge Stewart said it is almost impossible to assess the deterrent effect of sentences on other people but this was a narcotic case and the distribution of narcotics was regarded as a very serious offence.

"I really have no choice," he said, adding that he could not accept the proposition that probation was appropriate.

He said it is as simple as this: anyone who decides after consideration to become involved in the distribution of a narcotic must know from the beginning that if he or she is caught they will go to jail.

He said Skogman is an intelligent and successful businessman who is not a big cog in the distribution of cocaine. Unfortunately, he said, the really serious offenders are rarely caught.

Skogman will probably suffer a serious, if not catastrophic, loss of business so he was not going to fine him.

March 14 Forum To Debate Sidney Is.

A public forum will be held at the Provincial Museum's Newcombe Auditorium March 14 at 7:30 p.m. to discuss the proposal to purchase Sidney Island for a provincial park.

Parks Minister James Chabot is expected to attend along with Tony Roberts, manager of the Islands Trust and Bristol Foster, director of Ecological Reserves.

Other speakers will include Jack Todd, the owner of the 1,783-acre island, Stan Buxcey, chairman of the Save the Sidney Island Committee, and Kreg Sky of the National and Provincial Parks Association of Canada.

The forum will be informed on progress of the campaign to save the island from developers.

JADED JANUARY

Residential contruction got off slowly in January with only 140 housing starts in the Victoria area, down from 381 in the same month last year.

A report released by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation shows starts of 65 single family homes, up from 49, and 14 row housing units, up from 10, but only 61 apartment units, down from 292, and four duplex units, down from 30.

Surge Seen In Building By Summer

An upsurge in building activity is anticipated this summer in B.C., a construction industry spokesman said Wednesday.

Alex Shaw, executive director of the Amalgamated Construction Association of B.C., said in a telephone interview from Vancouver the outlook is improving.

"There is more work out for tender now than there has been recently," Shaw said.

"By summertime there should be quite an increase in the employment situation."

Earlier Wednesday Labor Minister Allan Williams said he is looking to the construction industry produce more jobs in B.C.

But this was disputed by Vancouver Island contractors and construction trade union officials.

Brian Scroggs, a senior executive with Farmer Construction Ltd., one of Victoria's largest contracting firms, said the outlook for Vancouver Island is not encouraging.

He said he does not see anything happening on the island to create work until April at the earliest.

Rick Farrell, business agent for the Vancouver Island local of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners Union, said more than half of his 950 members directly involved in the construction industry are out of work.

He said first work opportunities anticipated are in Nanaimo where the first phase of the Duke Point Harbor development is scheduled for the spring.

Shaw said B.C. is not losing too many workmen to Alberta . . . "they don't like it at 40 below very much."

SOMEBODY'S FOLLOWING Stan Lesk who plays the fool Feste in Bastion Theatre's production of Twelfth Night, Shakespeare's funniest comedy playing at the McPherson Playhouse until Feb. 17. Bittersweet play of mistaken identities and romantic intrigues is directed by Malcolm Black.

New Loan Plan to Help Small Business

The Bank of B.C. will soon offer a special loan program for small businessmen, Tourism and Small Business Minister Elwood Veitch, said Wednesday.

Veitch said the usual demand loans provided for businessmen will be replaced by extended-term loans of up to 15 years.

The minister said so far none of the large chartered banks has agreed to adopt similar programs.

"Once they finally learn that small business represents 90 per cent of the business activity in Canada they will also take up the torch and follow the Bank of B.C.," Veitch said.

Breeder Co-Op Broke

A cattle breeders' co-operative which once had an office in Victoria has gone into bankruptcy listing more than $600,000 in outstanding debts.

Rick Brezer, an accountant with Coopers Lybrand of Vancouver, appointed trustees, said Wednesday the Exotic Cattle Breeders Co-Op assigned itself into bankruptcy after failing to meet commitments to its more than 400 co-op members.

A first meeting of creditors is being held today at the Devonshire Hotel in Vancouver.

In a related action a petition into bankruptcy was filed Wednesday against Cascade Cattle Company Ltd., which the co-operative had been making arrangements to purchase. A hearing has been scheduled in Vancouver Feb. 16.

Brezer said claims against the co-operative total $600,000 but a full list has not been completed and the amount is expected to be higher.

The co-operative was formed by Vancouver businessman John Brown in January, 1974, and sold shares at $100 each. Members had the option of purchasing shares in blue ribbon breeding stock at a ranch in the Grand Forks area.

The co-operative guaranteed to buy back offspring raised in the breeding program but, Brezer said, funds realized in cattle sales fell short of the expected yield from investment.

The securities commission issued a stop-trading order in 1977 because the co-operative had failed to produce a prospectus.

Last November the inspector of brands seized 294 head of the co-operative's cattle in Kamloops. The cattle were sold and the money — $118,000 — has been held in trust since then.

Brezer was unable to say how many creditors are Victoria residents but noted the co-operative once had an office on Quadra Street.

14 UVic Scholars Get Aid

The Social Science and Research Council of Canada has awarded leave fellowships to 14 University of Victoria scholars.

They were among leave fellowships totalling $4 million awarded to 345 Canadian university academics in the humanities and social sciences this year.

The fellowships are awarded to scholars who have held full-time faculty appointments at Canadian universities for at least five years and wish a leave of absence to undertake some form of creative scholarship.

Universities only pay partial salary during a sabbatical leave and the fellowships are intended to make up for loss of income. Additional allowances for travel and research expenses may be granted if needed.

Preliminary selection of candidates is made by juries of specialists representing various desciplines in the humanities and social sciences. Their recommendations are then reviewed by a committee of the council's advisory academic panel before being submitted for the approval of the council.

This year the council received 794 applications.

UVic scholars selected for fellowships are Michael Best, English; David Campbell, classics; Franklin Churchley, education; Thomas Hukari, linguistics; Zelimir Juricic, Slavic studies; Arthur Kratzmann, education administration; Roy Leslie, mediaeval studies; Samuel Macey, English; Richard May, psychology; Douglas Porteous, geography; Henry Summerfield, English; Reginald Terry, linguistics; Patricia Tsurumi, history, and William West, theatre.

Tuna Embargo

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has moved to embargo imports of Costa Rican tuna in retaliation for seizure of two U.S. tuna fishing vessels, a U.S. state department official said Tuesday.

PACIFIC WESTERN

JOIN US ON THE GREAT WEST CONNECTION

Now, all four Western provinces, the Northwest Territories and the Yukon come to you as quick as you can say Pacific Western/Transair.

Both Pacific Western and Transair earned their wings opening up the West. Now the West is one, as our two companies team up to tie it all together, and the Great West Connection takes off.

For the first time, we're connecting Calgary and Edmonton to Regina and Saskatoon and all the West, from Victoria to Winnipeg. Now you have a choice when you fly.

The scope of air travel expands with take-offs to over 50 destinations, while new Pacific Western/Transair Economizer Fares shrink the cost of your round trip ticket by up to 35%, when you book your flight a week in advance and include a Saturday night in your stay. Business travellers can take advantage of a full schedule of flights aboard Canada's largest fleet of Boeing 737's. It's quiet. It's also wider and more comfortable than the competition. It's the most popular commercial twin-jet in the world. Overall, we're connecting more people with more places in the West, than all the other airlines combined. In short, the Great West Connection is just what the name says.

Marvin Trial Told of Record 'Tax Dodge'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Lee Marvin set up a record company with only one singer — his mistress — who received "advance royalties" on records never sold as a "tax planning device," Marvin's business manager testified Wednesday.

Under the arrangements, Marvin paid Michele Triola Marvin $1,050 a month after they split up, said Edward Silver, testifying in the trial of Miss Marvin's $1 million suit against the actor.

The payments were made by Santana Records Inc., owned solely by the actor, which never made records by anyone but Miss Marvin, he said.

Silver, under questioning by Miss Marvin's attorney, Marvin Mitchelson, said Santana was established as a means of furthering Miss Marvin's singing career, and she made four records for it, none of which sold well.

Later payments were listed as "advance royalities," and these were cut off about a year after the couple broke up in 1970 after living together for six years.

Miss Marvin is suing the 54-year-old actor for $1 million and half of his estimated net worth of approximately $3 million under what her attorney calls an implied contract to share earnings, just as a husband and wife would.

"Why did Santana make the payments?" Mitchelson asked Silver.

"Well, it was a tax planning device as a proper business method of handling the payments," he replied.

"Under what category were the deductions made by Santana?"

"Salaries and wages," Silver said.

"Did she perform any services?"

"No."

"It was customary in the music business to advance sums on the possibility of future earnings no matter how remote that might be," Silver said.

In another excursion into bookkeeping methods, Silver disclosed that he made payments of $400 month into a bank account for Miss Marvin as "pocket money" when the couple lived together at Malibu Beach in 1968. He said these payments were listed under "loans receivable."

Under questioning by Mitchelson, Silver said:

"It was a bookkeeping device so I would not lose track of the total figure."

Mitchelson, trying to prove Marvin and his girlfriend lived in what was tantamount to a married state, drew from Silver the admission that the pair had joint bank accounts.

Of Shakespeare as a Ladies' Man. . .

Scott's World

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press International

HOLLYWOOD — Shakespeare was a ladies' man, according to one of England's leading Shakespearean actresses who says the Bard wrote the best parts for women in the history of the theatre.

Most lovers of Shakespeare think in terms of his brilliant male roles: Hamlet, Lear, Caesar, Richard II, Henry VI and Macbeth.

But Helen Mirren, a fetching English redhead who has appeared in a dozen of Shakespeare's 37 dramatic works, says, "He wrote all the best parts for women. Modern playwrights don't begin to compare.

"An actress couldn't ask for more than Juliet, Lady Macbeth, Portia, Rosalind, Cleopatra, Gonhorrah and Reagan or even Ophelia.

"It's great fun playing the wicked women. I enjoy wearing a crown and having everyone bow down when I come on stage, as I have playing Queen Margaret in Henry VI and Lady Macbeth. It's much nicer than playing a servant."

Helen became a Shakespeare junkie at age 13 when she played Caliban in The Tempest in Class 3-C at St. Bernard's Convent in England. She has been a professional Shakespearean for the past 10 years, appearing in plays throughout the British Isles. She spent four years with the Royal Shakespeare Company.

American audiences will have the opportunity to see Helen play Rosalind in As You Like It via PBS (Ch. 9 Seattle) Feb. 28 as part of the most ambitious Shakespearean project ever tackled.

The complete dramatic works of the Bard are being commited to tape under the omnibus title The Shakespeare Plays to be produced over the next six years in England by BBC-TV, and Time-Life Television for PBS in the United States.

"Shakespeare was meant to be seen performed, not read," she said. "The language is so difficult I get lost. It's a shame school children are forced to memorize so much of it. Better they see the plays on stage.

"I think Shakespeare should be banned in school and the children forbidden to read it. Then, I'm sure, they'd surreptitiously sneak off with copies of the plays to try to discover what they're all about.

"On the page, it seems pretty dead to me. I can read speeches and isolated bits of poetry and enjoy them."

"This project is the first time I've ever performed Shakespeare anywhere but in a theatre. It is a very specialized way of doing Shakespeare, especially a comedy. It seemed odd leaving pauses for the audience to laugh."

Cousin Traced

CLACTON-ON-SEA, England (CP) — For 38 years George Kirkby had wondered about the fiery-haired cousin he met when was evacuated to Yorkshire from London during the Second World War. Recently he discovered her whereabouts during a business phone call to Yorkshire — he mentioned her and found the girl he was talking to was her daughter. Plans are under way for a reunion.

3♠	Pass	4♠

Opening lead — king of hearts.

One of declarer's most frequent problems is whether to finesse or play for the drop, missing four to the queen of a suit. There is ordinarily only a slight mathematical advantage in favor of playing for the drop, so almost any clue pointing in the opposite direction should persuade declarer to finesse instead.

Here is an example of how declarer approaches the play in a case where he sees that the fate of the hand rests on how he handles the trump situation.

West cashes the K-A of hearts and continues with the ten, ruffed by declarer as East discards a diamond. South plays the ace of spades, both defenders following low, but, since he is not yet ready for the crucial trump decision, declarer shifts his eye elsewhere in order to learn more about the opponents' distribution.

He plays a club to the king, a diamond to the king, a club to the ace. When he then ruffs a diamond in dummy and leads the jack of spades, East following low, South is faced with the decision of whether or not to finesse.

Declarer still does not know who has the spade queen, but he no longer cares! He finesses the jack, knowing that he is safely home whether the finesse wins or loses. In the actual deal, the jack wins and South makes the contract, losing two hearts and a club.

Has he lost the finesse, South would still have made the contract. Why? Because it would mean that West had started with two spades, six hearts, three diamonds and two clubs — all proven — and he would then be forced to lead a heart, allowing South to discard his club loser as he ruffed the heart return in dummy.

South may lose the battle for the queen, but he is sure to win the war!

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Friday, February 9,
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Build for security — avoid the superficial, eschew substitutes. Cancer, Capricorn individuals figure prominently. Transaction is completed, whether or not you are aware of it. Don't attempt to hang on to past. You are due for credit which was held back in recent past.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Emphasis on getting around, putting ideas to work, arranging social event for close neighbor or relative. Gemini, Sagittarius figure prominently. Expand horizons, replace gloom with cheer; you will have reason to be optimistic.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Check cash reserves. BE conservative where your financial security is concerned. You have not been painted into corner, although it may appear that way. Aquarius, Scorpio, Taurus persons figure in scenario.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be independent, original, put creative forces into action. Be ready for change, travel, special written material, Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius figure prominently — and so does the number 5. An energetic friend does have pertinent suggestions. Be receptive!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): What seems a deep, dark secret could be a myth. Know it and respond accordingly. Temporary confinement, to home, hospital, need not be cause for depression. Get second wind. Eradicate emotional dilemma. Yes, family situation improves!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accent on determining "friendly territory." Refuse to be lured into trap. One close to you wants to cooperate, but needs something to "save face." Yes, it is a matter of pride. You could save friendship, or marriage, by making mature, intelligent concession.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Emphasis on power play, career, pressure, added responsibility, promotion. Relationship intensifies — nothing is halfway. Older individual wants you to prove a point — and you can do it. In matters of speculation, stick with number 8.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You perceive trends, cycles, the future. You're likely to be on target. Know it, act accordingly. Aries, Libra persons figure prominently. Finish rather than begin — get manuscript, format into "right" hands. You get message from afar — it is constructive.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You'll get green light regarding financial support. Remember, however, that you get nothing for nothing. Informed skepticism now can be a marvelous ally. Accent on investment procedures, hidden clauses.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be positive concerning partnership, joint efforts, legal proposals. Check rights, permissions. Spotlight on publicity, advertising, marital status. Defer to judgment of others. Means hold off on direct confrontations. Play waiting game.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Study Capricorn message; go slow, become familiar with basic procedures, material. Gemini, Cancer persons figure prominently. You reunite with one who shares interests, who worked with you in past. Sense of humor saves the day.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Creative energies find an outlet. Imprint style, technique. Love is very much a part of scenario — so is variety, change, speculation and the number 4. Young person confides problem. Don't cast first stone.

IF FEBRUARY 9 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are independent, aggressive, fighter for causes, sympathetic to needs of those less fortunate. You react in marvelous fashion during times of crises. People are drawn to you with their problems. You can counsel and heal. You have sense of drama and can graphically illustrate meanings, feelings. You often are better at helping others than when it comes to aiding yourself. Aries, Libra persons can play key roles in your life. July could be your most significant month of 1979, a year highlighting more independence, creativity, fresh starts — and love. You are rid of burden. You emerge as a person — and many will embrace the "new you."

ELIZABETH the SECOND, by the Grace of God, of the United Kingdom, Canada and Her other Realms and Territories, Queen, Head of the Commonwealth, Defender of the Faith.

To all to whom these presents shall come —

GREETING
W. VanderZalm,
Minister of Municipal Affairs

WHEREAS by section 766(1) of the Municipal Act it is provided, inter alia, that in addition to the functions conferred by that Act, a regional district has such functions as are provided by Letters Patent or supplementary Letters Patent, and for this purpose the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may, on the recommendation of the Minister, provide in the Letters Patent or supplementary Letters Patent such further objects, powers, obligations, duties, limitations and conditions in respect to any or all functions requested pursuant to this section:

AND WHEREAS the Regional Board of the Capital Regional District has requested that the function of Division III — Regional Parks be amended to include the Outer Gulf Islands Electoral Area as a participating member municipality:

AND WHEREAS the provisions of section 766 of the Municipal Act have been met:

NOW KNOW YE THAT by these presents We do order and proclaim that on, from, and after the date hereof, the following be added to the objects, powers, obligations, duties, limitations and conditions of the Capital Regional District and the Letters Patent of the regional district be amended as follows:

1. Division III — Regional Parks granted by Letters Patent dated the first day of February, 1966, as amended, be further amended by striking out paragraph 1 and substituting the following therefor:

"1. Only the member municipality of Saltspring Island does not participate or share in the costs incurred pursuant to this Division."

AND THAT the Letters Patent as amended of the Capital Regional District be deemed to be further amended accordingly.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, We have caused these Our Letters to be made Patent and the Great Seal of Our said Province to be hereunto affixed.

WITNESS, the Honourable Henry P. Bell-Irving, Lieutenant-Governor of Our said Province of British Columbia, in Our City of Victoria, in Our said province, this 25th day of January in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and seventy-nine and in the twenty-seventh year of Our Reign.

30 More Evicted By Love

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The state health department will recommend that about 30 more families who live in the vicinity of the old Love Canal chemical dump site in Niagara Falls, N.Y., be relocated, the Buffalo Evening News said today.

The newspaper said the recommendation by Dr. David Axelrod, state health commissioner, will be reviewed by Governor Hugh Carey and the Love Canal Task Force, a state organization that has been cleaning up the dump.

The state agreed last year to relocate 234 families who lived on streets adjacent to the canal, but many people in the neighborhood have been pushing for relocation of other families in the area.

Axelrod, The News said, will recommend that pregnant women and children under the age of two leave a six-block area around the canal.

An eight-member committee of peditricians, environmental doctors, toxicologists and other medical and scientific personnel met in New York City Wednesday and reviewed data about the canal.

The committee, The News said, advised relocation based on evidence that showed a higher rate of miscarriages, birth defects and low-weight births among persons living along old streambeds, ponds and marshy areas in the canal neighborhood.

The Love Canal was used by Hooker Chemicals and Plastics Corp. for about 10 years as a chemical dump site.

Later, a school was built on the site and houses were erected in the area. Last summer, after chemicals began oozing to the surface, the department of health declared an emergency, resulting in the relocation of some families and a project to clean up the dump.

Boeing Contracts At $79M

SEATTLE (AP) — Two Canadian airlines have ordered four Boeing jetliners worth more than $79 million.

Quebecair, a major regional carrier in Canada, and Nordair Ltd. each ordered two Boeing 737s.

Quebecair's 737s are to be delivered in mid-1980. The airline said it also has acquired options for two more 737s, for delivery in mid-1981.

Nordair's deliveries are for December and next February.

[L. S.]

PROVINCE OF BRITISH COLUMBIA

ELIZABETH the SECOND, by the Grace of God, of the United Kingdom, Canada and Her other Realms and Territories, Queen, Head of the Commonwealth, Defender of the Faith.

To all to whom these presents shall come —

GREETING
W. N. VANDER ZALM
Minister of Municipal Affairs

(WHEREAS pursuant to the provisions of section 766 of the Municipal Act the Capital Regional District was incorporated by Letters Patent issued on the first day of February, 1966:

AND WHEREAS section 766 of the Municipal Act provides inter alia that, in addition to the functions conferred by that Act a regional district has such functions as are provided by Letters Patent or supplementary Letters Patent, and for this purpose the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may, on the recommendation of the Minister, provide in Letters Patent or supplementary Letters Patent such further objects, powers, obligations, duties, limitations and conditions in respect to any or all functions requested pursuant to this section:

AND WHEREAS by supplementary Letters Patent dated the 12th day of October, 1966, as amended, there was granted to the Capital Regional District the function of Division V — Centennial Swimming pool with the participating member municipalities being the Electoral Areas of Colwood, Langford, and Metchosin:

AND WHEREAS by supplementary Letters Patent dated the 13th day af March, 1970, as amended, there was granted to the Capital Regional District the function of Division IX — Park Property — Acquisition, Development, Maintenance, and Operation with the participating member municipalities being the Electoral Areas of Colwood and Langford and a defined portion of the Electoral Area of Metchosin:

AND WHEREAS by supplementary Letters Patent dated the 2nd day of February, 1971, as amended, there was granted to the Capital Regional District the function of Division X — Ice Arena and Recreational Complex with the participating member municipalities being the Electoral Areas of Colwood and Langford and a defined portion of Electoral Area of Metchosin:

AND WHEREAS by supplementary Letters Patent dated the 1st day of August, 1974, as amended, there was granted to the Capital Regional District the function of Division XIII — Curling Rink and Senior Citizen's Recreational Complex with the participating member municipalities being the Electoral Areas of Colwood, Langford, and Metchosin:

AND WHEREAS the Regional Board is empowered with respect to that part of the regional district not within a city, district, town or village to undertake any work or service under the provisions of Part XVI of the Municipal Act:

AND WHEREAS By-law No. 234, adopted November 26, 1975, established a specified area within the Electoral Area of Langford of the Capital Regional District to be known as the "Willis Point Fire Protection and Recreational Facilities Specified Area":

AND WHEREAS the Electoral Area of Langford is a participating member municipality in respect of the aforementioned functions granted by supplementary Letters Patent, as amended, to the Capital Regional District:

AND WHEREAS the Regional Board of the Capital Regional District has received a petition from the property owners within the said specified area of the Electoral Area of Langford requesting the Willis Point area be excluded from the aforementioned functions as the residents of the area are unable to benefit from use of the Juan de Fuca Recreation Centre facilities on account of the area's geographical separation from such facilities:

AND WHEREAS the Directors for the Electoral Areas of Colwood, Langford and Metchosin have consented in writing to the request:

AND WHEREAS the provisions of section 766 of the Municipal Act have been duly complied with:

NOW KNOW YE THAT by these presents We do order and proclaim that on, from, and after the date hereof the following be added to the objects, powers, obligations, duties, limitations and conditions of the Capital Regional District:

Soil Envy Can Be Double-Edged Sword

GARDENING

jack beastall

At this time of year we all envy the gardener with a well-drained soil who can satisfy the urge to get started by sowing a few early peas and planting some potatoes.

By June, that gardener will be envying us with our heavier soils which are cooler and retain moisture better through the rainless months of summer.

We have the climate for these early sowings and plaintings and we can have a small patch of well-drained soil, if we care to go to the trouble of making it.

Some home gardeners already have a sheltered corner or a small border designed solely for use in late winter and early spring when the rest of the garden is still too wet for tilling.

This early patch should not be too large, although it will come into its own again in late September for sowing a few vegetables for use during the fall.

Several years ago a friend bought a piece of property that had been a dump for broken bricks, scrap iron, tin cans, coarse gravel and broken chinaware. The soil was a heavy clay which could not be worked until the first or second week in June.

During the first summer, the topsoil was removed from a border two feet wide along the south side of the back fence. Subsoil was removed for another spade's depth, and the clay base broken with a pick.

Into the clay base went bricks, stones, gravel, broken clay pots, crushed tin cans, scrap iron, and pieces of concrete. This solved the problem of the junk and added eight inches of good drainage material.

The tin cans and metal are probably still releasing minerals as they rot away, the same as when placed at the bottom of the compost heap.

On top of this garbage heap went the subsoil and the topsoil after being mixed with the same bulk of compost, some old manure, and sand, all of which were already scattered over the property. And edging of planks 12 ins. deep was needed to hold the raised soil in place.

This border is still producing good early and late crops. Each year it is dressed with old manure, compost, or mushroom compost, and kelp and seaweed are added as obtainable during winter; thus mantaining the fertility of the bed and the height above the surrounding soil for good drainage.

The soil soon accumulated sufficient humus to hold a fair amount of moisture during summer, enough for good crops of tomatoes (trained to the fence), okra, sweet peppers, and eggplant, crops that revel in warm soil and are harmed by frequent watering which chills the soil and retards growth.

This is just an illustration of how a home gardener solved two problems, disposing of the junk and building a well-drained early border, at the same time retaining the heavier soil for mid-season and late-summer use with crops needing moist cool soil to succeed.

Not all of us are fortunate to have junk, gravel, and manure or compost, on the lot we are cultivating, but most of us could find some warm corner that could be converted into an early raised bed if we were really serious about wanting an early piece of soil for March sowings.

MAMA RELENTS ON RANSOM?

MILAN — Gianna Cattaneo, the mother of Italy's latest kidnap victim, demanded press silence Wednesday in the abduction of her daughter, indicating the family might be willing to ransom the victim after all. It was a change of heart for the hot-tempered 64-year-old woman who was earlier quoted as saying she didn't love her 46-year-old daughter Evelina and wouldn't pay a single lira to get her released. Evelina, a Swiss-educated divorcee, is something of a local eccentric.

BURLINGTON, Vt. — Kristina Berster, the West German fugitive accused by the FBI of being a terrorist, will be released from jail in about two weeks, a U.S. federal judge said Wednesday. District Court Judge Albert Coffrin sentenced Miss Berster to nine months in jail and five years probation for entering the U.S. illegally last summer. But Coffrin gave her credit for time already served and good behavior, allowing her to be released Feb. 23. Following her release, Miss Berster will be placed in administrative custody by the U.S. Immigration Service, which must consider her request for sanctuary.

PASCO, Wash. — A Mormon woman who told police she threw her two infant sons into the icy Columbia River to prevent them from falling into sin was reported to be undergoing psychiatric evaluation at a state mental hospital Wednesday. The woman, Tanya Ann Adams, 24, was quoted by police as saying that she and her husband were "possessed by the devil." Police have been unable to locate anyone who might have seen her throw the children into the river.

PLYMOUTH, Mass. — The parents of Chad Green remained in Mexico today after an order was issued for their arrest, prompted by concern for the condition of their leukemia-stricken three-year-old boy. "Hopefully, they will realize the seriousness of Chad's condition and come back," Jonathan Brant, assistant state attorney-general, said after Judge Guy Volterra ordered arrest warrants Wednesday for Diana and Gerald Green. The Greens took their son to Mexico Jan. 25 rather than obey an order by Volterra forbidding them to administer Laetrile to the child.

BRUSSELS — Andrei Sakharov, the dissident Russian physicist who won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1975, said Wednesday that avoiding nuclear war is more important than trying to improve the lives of Soviet citizens. In an article in the Brussels newspaper Le Soir, Sakharov said help from Western countries is necessary in the fight for human rights in the Soviet Union. "But the task of reducing the risk of humanity's destruction in a thermo-nuclear war has absolute priority over all others," he said.

ALDERSON, W.Va. — Sara Jane Moore, serving a life sentence for the attempted assassination in 1975 of then U.S. president Gerald Ford, says her aborted escape attempt Monday taught her she is not as ruthless as she believed. Ms. Moore, 48, said she had planned to possibly kill fellow fugitive Marlene Martino, 47, once they got away from the Federal Reformatory for Women.

JACKSON, Miss. — By his own choice, armed robber Robert May, whose size makes him look much younger than his 14 years, will stay in the Mississippi penitentiary's hospital unit to undergo mental tests, officials and his lawyer said Wednesday. He is isolated from other prisoners and checked by guards each hour, officials said.

PARIS — An Englishman accused of diverting more than $8.7 million from portfolios he managed for clients of the large French bank Credit Lyonnais has returned from Brazil and surrendered to authorities, police reported. Thomas Stoddard, 44, resigned from the bank in November and fled France.

Venus. . . Hellhole Of the Universe

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AP) — New data from Pioneer spacecraft show that Venus is a hellish planet of hot clouds, sulphuric sleet, crashing lightning, swirling winds and strange, glowing fires.

The nature of earth's forbidding neighbor became a little less mysterious Wednesday as scientists discussed the findings of Pioneer Venus I and II, which reached the bright planet last December.

"It's all pretty complicated," said Dr. Lawrence Colin of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. "There is no one spectacular result. But it all helps us understand more about Venus and its atmosphere. From that we learn about what causes the earth's weather."

The Venus I orbiter detected lightning which apparently occurs as often as 100 times in five minutes. Scientists say similar flashes were recorded by Russian spacecraft that arrived at Venus after the U.S. craft.

The fiery glows were detected by two of Venus II's probes on the side of the planet facing away from the sun. Scientists called them mysterious and unexpected, saying they could come from chemical fires on the surface or in the very hot and dense lower atmosphere near the surface.

The blazes could be fueled by reactions involving sulphur compounds or from the heated or electrically-charged surfaces of the probe craft themselves.

The solar winds, with speeds up to a million kilometres an hour and temperatures up to 1.8 million degrees, swirl in Venus' ionosphere and the edges of its upper atmosphere. Below are three distinct layers of sulphuric clouds, 19 kilometres thick. Scientists say the temperature there ranges from 13 to 114 degrees Celsius.

Lebanon Kidnap Replay

BEIRUT (Reuter) — Gunmen kidnapped 17 persons along the coast road leading from Beirut to the north Lebanese town of Tripoli on Wednesday, Lebanese television reported.

The state-controlled television said the kidnapping took place near the Byblos area, about 30 kilometres from the capital. It said the victims were led into mountainous territory and that military forces were in pursuit.

There was no indication of who was responsible for the kidnapping or why.

A week ago, a similar abduction took place on the same road, also involving 17 persons. At the time, some Lebanese newspapers blamed that kidnapping on Christian militiamen, and said those abducted were Moslems from Tripoli.

Zambezi Guerrillas Felled in Crossing

SALISBURY (CP) — Rhodesian security forces wiped out a guerrilla group crossing the Zambezi River from Zambia on Wednesday, slaying 11 insurgents, four collaborators and two guerrilla recruits, a government communique said.

Rhodesian officials also reported the death of one member of the security forces and the slaying of seven black civilians by guerrillas in separate incidents. Details were not disclosed.

Meanwhile, the transitional government announced plans Wednesday for a huge military operation to prevent guerrilla attacks during one-man, one-vote elections in April.

Election officials said Wednesday that all leave for the country's 8,000 regular troops will be cancelled over the election period.

Leave also will be curtailed for an estimated 30,000 reservists. Civil servants who had military duties or would be needed to help organize the voting will also have to forego leave, a statement said.

The Patriotic Front guerrilla alliance has vowed to step up its military campaign to wreck the elections, which will lead to Rhodesia's first black administration in which whites will retain key posts.

The election directorate said all of Rhodesia's resources will be used to ensure the vote is successful and not disrupted.

As details of the military plans were announced, the government issued invitations to the U.S. and British governments to send observers to monitor the elections.

By holding what it says are free and fair elections, Rhodesia's government is hoping to win international recognition for the bi-racial coalition which will emerge from the poll.

SMITH IGNORES NOOSE PLEDGE

SALISBURY (AP) — Four blacks have been hanged in the last seven weeks despite an unofficial pledge by Rhodesia's transition government not to execute prisoners convicted of guerrilla activity, informed sources said today.

And nine more are slated to hang shortly, they added.

The government of Prime Minister Ian Smith declined comment. But government sources said there never was an official policy that convicted guerrillas and collaborators would not be executed, only an informal pledge from blacks within the administration when it was formed 11 months ago.

Prison sources said two black tribesmen convicted by military courts were hanged Dec. 19.

Relatives said a black father of 10, Sevia Hove, convicted early last year by a civilian court of holding down a tribesman beaten to death by a guerrilla group, was hanged Jan. 22.

A spokesman for the Roman Catholic Justice and Peace Commission, a watchdog body, said Daniel Moyo, convicted by a civil court of recruiting guerrillas, was executed a week later.

Torture Report Incenses Jews

WASHINGTON (WP) — The Israeli government and major Jewish organizations in the United States Wednesday issued sharp criticism of a story in The Washington Post on U.S. diplomatic cables reporting alleged Israeli torture of Palestinian security suspects.

The expressions of opposition and, in some cases, outrage, focused on the reliability of the consular reporting, the character of the U.S. diplomat who accumulated the information and the role of The Washington Post in publishing the cables' contents.

"The Washington Post has joined left-wing and extremist groups in the United States in a sensationalist and irresponsible attack charging the state of Israel with the systematic torture of Palestinian prisoners," said a statement in the name of Theodore R. Mann, chairman of the Conference of Presidents of Major American Jewish Organizations.

"In publishing on its first page an unsupported allegation by a former low-ranking State Department employee who has been romantically involved with one of the terrorists whose charges were disputed by the American embassy in Israel and who was dismissed from her job for a record of difficulties with her fellow employees, The Washington Post has lent itself to a blatant anti-Israeli propaganda effort," Mann's statement said in closing. "For a major newspaper that aspires to national prestige to indulge in such reckless journalism is both scandalous and shocking."

The Israeli foreign ministry renewed earlier denials that systematic torture takes place, and depicted the author of the U.S. diplomatic cables suggesting that it does as unstable.

A statement from the Jewish Community Council of Greater Washington called the testimony of Palestinians cited in the cables "self-serving statements of convicted terrorists dedicated to the destruction of the state of Israel, against which they testified, and eager to explain away their criminal behavior in order to be admitted to the United States."

Less-Than-Great Blizzard Hits Year and Day Later

United Press International

Blowing in a year and a day after the "Great Blizzard of '78," a big winter storm dumped heavy snows and icy rain on the Northeast and Atlantic Coast states but proved less formidable than its predecessor.

A National Weather Service spokesman today said the storm weakened considerably during the night and "there shouldn't be any more to it."

Still, the storm snarled traffic Wednesday along the populous "Northeastern Corridor" from Boston to Washington, disrupted electrical power to thousands of homes and closed hundreds of schools.

"It's not as bad as last year when we had 76 inches (193.04 cm) of snow," said West Virginia Department of Highways spokesman Gary Chernenko. "The average snowfall in West Virginia is 26 inches (66.04 cm). Not counting this storm, we've had 36 inches (91.44 cm) so far this winter. The past three winters have been above the average."

In the Mid-Atlantic states, the snow fell as fast as an inch per hour and was powered by 40 km/h winds. Freezing rain fell from Georgia to Virginia and knocked out electrical power for up to 60,000 homes in Columbia, S.C. Officials in Georgia estimated at least 100,000 homes in the northern half of the state were blacked out.

Hundreds of schools shut down across Pennsylvania, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, the Carolinas, Virginia and Washington, D.C.

The snow also affected some air travelers. National Airport in Washington was shut down for a time. More than 7.62 cm covered the nation's capital.

Up to 15.24 cm fell on New York City, snarling morning and evening rush hour traffic, and a dusting of 2½ to 7½ cm hit southern New England. Officials in Boston asked motorists to stay off the streets Wednesday night, but indicated road crews should have cleared most major arteries for the morning rush hour.

"Let's just say the storm is farther east and north then we thought it would be," said NWS spokesman Bob Pannuto in Boston. "It is now moving away from us."

The NWS office at Windsor Locks, Conn., said the storm represented merely the usual staple for winter in New England.

"This is just a snowstorm," said spokesman Earl Gillette. "If we had winds or wet snow, we'd have power lines down. This is lousing up traffic, but it's just a snowstorm."

The New England blizzard, which began on Feb. 6, 1978, dumped 42½ cm on New York City and virtually paralyzed southern New England for more than a week.

Another storm swept the Eastern Slope of the Rocky Mountains with winds gusting to 128 km/h and heavy snow, but caused little concern in populated areas. Temperatures plummeted to well minus 10° C. in the northern Plains and upper Midwest.

Floodwaters receded in the eastern Oregon towns of Madras, Ione and Stanfield, leaving tons of mud and debris. Heavy flooding Wednesday closed up to a dozen highways for a time.

Trudeau Pleads For Bhutto To Live

OTTAWA (UPC) — Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau joined other world leaders Wednesday in appealing to Pakistan's military government to spare the life of former prime minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto.

In a telegram to President Mohammed Zia Al-Haq, Trudeau expressed "the strong hope that the president of Pakistan will exercise clemency and commute the death sentence . . .

"I am venturing to make this appeal on behalf of the Canadian government in the belief that such an act of mercy would be much appreciated by countries which have long admired Pakistan and supported its fight for the development of a better life for its people."

Teng Again Warns Vietnam

TOKYO (WP) — In a new warning to China's Indochina enemy, Chinese Vice-Premier Teng Hsiao-ping Wednesday decared that "sanctions" are necessary against Vietnam because of its military actions in Cambodia.

Teng told Japanese leaders that his government would act "prudently" about Vietnam but added, with emphasis, "Once we say we will do something, we will do it."

On a brief visit here in route home from his American tour, Teng also vaguely rebuked the United States for failing to take a tougher line against Soviet activities, including what he said was Russian interference in Iran.

The vice-premier arrived here Tuesday from Seattle, tired and suffering from a cold, on what was described by the Japanese as an "unofficial" visit. He met with Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira and former Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda and invited U.S. Ambassador Mike Mansfield to his hotel suite Wednesday afternoon for a 15-minute social visit.

According to officials who briefed reporters later, Teng did not elaborate on what "sanctions" against Vietnam he had in mind, but his remarks raised again the threat of a military retaliation for Vietnam's massive assault in Cambodia, where the China-supported government of Pol Pot has been routed to the countryside.

China has massed between 10 and 12 divisions on its border with Vietnam, and the two countries have traded protests about border violations. The United States has urged Teng to be cautious about Vietnam for fear of igniting a major war.

Teng told his hosts Wednesday that the Soviet Union is using Vietnam in the same way it has used Cuban troops in some African nations and he said that "if we do nothing about the Cambodian situation" the Soviet Union will make similar moves elsewhere in the world.

He told Ohira that whatever action China takes will be "very prudent" but emphasized that some counteractions are "necessary," officials said.

By MIKE HUGHES
Times Staff

The implementation of a job evaluation program could cost B.C. hospitals as much as $31 million in retroactive pay and wage increases during the first year, the chairman of the evaluation committee said today.

Victoria consultant Hugh Wilkinson said in an interview the program could cost $20 to $25 million in retroactive pay and $6 million in wage increases.

However, he cautioned that it is still up to the hospitals, through their bargaining agency the Health Labor Relations Association, and the 21,500-member Hospital Employees Union to work out exactly how the retroactivity clause is to be interpreted so those figures could change.

Because of the vague nature of the retroactive clause in the hospital employees' contracts and because of the potential amounts involved, the issue is wide open for a great deal of dispute, Wilkinson said.

The potential costs of the program are contained in the committee's report to the union and the two hospitals that were evaluated as part of a pilot project — Victoria General and Shaughnessy in Vancouver.

The job evaluators classified the duties for every position in the hospitals on the basis of 10 factors, including education requirements, amount of personal contact and job hazard.

The study fingered a number of jobs as being paid over what their evaluation shows they warrant and others are underpaid.

The committee's report says those in the overpaid jobs should continue to get the negotiated wage increases until 1982 and then after that time only receive half of the negotiated increase until they are at their proper level.

Those who are underpaid will get immediate retroactive pay, some going back as far as Jan. 1, 1974.

GOLD JUMPS TO NEW HIGH

LONDON (AP) — Gold jumped to a record price today for the second day in succession as the U.S. dollar dropped in Tokyo, rose slightly on some European markets and dropped slightly on others.

London's five major bullion dealers fixed the price of gold at midmorning at $254 an ounce, $3.50 above the previous closing price in London and $2.25 above the previous record, set in Zurich Wednesday.

Decriminalization Of Marijuana Vowed Swift MP Passage

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Liberal, Conservative and New Democratic party spokesmen Wednesday expressed willingness to grant speedy Commons passage to legislation virtually eliminating penalties for possession of marijuana for personal use.

The leaders of both major opposition parties gave their undertakings in interviews after Justice Minister Marc Lalonde told the Commons he is willing to consult the opposition on whether speedy passage could be guaranteed to a bill to decriminalize possession of marijuana.

Locally police officers expressed opposition to such a move although the head of drug investigations for the RCMP in the province agreed there should be some control of marijuana use other than through the criminal code.

"There are far too many young people obtaining criminal records because of their drug experimentation," Insp. Dave Staples said.

Still Staples called marijuana "a very dangerous substance . . . in many ways more insidious than heroin. It's a drug far too many people are completely naive about."

"If the law has already determined that marijuana is not a really useful thing to have then it should be eliminated," he said.

David Wilson, president of the Victo[illegible] Association was cautious in either supporting or opposing the move saying he could not voice an opinion until he's hadd a chance to study the legislation.

While he noted the Canadian Bar Association has recommended decriminalization, he indicated he has not yet reached that conclusion himself.

"However there are so many people using marijuana that when the law is broken so flagrantly perhaps it's stupid to have it."

He doubted anyone appreciates the long-term ramifications because of the lack of medical evidence.

Lalonde re-stated the Liberal government's long-standing contention that possession of marijuana should remain an offence though not one that would lead to criminal conviction and a criminal record.

A Toronto-based citizens' group has also asked members of Parliament to delay the changing of marijuana laws until decriminalization laws in the United States are studied.

Alcohol and Drug Concerns, Inc., said in a brief sent to MPs that scientific evidence has emerged since 1973 indicating that marijuana is harmful, yet public opinion is largely uninformed about this.

"Legislative change ought not to contribute to a further escalation of marijuana use," the brief said.

Donald Smyth said the group has 30,000 members across Canada.

Davis Appeal To Ottawa

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jack Davis, former federal and British Columbia cabinet minister found guilty last fall of defrauding the provincial government of $1,074, is appealing his conviction to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Davis was convicted in county court of converting eight first-class airline tickets paid for by the province into economy fares and pocketing the difference. After his conviction, he lost an appeal in the B.C. Court of Appeal.

In an application to the Supreme Court, the country's highest court, Davis claims that the two lower courts made mistakes in their interpretations of provincial laws. His appeal will be held March 5.

MLA Boycotting Food Committee

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

An NDP MLA today said she will boycott the $3 million legislative committee's agriculture study because of ineptitude, overruns and lack of accountability.

Barbara Wallace, the member for Cowichan, said she will not attend any more meetings of the committee.

The original 11-month study commissioned in April, 1977, is now almost two years old and there is no end in sight, Wallace told a press conference today.

Two other NDP members of the committee, Chris D'Arcy (Rossland-Trail) and Dave Stupich (Nanaimo) said they will not attend any further meetings of the committee that involve either travel or spending of public funds.

Wallace called for the final report and full accountability of the committee's and its research staff's expenses.

She said she is not only concerned but angry over the operation of the agriculture committee and her inability as one of its members to get answers to questions involving what she says may be very serious wrongs.

The nine-member committee is composed of six Socreds and three NDPers. The Socreds include past and present agriculture ministers James Hewitt and Cyril Shelford and the committee is under the chairmanship of Len Bawtree (SC—Shuswap).

The $3 million already paid out in fees and charges has not been properly accounted for, Wallace charged.

"On top of that, the MLA said, "there has not been one single positive effect on the retail cost of food in this province as a result of the committee's work."

The NDP MLA said she is making her objections public only after exhausting every effort within the committee to get answers to the issues she has raised.

Wallace said she feels the source of the problem is the ineptitude of chairman Bawtree and Hewitt and Shelford.

"This ineptitude and neglect has led to some unusual management practices by the consultants," she added.

The study consists of four phases. Phases I and II were to have been completed by the end of August, 1977, according to the instructions when the select standing committee was commissioned.

Upward Wages Swing Raises Inflation Fears

OTTAWA (CP) — Wage increases showed a new upward trend towards the end of 1978, raising the possibility of a new wage-price bubble, the federal inflation monitoring agency warned today.

The Centre for the Study of Inflation and Productivity said that while wage increases of teachers and construction workers were generally moderate, higher increases to workers in supermarkets were "a very serious development."

The centre pointed to 10.9-per-cent increases to 10,300 Ontario employees of Dominion Stores and a Steinberg's settlement with 6,500 Montreal employees for increases ranging from 10 to 14.4 per cent as being considerably above average.

It said 11 major settlements covering 41,000 supermarket employees showed increases averaged 10.4 per cent in the highest-paid categories and 11.1 per cent at the lower end.

"Such high wage settlements do not automatically imply corresponding food price increases, but the danger is there," the centre said.

"The key is whether or not the wage advances are backed up by satisfactory productivity improvements in retail food operations."

The centre's comments on wage settlements came only a few days after it released a report showing companies raised prices last year to increase after-tax profits 21 per cent in the first nine months to $9.3 billion.

The report said the retailing industry had increased after-tax profits 45 per cent and noted that department store profits were up 87 per cent. Food store profits were up 42 per cent.

Prime Minister Trudeau, who has called for workers to restrain wage demands, said Wednesday he is glad business profits are up. But he said some of the profits should be reinvested to create more jobs and not all turned over to shareholders.

BCRIC Shares Profit Dealers

Nobody's sure what kind of money-making potential those free shares in the B.C. Resources Investment Corp. hold but it appears that banks, credit unions and other financial institutions which handle share applications will make a buck.

Don Alexander, a spokesman for the B.C. Systems Corp., which is organizing the distribution and processing of the share applications, said a number of figures "are on the table".

Asked whether in fact the institutions may get $5 for every application they handle, Alexander confirmed this figure is being discussed.

As well as the fees paid to the institutions, other costs in distributing the shares will include the printing and distribution of 500,000 information booklets, a detailed and a simplified prospectus, a letter to all B.C. residents and the printing of the share certificates themselves along with media ads by both BCRIC and the provincial government.

Meanwhile, opposition spokesman say they're not surprised to learn a proposed application form for shares in the B.C. Resources Investment Corp. had a photograph of Premier Bill Bennett.

The form has since been rejected by the BCRIC policy committee and an alternative form without the

De-Bugging Devices Worry RCMP

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Lawyers are buying them. So are bankers, architects and other businessmen. One unidentified purchaser was from the provincial legislature.

What they're buying is a super-sweeper, a new breed of electronic detection device which can tell instantly whether a person or his premises is being bugged.

So effective are the tiny bug detectors that the RCMP is concerned about the consequences the devices will have on the force's authorized bugging activities in crime-fighting.

Superintendent Scotty Gardiner of RCMP headquarters in Victoria said in an interview that, while there is no indication the devices have hampered investigations to date, their proliferation could pose a potential threat.

The new detector, the Debug Mark II, was developed by Nova Electronics of Vancouver, and heralded as a major breakthrough in the detection of electronic listening devices.

Nova president Roger Bermier said in an interview the device, invented by Wilfred Chipman, a 32-year-old electronics whiz, is unique in that it is the only hand-held detector with the capability of detecting bugs that operate at extremely low energy levels.

Until Chipman's invention came along, hand-held detectors were limited to picking up bugs with power outputs of 100 milliwatts or greater, Bermier said.

But most bugs now operate in the range of one milliwatt. The Debug Mark II is effective in detecting outputs as low as one quarter of a milliwatt.

Bermier said his device costs #395, weighs 10 ounces, is the size of two packages of cigarettes, and is so simple a child can handle it.

Bermier said he's sold hundreds of the devices in B.C. and has opened a branch office in California where he hopes to capture a growing market in the United States.

His customers have included architects, stock brokers, bankers, lawyers, and persons in the food, brewery and automobile industries.

He said he sold one recently to someone from the legislative buildings in Victoria. The purchaser did not give his name.

Although possession of bugging devices is a Criminal Code offence, punishable on conviction by a minimum five years imprisonment, that seemingly hasn't deterred their use.

B.C.'s Youth Employment Program

Geared to Provide 1,600 Jobs This Summer

Crank Up the Job Machine

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Activity in the provincial government office at 808 Douglas Street is peaking as the staff prepare for the 1979 Youth Employment Program, better known as YEP.

The program is expected to provide about 1,600 jobs for students and unemployed youths this summer.

While most of the YEP jobs will last only from May 1 to Aug. 31, regional administrator Stephen Myers says the government will introduce a new extension program this year.

The extended project will subsidize jobs for qualified youths up to a period of eight months.

Myers says this is in response from employers who have said the four-month period is not sufficient to train the workers for full-time employment.

Like field co-ordinators Patrick Wolfe and Marion Buller they, too, look for other employment during the months the YEP is dormant.

Myers says the main thrust of the program is to provide new jobs that offer training toward permanent employment.

He cites the case of the youth who dropped out of school at Grade 10 and was unemployed for two or three years because he lacked experience.

Under the YEP program last summer he found work with a local automobile body shop and is now a full-time employee.

Myers says another businessman, who services most of the church organs in the area, says the youths he has employed during the last two years under the program have given him the time to create an original woodwind organ. The businessman is now pursuing the possibility of marketing his creation as an alternative to more costly electrical organs.

A computer system, which Myers said is a combination of the best factors of similar systems in the U.S. and Britain and unique in Canada, is used for a youth referral system in the office.

Its efficient data bank can match would-be employers with the type of workers they are seeking.

Wolfe has been in contact with such groups as the Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce, the Victoria Downtown Association and the Victoria Volunteer Bureau to alert potential employers about the program.

When it was first started in 1974 the program was designed for students only. It now helps unemployed youths between 15 and 24 years of age, as well as students who are over 15.

The government will spend $21.5 million on the program this year, hoping to provide 13,500 jobs throughout the province.

Myers expects about $3.2 million to be siphoned into the Capital Regional District.

Under the program the government subsidizes wages paid to youths and students employed by businesses or on farms on a 50-50 basis up to $2.50 per hour.

Non-profit organizations employing youths and students are subsidized up to $3.20 per hour while there is yet another rate for municipalities and school boards.

Wolfe, who is one of 28 field co-ordinators in the program, says there is a minimum of paperwork.

"The employer can hire whoever he likes as long as the youth is eligible under our regulations," he adds.

Non-profit organizations have until March 2 to submit applications and Wolfe can be reached at 387-1431. Business and farm applications must be filed by March 12.

Myers says 12 to 13 per cent of the YEP jobs provided in the province last year were found in this area.

BCGEU Threatens Law Suit On Hiring, Promotion Policy

The B.C. Government Employees' Union has threatened legal action unless the government acts immediately to establish a commission of inquiry into government hiring and promotion policies.

The union would seek to overturn rulings made by the Public Service Commission (PSC) appeal board during an 18-month period in which it operated shorthanded.

The threat was delivered by BCGEU general secretary John Fryer on the heels of a B.C. Supreme Court ruling that a recent judgment of the PSC appeal board was invalid.

Mr. Justice J.C. Bouck ruled the PSC was acting outside the law when it ruled on a case when only two rather than the statutory three commissioners had heard the appeal.

The PSC is legally constituted as a three-member commission, but operated with only two commissioners for 18 months.

Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis appointed his deputy, Gerald Cross, to fill the vacancy in the commission six weeks ago.

Fryer called the court ruling a victory for the union and said the judgment has serious and far-reaching implications.

"We feel that it is imperative that a commission of inquiry into the merit principle be established immediately. The only other alternative facing the union is to take further legal action to overturn all illegal rulings made by the commission over the past 18 months," said Fryer.

The court ruling resulted from a union action brought on behalf of E.M. Sealy, a pilot who was refused an appointment as chief pilot for the provincial government air services branch even though he possessed the qualifications advertised for the position.

The union contended the provisions of the collective agreement had not been followed and that the employer should be compelled to observe the terms of the contract when making appointments within the bargaining unit."

"The judge's decision underlines the fact that the merit principle is not working properly in B.C.'s provincial government service. What we need in the public service is a system and procedures for promotions, appointments and appeals that is not only above suspicion but like Caesar's wife, must be seen to be above suspicion as well."

NDP MLA Eileen Dailly said Wednesday former provincial secretary Grace McCarthy had allowed the PSC to operate unfairly and illegally when she neglected to appoint a third member to the appeal board for 18 months.

"Because of the bungling and ineptitude of the government in handling the public service appeal board, hundreds and maybe thousands of public servants in this province could have suffered a grave injustice," said the MLA for Burnaby North.

15 Nominated For Study On Education

Fifteen nominations have been received for the post of commissioner of a Greater Victoria School District educational needs study.

School board planning committee chairman Win Mott said Wednesday most of the names were submitted by trustees and several were self-nominations from district staff. Nominations have now closed.

The board will hold a special meeting next week to select the commissioner.

The planning committee compiled a short list of seven people it considers the most eligible, but all 15 names will be submitted to the board.

Some of the nominations were submitted to trustees by members of the community.

The commissioner will chair an educational commission set up by the board to study the district's education system and make recommendations on future use of facilities.

"It will be a wide open look at the educational activities of the district," Mott said.

He said the commissioner will be the only salaried member of the commission, which will have a budget of $12,000 to cover clerical and research expenses.

The commissioner's $15,000 salary will also cover the costs of hiring consultants.

The commission, which will consist of representatives from parent groups, district staff and the community, has eight months to complete the study.

ARMED YOUTH ARRESTED

A report of a prowler in the 600-block Yates early today led to the arrest of two youths, one armed with a .22-calibre handgun.

They face charges of possession of an unregistered restricted weapon, possession of housebreaking tools and attempted breaking and entering.

Police arriving at the scene at 1:15 a.m. discovered attempts had been made to force the rear doors of two premises.

As they were checking the area officers spotted two youths coming out of an alley and arrested them.

No Extra Hour For Marguerite

Hours the Princess Marguerite stays in Victoria will be unchanged this summer, Larry Martell, a member of the citizens advisory board to the Marguerite, said today.

A request from Victoria business groups that the time be extended by one hour will be considered for the following summer.

The Marguerite arrives in Victoria at 12:30 p.m. and leaves at 4:30 p.m. every day during the peak tourist season.

Business groups say tourist spending would be higher if visitors had the extra hour to shop.

Martell said B.C. Steamship Co., which operates the vessel, will have to consider all the factors involved.

For example, he said, an hour longer in Victoria means that visitors would get back to Seattle an hour later and this might discourage some tourists from making the trip.

"There are some good arguments on both sides and we will have to take a careful look at the issue."

Questions of fares and scheduling remain the prerogative of the B.C. Steamship Co. but the advisory board may make suggestions on scheduling.

Mitchell-Brewin Showdown March 25

The Esquimalt-Port Renfrew NDP have set March 25 for the showdown between Frank Mitchell and John Brewin to see who will carry the party colors in the next provincial election.

Guest speaker at the nominating convention will be Stu Leggatt, the NDP MP from New Westminister who is leaving federal politics to run provincially in the new Coquitlam-Moody riding.

The Esquimalt riding has been held by the NDP in the past and both Brewin and Mitchell feel they can defeat Kahl. Both have been working hard to line up support.

Nominations are still open. The meeting will be held in the Esquimalt Recreation Centre at 2 p.m.

"The interest being shown by the membership to this point has been extremely high and we are sure that we will have a record turnout at the nominating meeting," constituency president Marlene Eddy said.

Meanwhile, the three NDP members who lost their ridings with the new boundary changes approved by the legislature last season have all found new battlefields.

MITCHELL

. . . challenger

Bill King, whose Revelstoke-Slocan riding disappeared, has been nominated in Shuswap-Revelstoke. King's hometown of Revelstoke remains in the new riding.

The Socred MLA from the current riding of Shuswap, Len Bawtree, will likely face King in the election.

Rosemary Brown and Norm Levi were cut adrift when Vancouver Burrard was swallowed up by surrounding ridings.

Brown has won the nomination in Burnaby-Edmonds. She will likely face incumbent Socred Ray Loewen.

Levi is seeking the nomination in Coquitlam-Maillardville — one of the new ridings.

The NDP has nominated candidates in about half the ridings and plan a series of nominating conventions over the next two months for the rest.

The Socreds have selected candidates in only two ridings so far, but both parties have contingent plans to push nominating conventions ahead if the premier calls an election early this spring.

Before The Judge

A 19-year-old Esquimalt man was fined $500 after pleading guilty in provincial court Wednesday to dangerous driving.

Judge William Ostler said he will recommend that Neil Allan Taylor of HMCS Restigouche not be allowed to drive anywhere in Canada for six months.

Mulligan said Taylor's vehicle was speeding west near Tyee Road when it apparently went out of control on a curve, leaving 160 feet of skid marks before mounting a curb and hitting a trailer unit parked in a service station.

He said Taylor continued back on to the road, narrowly missing a vehicle which contained a number of youngsters returning home from a hockey practice.

When police were called, Mulligan continued, another person came forward and admitted being the driver. However, during a Jan. 30 trial Taylor was identified by witnesses as the driver and was subsequently arrested and charged.

Defence lawyer Patrick Sweeney waived a preliminary hearing on behalf of 19-year-old Daryl Fyfe Wilson, of 2526 Belmont, charged with possession of marijuana for the purpose of trafficking and simple possession of marijuana and cocaine.

Wilson was remanded directly to county court next Tuesday.

Fined for drinking-driving offences were: Gary Edward Stachura, 29, of 944 Glenwillow Place, $450; Eugene Joseph Sheplawy, 47, of 581 Ridley, $400; George Cantin, 26, of Tahsis, $400; Thomas John Gailus, 41, of 2772 Sooke, $400; Corey Douglas Nelson, 17, of 623 Eiderwood, $400; and Harry Palm, 66, of 1040 Southgate, $400.

Coke Count Jails Businessman

A 33-year-old Vancouver businessman was sentenced in county court Wednesday to nine months in jail for possession of cocaine for the purpose of trafficking.

Larry Cliff Skogman, proprietor of Viking Window Cleaners, was convicted by Judge E.J.C. Stewart last month. Police checked his car near the Swartz Bay ferry terminal Oct. 29, 1977, and found 154 grams of a substance which the defence claimed amounted to less than 30 grams of pure cocaine.

Court was told Skogman paid $3,500 for the cocaine because he didn't like paying the street price of $100 a gram.

Defence counsel Mike Hutchison said little or no purpose would be served by a jail sentence and suggested community work service plus lengthy probation would be appropriate. But if jail was to be considered, he urged it be served on weekends.

He said Skogman owned and managed his own business which employed four persons and an extended jail term would end his business. He also said cocaine does not have the same sinister overtones as heroin.

Crown counsel Gordon MacDonald said the case demanded a substantial jail term and if there was probation and a fine, it would amount to a licence for other nightlife swingers like Skogman.

He said there must be a punishment to show that severe consequences flow from this sort of behavior and noted the Court of Appeal has ruled that, in the absence of special circumstances, there must be a jail sentence.

Judge Stewart said it is almost impossible to assess the deterrent effect of sentences on other people but this was a narcotic case and the distribution of narcotics was regarded as a very serious offence.

"I really have no choice," he said, adding that he could not accept the proposition that probation was appropriate.

He said it is as simple as this: anyone who decides after consideration to become involved in the distribution of a narcotic must know from the beginning that if he or she is caught they will go to jail.

He said Skogman is an intelligent and successful businessman who is not a big cog in the distribution of cocaine. Unfortunately, he said, the really serious offenders are rarely caught.

Skogman will probably suffer a serious, if not catastrophic, loss of business so he was not going to fine him.

March 14 Forum To Debate Sidney Is.

A public forum will be held at the Provincial Museum's Newcombe Auditorium March 14 at 7:30 p.m. to discuss the proposal to purchase Sidney Island for a provincial park.

Parks Minister James Chabot is expected to attend along with Tony Roberts, manager of the Islands Trust and Bristol Foster, director of Ecological Reserves.

Other speakers will include Jack Todd, the owner of the 1,783-acre island, Stan Buxcey, chairman of the Save the Sidney Island Committee, and Kreg Sky of the National and Provincial Parks Association of Canada.

The forum will be informed on progress of the campaign to save the island from developers.

By MIKE HUGHES
Times Staff

The implementation of a job evaluation program could cost B.C. hospitals as much as $31 million in retroactive pay and wage increases during the first year, the chairman of the evaluation committee said today.

Victoria consultant Hugh Wilkinson said in an interview the program could cost $20 to $25 million in retroactive pay and $6 million in wage increases.

However, he cautioned that it is still up to the hospitals, through their bargaining agency the Health Labor Relations Association, and the 21,500-member Hospital Employees Union to work out exactly how the retroactivity clause is to be interpreted so those figures could change.

Because of the vague nature of the retroactive clause in the hospital employees' contracts and because of the potential amounts involved, the issue is wide open for a great deal of dispute, Wilkinson said.

The potential costs of the program are contained in the committee's report to the union and the two hospitals that were evaluated as part of a pilot project — Victoria General and Shaughnessy in Vancouver.

The job evaluators classified the duties for every position in the hospitals on the basis of 10 factors, including education requirements, amount of personal contact and job hazard.

The study fingered a number of jobs as being paid over what their evaluation shows they warrant and others are underpaid.

The committee's report says those in the overpaid jobs should continue to get the negotiated wage increases until 1982 and then after that time only receive half of the negotiated increase until they are at their proper level.

Those who are underpaid will get immediate retroactive pay, some going back as far as Jan. 1, 1974.

CANADA HAS RATION PLAN

OTTAWA (CP) — Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie said today the federal government has an emergency plan to ration gasoline and fuel oil if world supplies are further restricted.

Gillespie told the Commons that Canada is bound by a 1974 agreement to reduce imports into Eastern Canada as part of a international system to share available supplies.

"We have a contingency plan in the event of that possibility," Gillespie said in response to a question on whether Canada might have to ration oil because of supply-disrupting political turmoil in Iran.

Swift MP Accord To Decriminalize Marijuana Vowed

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Liberal, Conservative and New Democratic party spokesmen Wednesday expressed willingness to grant speedy Commons passage to legislation virtually eliminating penalties for possession of marijuana for personal use.

The leaders of both major opposition parties gave their undertakings in interviews after Justice Minister Marc Lalonde told the Commons he is willing to consult the opposition on whether speedy passage could be guaranteed to a bill to decriminalize possession of marijuana.

Locally police officers expressed opposition to such a move although the head of drug investigations for the RCMP in the province agreed there should be some control of marijuana use other than through the criminal code.

"There are far too many young people obtaining criminal records because of their drug experimentation," Insp. Dave Staples said.

Still Staples called marijuana "a very dangerous substance . . . in many ways more insidious than heroin. It's a drug far too many people are completely naive about."

"If the law has already determined that marijuana is not a really useful thing to have then it should be eliminated," he said.

David Wilson, president of the Victoria Bar Association was cautious in either supporting or opposing the move saying he could not voice an opinion until he's had a chance to study the legislation.

While he noted the Canadian Bar Association has recommended decriminalization, he indicated he has not yet reached that conclusion himself.

"However there are so many people using marijuana that when the law is broken so flagrantly perhaps it's stupid to have it."

He doubted anyone appreciates the long-term ramifications because of the lack of medical evidence.

Lalonde re-stated the Liberal government's long-standing contention that possession of marijuana should remain an offence though not one that would lead to criminal conviction and a criminal record.

A Toronto-based citizens' group has also asked members of Parliament to delay the changing of marijuana laws until decriminalization laws in the United States are studied.

Alcohol and Drug Concerns, Inc., said in a brief sent to MPs that scientific evidence has emerged since 1973 indicating that marijuana is harmful, yet public opinion is largely uninformed about this.

"Legislative change ought not to contribute to a further escalation of marijuana use," the brief said.

Donald Smyth said the group has 30,000 members across Canada.

Davis Appeal To Ottawa

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jack Davis, former federal and British Columbia cabinet minister found guilty last fall of defrauding the provincial government of $1,074, is appealing his conviction to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Davis was convicted in county court of converting eight first-class airline tickets paid for by the province into economy fares and pocketing the difference. After his conviction, he lost an appeal in the B.C. Court of Appeal.

In an application to the Supreme Court, the country's highest court, Davis claims that the two lower courts made mistakes in their interpretations of provincial laws. His appeal will be held,March 5.

MLA Boycotting Food Committee

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

An NDP MLA today said she will boycott the $3 million legislative committee's agriculture study because of ineptitude, overruns and lack of accountability.

Barbara Wallace, the member for Cowichan, said she will not attend any more meetings of the committee.

The original 11-month study commissioned in April, 1977, is now almost two years old and there is no end in sight, Wallace told a press conference today.

Two other NDP members of the committee, Chris D'Arcy (Rossland-Trail) and Dave Stupich (Nanaimo) said they will not attend any further meetings of the committee that involve either travel or spending of public funds.

Wallace called for the final report and full accountability of the committee's and its research staff's expenses.

She said she is not only concerned but angry over the operation of the agriculture committee and her inability as one of its members to get answers to questions involving what she says may be very serious wrongs.

The nine-member committee is composed of six Socreds and three NDPers. The Socreds include past and present agriculture ministers James Hewitt and Cyril Shelford and the committee is under the chairmanship of Len Bawtree (SC—Shuswap).

The $3 million already paid out in fees and charges has not been properly accounted for, Wallace charged.

"On top of that, the MLA said, "there has not been one single positive effect on the retail cost of food in this province as a result of the committee's work."

The NDP MLA said she is making her objections public only after exhausting every effort within the committee to get answers to the issues she has raised.

Wallace said she feels the source of the problem is the ineptitude of chairman Bawtree and Hewitt and Shelford.

"This ineptitude and neglect has led to some unusual management practices by the consultants," she added.

The study consists of four phases. Phases I and II were to have been completed by the end of August, 1977, according to the instructions when the select standing committee was commissioned.

Upward Wages Swing Raises Inflation Fears

OTTAWA (CP) — Wage increases showed a new upward trend towards the end of 1978, raising the possibility of a new wage-price bubble, the federal inflation monitoring agency warned today.

The Centre for the Study of Inflation and Productivity said that while wage increases of teachers and construction workers were generally moderate, higher increases to workers in supermarkets were "a very serious development."

The centre pointed to 10.9-per-cent increases to 10,300 Ontario employees of Dominion Stores and a Steinberg's settlement with 6,500 Montreal employees for increases ranging from 10 to 14.4 per cent as being considerably above average.

It said 11 major settlements covering 41,000 supermarket employees showed increases averaged 10.4 per cent in the highest-paid categories and 11.1 per cent at the lower end.

"Such high wage settlements do not automatically imply corresponding food price increases, but the danger is there," the centre said.

"The key is whether or not the wage advances are backed up by satisfactory productivity improvements in retail food operations."

The centre's comments on wage settlements came only a few days after it released a report showing companies raised prices last year to increase after-tax profits 21 per cent in the first nine months to $9.3 billion.

The report said the retailing industry had increased after-tax profits 45 per cent and noted that department store profits were up 87 per cent. Food store profits were up 42 per cent.

Prime Minister Trudeau, who has called for workers to restrain wage demands, said Wednesday he is glad business profits are up. But he said some of the profits should be reinvested to create more jobs and not all turned over to shareholders.

BCRIC Shares Profit Dealers

Nobody's sure what kind of money-making potential those free shares in the B.C. Resources Investment Corp. hold but it appears that banks, credit unions and other financial institutions which handle share applications will make a buck.

Don Alexander, a spokesman for the B.C. Systems Corp., which is organizing the distribution and processing of the share applications, said a number of figures "are on the table".

Asked whether in fact the institutions may get $5 for every application they handle, Alexander confirmed this figure is being discussed.

As well as the fees paid to the institutions, other costs in distributing the shares will include the printing and distribution of 500,000 information booklets, a detailed and a simplified prospectus, a letter to all B.C. residents and the printing of the share certificates themselves along with media ads by both BCRIC and the provincial government.

Meanwhile, opposition spokesman say they're not surprised to learn a proposed application form for shares in the B.C. Resources Investment Corp. had a photograph of Premier Bill Bennett.

The form has since been rejected by the BCRIC policy committee and an alternative form without the

De-Bugging Devices Worry RCMP

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Lawyers are buying them. So are bankers, architects and other businessmen. One unidentified purchaser was from the provincial legislature.

What they're buying is a super-sweeper, a new breed of electronic detection device which can tell instantly whether a person or his premises is being bugged.

So effective are the tiny bug detectors that the RCMP is concerned about the consequences the devices will have on the force's authorized bugging activities in crime-fighting.

Superintendent Scotty Gardiner of RCMP headquarters in Victoria said in an interview that, while there is no indication the devices have hampered investigations to date, their proliferation could pose a potential threat.

The new detector, the Debug Mark II, was developed by Nova Electronics of Vancouver, and heralded as a major breakthrough in the detection of electronic listening devices.

Nova president Roger Bermier said in an interview the device, invented by Wilfred Chipman, a 32-year-old electronics whiz, is unique in that it is the only hand-held detector with the capability of detecting bugs that operate at extremely low energy levels.

Until Chipman's invention came along, hand-held detectors were limited to picking up bugs with power outputs of 100 milliwatts or greater, Bermier said.

But most bugs now operate in the range of one milliwatt. The Debug Mark II is effective in detecting outputs as low as one quarter of a milliwatt.

Bermier said his device cost $395, weighs 10 ounces, is the size of two packages of cigarettes, and is so simple a child can handle it.

Bermier said he's sold hundreds of the devices in B.C. and has opened a branch office in California where he hopes to capture a growing market in the United States.

His customers have included architects, stock brokers, bankers, lawyers, and persons in the food, brewery and automobile industries.

He said he sold one recently to someone from the legislative buildings in Victoria. The purchaser did not give his name.

Although possession of bugging devices is a Criminal Code offence, punishable on conviction by a minimum five years imprisonment, that seemingly hasn't deterred their use.

today's markets

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — A surge by energy and mining issues sent the Toronto stock market sharply higher in active mid-afternoon trading.

Advances outnumbered declines 244 to 138 with 225 issues unchanged.

The Toronto Stock Exchange said it will list Silvana Mines Inc. in the mining category Feb. 12, with five million common shares offered without par value.

It said Silvana is owned 53.5-per-cent by Kam-Kotia Mines Ltd. and 27.38-per-cent by Carnegie Mining Corp. Ltd. Kam-Kotia also owns 68.6 per cent of Carnegie.

Among industrials, Asbestos Corp. gained 2¾ to $50, Dome Petroleum 2½ to $99, Falconbridge Nickel A 1⅝ to $36⅞, Husky Oil 1½ to $46 and Canada Malting A 1⅜ to $35½.

Inglis Ltd. fell ¾ to $11¾, Ford Motor Co. of Canada ⅛ to $68, MTS International two cents to 40 cents, Algoma Steel Corp. ⅛ to $28¾ and Bank of Nova Scotia ⅛ to $24¼.

McIntyre Mines Ltd. rose 1½ to $29, Gibraltar Mines ⅝ to $8⅞ and Teck Corp. B ½ to $12¾. Dome Mines dropped 1 to $100 and Afton Mines Ltd. 1 to $18.

Amalgamated Bonanza Petroleum was up 2¼ to $25, Candel Oil 1½ to $37½ and Asamera Oil ⅝ to $18½. Merland Explorations was down ⅛ to $9⅛ and Conuco Ltd. 32½ cents to $4.80.

New York

Analysts, in fact, said a rise in the producer price index at anything less than a two-digit annual rate for January would be surprising.

Domestic oil and gas stocks showed strength, evidently on the theory that those companies would stand to benefit from reduced supplies of foreign oil. Apache Corp. was up 1⅝ to $21⅜; Reserve Oil and Gas rose ⅝ to $12¼, and Inexco Oil was up ¾ to $16⅛.

London

LONDON (Reuter) — Concern over increased bank lending rates pushed prices lower near the close of trading on the London stock market. The Financial Times index fell 7.9 to 447.3. Financial and mining shares eased and oils were mixed. Canadian stocks were lower.
